Dewey Defeated, Murphy Trailing In Michigan Race

Pennsylvania Returns to G. O. P. Fold in Election LUCAS LEADS

Downey Ahead in California; Gillett Has Narrow Edge

Washington—(AP)—A powerful resurgence of Republican voting swept that party to impressive gains in yesterday's elections, tempered somewhat by a signal, if narrow, Democratic victory in the all-important state of New York.

The balloting left the Democrats in secure—if impaired—control of congress, but carried the old Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania back into Republican hands, and with tabulations still incomplete gave the party leads in several other gubernatorial contests.

Not the least of the latter was that in Michigan, where President Roosevelt had stepped in to support Governor Frank Murphy, Democrat, in his bid for reelection, Frank D. Fitzgerald was leading, and although the vote in Murphy's industrial strongholds had still to be recorded, the governor's cause was obviously in danger.

Gubernatorial Fights. In 32 gubernatorial contests, Republican candidates had been successful early today in eight—six of the posts are held by Democrats at present—and were leading in ten. The Democrats had elected eight governors, and their candidates were leading in six states.

In 35 elections to the senate, the Republicans had elected five candidates, three of the victories representing gains in senate voting power, and were leading in five contests. Democratic senatorial nominees were winners in 15 contests and leading in 10.

Returns showing the makeup of the next house of representatives accumulated slowly. However, with nearly half the membership elected, the Republican party had picked up 17 seats held by Democrats last year.

Effect Not Known. What the election meant in terms of gains and losses for the New Deal could not be assessed with any certainty. Such a judgment awaited an analysis of the attitude of many successful Democrats toward New Deal measures, and the effectiveness of a coalition of house Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats.

However, it was unmistakable that the balloting had revealed a shifting allegiance of thousands of voters to the Republican standard. Its interpretation in terms of the 1940 presidential contest was foremost in the minds of many political students.

In New York, for instance, the Democrats barely wiggled in, in contrast with the huge Democratic majorities there in recent years. However, the latter held an imposing lead in the Maryland gubernatorial election and were well ahead in California. Both states now have republican governors.

Situation by States. The situation in important states early today was:

California: Sheridan Downey and Culbert L. Olson, Democratic nominees for senator and governor, were leading. Phillip Bancroft and Governor Frank F. Merriam, Republican. Few returns had been received from the referendum on the "50 cent Thursday" old age pension plan, originally espoused by Downey.

Connecticut: Republican candidates for both governor and senator were apparently elected. They were Raymond E. Baldwin, running against Wilbur L. Cross for the governorship and John A. Danaher, opposing Augustine Lonergan for the latter's place in the senate.

Illinois: Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, was running well ahead of Richard J. Lyons, Republican, for the senate.

Iowa: Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, seeking reelection, held a narrow lead over Lerter J. Dickinson, Republican. George A. Wilson, Republican, was running ahead of Governor Nelson G. Kraschel, Democrat, for the latter's seat.

Kansas: Republicans won both the senate seat and the governorship. The candidates were Clyde M. Reed, Republican, and Senator George McGill, Democrat, for the senate, and Governor Walter A. Huxman, Democrat, and Payne H.

Gantter Noses Out Rohan in Assembly Race; Catlin Wins

Democratic Incumbent Is Defeated in Second District Contest

William J. Gantter, unseated William M. Rohan, Kaukauna Democrat, as Second district assemblyman and Mark S. Catlin, Jr., Appleton, was returned as First district assemblyman in the Outagamie county Republican upheaval registered in Tuesday's election.

In his first attempt for a state office, Gantter, nosed out Rohan in 23 of 27 precincts by a margin of 2,191 votes to 1,664 while Catlin swept to a decisive victory over Gerald Jolin, Democrat, Stephensville, by 6,637 to 3,679 votes in 22 out of 23 precincts.

Anton M. Miller, Progressive route 1, Kaukauna, ran a close third in the Second district with 1,471 votes while Arthur Hoolihan, Union candidate of Kaukauna, was a poor fourth with 338 ballots.

Catlin carried practically every precinct and scored heaviest in city returns. It will be his second successive term in the assembly. He took a slight edge in the town of Bovina, Shiocton, Grand Chute, and the town of Center and recorded 2 to 1 triumphs in Dale and Greenville. The only precinct Catlin lost was the first in the Third ward, by a margin of 238 to 359, and the two candidates knotted in the Second precinct of the Fifth ward at 276 votes apiece.

Carries 16 Precincts. Gantter carried 16 of 23 precincts reporting and had his biggest majorities in Hortonville, town of Maine, Liberty, town of Osborn, village of Black Creek, town of Seymour, Third precinct at New London, Deer Creek, Seymour, Maple Creek and Hortonville. Rohan carried five precincts while Miller was high in two. Rohan and Miller staged a tight battle for second honors and had an equal number of votes in Liberty and the First precinct at Seymour.

Rohan rallied with 356 votes in Little Chute to 117 for Gantter and 317 for Miller. Gantter was leading in Kaukauna with two of four precincts reporting. Kaukauna results follow: Third precinct, Gantter, 178; Miller, 169; Rohan, 146; Fourth precinct, Gantter, 173; Rohan, 156; Miller, 106.

Bear Creek First To Report General Election Returns

Bear Creek village was the first precinct in Outagamie county to report its returns in the general election last night. Elmer Reinke, clerk, reported the returns at 7:06.

The village cast about 25 more votes than it did two years ago.

Jess Lathrop reported the returns from the town of Hortonville a few minutes after Bear Creek had reported.

Bear Creek, which it is said usually goes Democratic, turned in a Republican count yesterday. Heil polled 61 votes to 21 for LaFollette and 15 for Bolens.

Lehman Is Reelected Governor Of New York by Narrow Margin

New York—(AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Democrat, was re-elected in yesterday's nationally important New York election and, on the face of nearly completed returns early today, all other major members of the Democratic ticket likewise were successful.

Thomas E. Dewey, Lehman's Republican opponent, conceded defeat at 1 o'clock a. m. (E.S.T.). "I wish you every success and happiness," he wired the governor.

It was a slim victory for Lehman, for with more than 4,670,000 votes tabulated of an expected total of nearly 5,000,000-odd he led by less than 75,000.

County Gives Big Edge to Heil Ticket

Traditional Progressive Strongholds Join Republican Parade

LEADS PHIL BY 7,000 Appleton Throws Heavy Vote to G. O. P. State Candidates

With a host of traditional Progressive and Democratic precincts joining in the parade, Outagamie county yesterday substantially contributed to the Republican landslide which swept Julius P. Heil into the governor's chair in Madison.

Even the most astute politicians were dumbfounded by the avalanche of Republican votes which started with the first precinct reporting. Bear Creek, the first precinct, which two years ago gave 59 to LaFollette and 35 to Wiley for governor, this year kicked in with 61 votes for Heil and only 21 for LaFollette. And that wasn't just a flash in the pan. Precinct after precinct was turning in Heil majorities and this morning, with 45 precincts reporting Heil had 11,164 votes and LaFollette had 4,042.

Take the town of Osborn for instance. Two years ago LaFollette gathered 124 votes to 52 for Wiley, while yesterday the tables were turned completely. LaFollette getting only 53 while Heil gathered 75. The reversal in the town of Kaukauna was even more definite. Two years ago LaFollette polled 106 votes to 26 for Wiley, but yesterday Heil was given 75 votes and LaFollette got only 21.

The vote in the rural districts, in many instances was not more than half that cast in the general election two years ago. In a few precincts LaFollette polled more votes in the last Democratic and Progressive landslide than all the candidates together got yesterday.

Appleton Contributes. Appleton contributed heavily to the Heil majority, the precinct making almost a clean sweep of the precincts. The first ward rolled up a particularly strong Republican vote, and in the Second precinct of that ward 300 of the 760 ballots were straight Republican tickets.

The whole Republican state ticket had the edge over Progressive and Democratic opponents, even such stalwarts as Secretary of State Dammann and Treasurer Solomon Levitan running behind Republican opponents. Dammann, who has been secretary of state for years and a sort of a household word, ran behind Fred R. Zimmerman, a former secretary of state and former governor 6,020 to 8,747. And then old Sol Levitan, who looked like a sure shot, took a more than 2 to 1 beating from John M. Smith, the Republican candidate for state treasurer, polling 4,625 votes to 8,738 for Smith in 45 precincts.

Democrats made such poor showings that their vote was almost negligible. Harry W. Bolens, the head of the ticket, ran behind his mates, polling only 1,699 votes in the county, while his running mates did considerably better. James E. Finnegan, candidate for attorney general, an office he held for two years, was leading the Democratic ticket with 2,966 votes, but he was far behind John E. Martin the Republican candidate, with 9,262, and Orland Loomis, the Progressive incumbent, who ran second in the county with 3,333 votes to 94 precincts.

Walter S. Goodland, Republican and Coalition candidate for lieutenant governor was an easy winner in this county defeating George A. Nelson, a Progressive with Socialist leanings, 10,323 to 3,367 in 45 precincts.

Union and Independent Socialist candidates fared very badly in this county. Frank W. Smith, the Union candidate for governor polling a paltry 306 votes, and John Schleier, the Independent Socialist did even worse with only 28 votes.

South Preserves Its Democratic Identity

Atlanta—(AP)—The deep south preserved its traditional Democratic solidarity today in a perfunctory election which saw the party's major candidates leading also in the less predictable border states of Maryland and Kentucky.

In Maryland, Senator Millard F. Tydings, who won renomination in the Democratic primary after President Roosevelt labelled him a conservative and marked him for political liquidation led his Republican opponent, Oscar Leser, by more than two to one in early returns.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic majority leader for whom the president spoke a good word in the primary in Kentucky, had an almost two to one advantage over Republican John P. Haswell.

The only other southern states where the Republicans put up a fight were Tennessee and North Carolina. Democrats were in front in both states.

WINNERS IN RACE

Julius P. Heil (upper) of Milwaukee and Alexander Wiley (lower) of Chippewa Falls were elected governor and United States senator, respectively, Tuesday, on the basis of incomplete returns. Heil will succeed Governor Philip LaFollette. Progressive, while Wiley defeated F. Ryan Duffy, Democratic incumbent, for the senate seat.

Ziegenhagen Wins Treasurer's Post For Another Term

Defeats Ray L. Feuerstein, Democratic Opponent

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican, was returned to the office of county treasurer for her ninth consecutive term yesterday when she easily defeated Ray L. Feuerstein, her Democratic opponent by a huge vote. Miss Ziegenhagen has served as treasurer the last 16 years.

Taking a lead with the first precinct reported, Miss Ziegenhagen's lead continued to climb. Her total vote was 10,211 for 46 out of 50 precincts, a reflection of the Republican swing made in the county in the general election. Feuerstein's total was 6,559 for 45 precincts.

Returns from the scattered precincts that reported early in the evening pointed the way to the Republican candidate's win, and with the added majority given her in the city of Appleton, the outcome of the race was determined long before final precinct reports were made.

Miss Ziegenhagen ran strong even in towns that are customarily Democratic. In a good many of them she ran two to one. Once most of Appleton precincts were accounted for, the election was conceded to the present office holder.

Early Lead. Bear Creek, the first precinct to report gave Miss Ziegenhagen 47 votes to 45 for Feuerstein. Miss Ziegenhagen's lead started to grow.

Downey Leading in California; Pension Plan Appears Beaten

San Francisco—(AP)—Sheridan Downey, Democratic senatorial nominee, kept decidedly ahead of Republican New Deal Critic Philip Bancroft as California election returns mounted tonight but the $30 every Thursday pension plan which Downey supported and Bancroft assailed appeared to be losing.

Returns from 5,538 precincts of 12,472 gave Downey 272,262 and Bancroft 227,078.

In the governor's race, Culbert Olson, Democrat, led his Republican rival, Governor Frank F. Merriam 271,911 to 211,510.

The $30 pension proposal was lagging in populous Los Angeles county, where it had been expected to show its greatest strength. In 2,795 precincts the pension plan gathered 118,066 affirmative to 136,903 negative votes.

LaFollette Is Beaten in Bid For 4th Term

Bolens, Democratic Candidate, Runs Poor Third

FARM VOTE SHIFTS Ekern Second, Duffy Third in Senate Contest

Milwaukee—(AP)—Governor Philip LaFollette's aspirations to become Wisconsin's first fourth term governor fell today under an avalanche of Republican votes.

The Progressive standard-bearer, for the second time in his political career, was defeated at the polls in Tuesday's elections, along with United States Senator F. Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac, who sought reelection on the Democratic ticket as a 100 per cent supporter of the New Deal.

The Republicans elected Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee manufacturer, to the governorship and named Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls attorney, to succeed Duffy in the senate.

The Republican comeback, after six lean years, was of such landslide proportions, it threatened retirement of all the Progressive state office holders and many veteran Progressives in the state legislature.

Democrats Third. In at least six of the ten congressional districts the Republican candidates were running ahead.

The Democratic ticket of Duffy and Harry W. Bolens, candidate for governor, was trailing in third place with more than half of the state's 2,995 precincts reported.

In the senatorial race, Wiley had an advantage of about two to one over Herman L. Ekern, Madison Progressive, the runner-up. The vote in 1,970 precincts gave for governor: Heil, 299,213; LaFollette, 191,233; Bolens, 42,539; Smith, 1,285; Schleier, 388.

The vote in 1,964 precincts gave for senator: Wiley, 243,105; Ekern, 137,749; Duffy, 114,954.

John B. Chapple, Ashland, running for the senate as an independent Townsendite, although national officers of that organization had given their endorsement to Wiley, was scarcely in the race. Chapple's total was 2,930. Ehrhard polled 178 and Blair 314.

Governor LaFollette's defeat, brought about by a sharp reversal of the rural vote which usually supported him, was reminiscent of 1932 when he lost the Republican nomination for governor after his first term. It was that election which persuaded LaFollette to organize his own party, the medium of his return to power in 1934 and 1936.

The governor heard the results tonight at the old LaFollette farm on the outskirts of Madison.

He refused to make any statement on his future plans, which, until now, indicated some intensive farming.

Barbour Increasing Margin in New Jersey

Newark, N. J.—(AP)—W. Warren Barbour, Republican, swept into an almost insurmountable lead for United States senate early today when rural New Jersey counties overcame a near-record Democratic majority in Hudson county for his opponent, William H. J. Ely.

The vote in 3,264 districts of 3,576 gave Barbour 716,355 and Ely 638,063.

Fish, New Deal Critic, Reelected in New York

New York—(AP)—Representative Hamilton Fish (R), consistent New Deal critic, was reelected in President Roosevelt's home district Tuesday by a 20,000 plurality over Ben Martin (D).

Peeters Wins Over Collar In Register of Deeds Race

Kaukauna—Winning 32 of 46 precincts and piling up a margin of 2,473 votes Stephen M. Peeters of Little Chute, Republican candidate for register of deeds, decisively defeated Incumbent Arthur L. Collar of Hortonville, up for reelection on the Democratic slate, with four precincts unreported.

The third precinct to report gave the winner an edge over Collar and he was never headed.

Peeters was especially strong in Appleton and Little Chute, polling 945 in the latter to clinch the office. Armin B. Scheurle of Appleton, running independently, was a poor third, collecting only 1,465 votes. Scheurle failed to carry a precinct, and was defeated by both his opponents in his home ward.

Lappen Beats Verstegen in Sheriff Race

Dohr Has 96 Vote Lead; 4 Precincts Still are Missing

District Attorney Contest With W. L. Crow Still in Doubt

With 46 precincts out of 50 recorded, Raymond P. Dohr, Democratic candidate for district attorney, picked up about 900 votes as late precincts from Kaukauna, Little Chute and Kimberly reported to forge ahead of William L. Crow, Republican candidate, by 96 votes in Tuesday's elections.

Four precincts were to be heard from as the Post-Crescent went to press, the town of Ellington, the town of Vandenberg and two Kaukauna precincts leaving the possibility of a win for either candidate.

Dohr, the incumbent, trailed throughout the entire race until precincts from the eastern end of the county began to report. He picked up his loss in two Kaukauna precincts, an Appleton precinct, Kimberly and Little Chute. Totals with 46 precincts in were 8,357 for Dohr and 8,261 for Crow.

Dohr took a slight lead as Bear Creek, the first precinct to report, came in giving him a 52 to 39 margin. His lead lengthened to 66 votes in the next report but Crow went into the lead as he picked up margins in the towns of Liberty and Maine and with five precincts in Crow led 290 to 272 votes.

Crow continued to pace Dohr as he piled up leads in the town of Seymour and Osborn but Dohr came back and carried the Third ward in New London, 198 to 75 and

Straesen Victor in Minnesota Fight

Republican Ousts Farmer-Labor Governor Elmer A. Benson

Minneapolis—(AP)—A 31-year-old county attorney, Harold E. Stassen, today apparently had led the Republican party back into power in Minnesota when he surged into a mounting lead over Farmer-Labor Governor Elmer A. Benson, seeking reelection.

With 946 of 3,740 precincts reported the vote was: Stassen (R) 213,058; Benson (FL) 135,963; and Thomas Gallagher (D) 21,499.

Stassen also apparently was pulling Republican state candidates right along with him as Farmer-Labor minor party office holders found themselves behind large leads in nearly every contest. There were no contests for the United States senate in Minnesota in yesterday's election.

If the present trend holds up the Farmer-Labor party, which swept into power in 1930 when it was led by the late Floyd B. Olson, will be given its most severe setback since its rise to dominance in Minnesota.

Stassen, during the campaign, charged Governor Benson with radicalism and boss rule. The governor countered with charges that he Republicans were backed by the steel trusts and incited class hatred in the campaign.

Governor Benson claimed support from President Roosevelt while Gallagher, the Democratic nominee who trailed far in the rear, also claimed New Deal support.

Peeters Wins Over Collar In Register of Deeds Race

With 46 precincts reported Peeters' total was 8,984. Collar's 8,511 and Scheurle's 1,434.

Peeters and Collar each received 67 votes as the first precinct, Hortonville, reported with Collar taking a lead of 7 as Black Creek gave him 43 to Peeters' 38. Combined Locks swung the edge back to Peeters, the Little Chute candidate, polling 99 to Collar's 34 to lead 204 to 148. With 10 precincts in at 9:45 Peeters totaled 764 to his main rival's 605. Scheurle, who had fallen behind at the start with 13, had 52 at this point.

The first Appleton vote, from precinct No. 1 of the Fourth ward, gave Peeters 106 to Collar's 95, with Scheurle counting 21, and with 15 precincts in showed Peeters 1,280

Republican Incumbent Is Given Overwhelming Majority BESTS 2 RIVALS

Verstegen, Democrat, Runs Second and Smith, Unionite, Is Third

THE WINNERS Sheriff—John F. Lappen, Republican.

District Attorney—Raymond P. Dohr, Democrat. (Leading by 96 votes with four precincts missing).

Treasurer—Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican.

Assembly, First District—Mark S. Catlin, Jr., Republican.

Assembly, Second District—William J. Gantter, Republican.

Coroner—Dr. Herbert E. Ellsworth, Republican.

Clerk—John E. Hantschel, Republican. (Unopposed).

Surveyor—Robert M. Connelly, Democrat. (Unopposed).

Sheriff John Lappen, Republican, was reelected for his second successive term yesterday when he ran up a total of 10,485 votes in 46 out of 50 precincts, to beat two opponents, Joseph W. Verstegen, Democrat, and Robert O. Smith, Unionite. Verstegen garnered 5,961 votes in 46 precincts, while Smith trailed a poor third with 1,057 votes in the 46 precincts reported.

Besides the term he is now completing as sheriff, Lappen also served part of a term upon appointment and a full 2-year term upon election.

Three unopposed candidates, John E. Hantschel, Republican, county clerk; Sydney M. Shannon, Republican, clerk of courts; and Robert M. Connelly, Democrat, surveyor, were returned to office with a substantial number of votes. Hantschel polled 13,372, Shannon 12,971, and Connelly 8,133 in 46 precincts which reported.

Lappen took an early lead that was never threatened. His vote advantage grew with the number of precincts that reported. His lead with nearly half the precincts in was almost three to one for Verstegen, his nearest opponent.

Lappen in Lead. Lappen took the lead when returns from the first precinct came in. He polled 50 to Verstegen's 38 in the precinct, Bear Creek.

With five precincts in, Lappen showed 373 to Verstegen's 216. Smith was already a poor third with 22.

Lappen pushed his total to 1,469 with 13 precincts in. His lead was almost three times the vote for Verstegen, 520. Smith continued to trail with 71.

Combined Locks gave Lappen 25 votes while Verstegen polled 113. The town of Liberty swung for Lappen 91 votes to 16 for Verstegen. Black Creek also gave Lappen the majority, 143 to 36 for Verstegen. The same was true for Shiocton with 186 votes for Lappen and 41 for Verstegen. In the Third ward at New London, Lappen netted 223 to 52 for the Democratic nominee.

The trend toward Lappen continued as the huge vote given Republicans in the county piled up. A. A. the twenty-third precinct checked in Lappen's total had climbed to 4,905 with Verstegen trailing with 1,631 and Smith was 357.

Lappen's early lead was boosted as the city of Appleton returns were made. He was given overwhelming majorities over his two opponents. With 39 precincts in Lappen had 8,356 votes. Verstegen 3,462 and Smith 735.

Hantschel Vote Heavy. Hantschel was given a satisfying vote though he was unopposed. The third ward of New London gave him 240 and the town of Seymour 177. In Appleton he received 684 in the first precinct of the First ward and 397 in the third precinct of the same ward. The first precinct, Third ward gave him 422.

Shannon's vote, like Hantschel's, also showed the Republican trend in the county voting yesterday. The Republican clerk of courts was given 236 votes in the Third ward, New London, while he trailed 697 in the second precinct, First ward, Appleton, and 531 in the third precinct, Sixth ward, Appleton.

While Connelly's total was smaller than that of either of the unopposed Republicans, the unopposed Democratic surveyor was given substantial support in a good share of the precincts. He polled 223 votes in the town of Liberty, 335 in the town of Bovina and 488 in the town of Seymour.

Republicans Win In Keystone State Election Battle

Governor Earle Concedes Victories of Davis And James

Philadelphia —(AP)—Pennsylvania swung back into the Republican column today.

As returns pushed the Democratic slate steadily farther behind, New Deal Governor George H. Earle early this morning conceded his defeat for the United States senate by the white-haired veteran, Republican Senator James J. Davis.

Then, to the victorious Republican choice for governor, red-haired Arthur H. James, superior court judge from Plymouth, Pa., Earle also conceded victory in a telegram which read:

"My heartiest congratulations and deepest sympathy."

At that time—shortly before 1 a. m.—the count from Tuesday's voting stood:

For governor—(5,164 of 8,079 state election districts): Judge James 1, 336,474; Charles Alvin Jones, Democrat, 1,177,301.

For United States senate—(5,126 districts): Senator Davis 1,356,063; Governor Earle 1,136,273.

Republican State

Pennsylvania was solidly Republican from 1895 until 1934, when Earle, a youngster to politics, member of a prominent and wealthy Philadelphia family and a former Republican, led a Democratic state ticket to triumph in a flying campaign.

He teamed with United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey in that year's precedent-shattering success.

Two years later, under the banner of President Roosevelt, the Democratic party swept to a still more convincing victory.

The Democratic campaigners came down to the vote drive terminated yesterday holding forth as their chief issue "Democratic liberalism versus Republican reaction; the New Deal against the old."

Judge James and Senator Davis, while assailing much New Deal legislation, also hit hard at charges exchanged among Democrats themselves in last spring's bitter Democratic primary.

Sheboygan, Union party candidate received 197 votes.

Although the city of Menasha voted Democrat in most instances, Keefe carried the city by a margin of 13 votes. He received 1,078 to 1,065 for Reilly. Poll was third 244. Neenah continued as a Republican town giving Keefe nearly 2,000 votes. He received 1,905 ballots, to 740 for Reilly and 418 for Poll.

Murray Conceded Win

In the seventh district of which Waupaca county is a part, Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, was conceded the election at 3 o'clock this morning by Gerald Boileau, Wausau, Progressive incumbent. The returns at that time gave Murray 18,548 votes to 12,924 for Boileau. James T. Cavanaugh, Democrat, had 3,347.

Waupaca county's vote, with 32 of 47 precincts in, gave Murray 4,780 votes, Boileau 2,030 and Cavanaugh 249.

Johns led throughout the evening with Outagamie county's margin, 6,227 to 3,326 for Schneider and 2,594 for Cashman from 39 of 50 precincts, playing a big part. The congressman-elect grabbed off a lead with the first return of the evening and carried almost every precinct. Johns also led in Marinette, Door and Oconto counties.

Brown county gave Cashman a boost with 6,566 votes to 4,767 for Johns and 3,326 for Schneider. Cashman also carried Manitowish county over Schneider with Johns third but the margin was small. Cashman received 3,769 votes, Schneider 3,652 and Johns 3,056 in 28 of 41 precincts.

In Kewaunee county, Cashman led in five of fourteen precincts. The vote was Cashman 590, Johns 437 and Schneider 157.

Florence county went for Schneider in six of eight precincts with 3,474 for Schneider, 125 for Johns and 38 for Cashman.

Forest county also was for Schneider with 426 votes to 318 for Johns and 311 for Cashman. They were from 10 of 14 precincts.

Door county, with returns coming, gave Johns 2,312, Schneider 1,157 and Cashman 1,104.

Oconto county, with 21 of 34 precincts in gave Johns 1,521, Schneider 1,279 and Cashman 1,103.

MAY WIN 7 SEATS

Milwaukee —(AP)—Republicans were making a strong bid for seven of Wisconsin's 10 congressional seats early in returns today from Tuesday's general election.

Incomplete returns placed Republican nominees in the lead in four districts now represented by Progressives, in two now represented by Democrats and in the first district for the seat vacated by Rep. Thomas Amlie (Prog.).

Progressive incumbents B. J. Gehrmann in the 10th district and Merlind Hull in the ninth district held substantial leads, and Progressive Paul Gauer led four other candidates including Rep. Ray Cannon, who ran as an independent Democrat after his defeat in the primary, in the fourth (Milwaukee) district.

Stephen Bolles, Janesville editor and Republican nominee, paced the field in the first district with a 3 to 1 lead over his nearest rival.

The closest race was in the second district where Charles Hawks Jr., Republican, held a margin of 100 votes over the incumbent, Rep. Harry Southoff (Prog.).

Returns by districts:

Second—143 of 283 precincts: Southoff (Prog.) 14,226; Gerth (Dem.) 2,944; Hawks (Rep.) 14,326.

Collar 989 and Scheurle 100. With four of the next five precincts reporting from Appleton, Peeters picked up almost 500 votes, having 2,558 to Collar's 1,826, while Scheurle totaled 460 to 20 precincts were added at midnight.

Peeters added to his edge as the next 10 precincts came in, and at the 30 mark had a comfortable margin of 4,519 to 3,298. Scheurle climbed to 850. The next five precincts were fairly even, with Peeters adding only 67 to his lead. With 35 precincts accounted for the winner had 5,294 to Collar's 3,396, and Scheurle's 984.

With 39 precincts reporting Peeters was victorious in all but 14. Hortonville, Collar's town, went for him 283 to Peeters' 71 and Scheurle's 4. The incumbent won 1,355 in the red, with 4,856 to Peeters' 6,211. Scheurle was a poor third with 1,167.

When Kimberly, the 44th precinct to report, came in, Peeters had picked up 338 more votes and led 7,816 to 6,123. Scheurle rose to 1,434.

Little Chute, the 45th, to report, clinched the race for its Peeters by giving him a margin of 734 ballots, 945 to 208. Scheurle could garner only 5.

The Republican candidates, Mrs. Helen Z. M. Rodgers and Richard B. Scandrett, were only 20,000 votes apart but about 350,000 behind Mrs. O'Day.

the town of Kaukauna, 91 to 29. The totals with 12 precincts reporting gave Crow a lead of 158 votes, 978 against 820 for his opponent.

The towns of Cicero, Deer Creek and Oneida gave Crow slight margins but the first precinct to report, as to the first precinct of the Fourth ward, gave its support to Dohr. With 10 precincts reporting, the totals were 1,410 for Crow against 1,188 votes for Dohr, a margin of 222 votes.

Dohr picked up most of his losses when the second precinct of the Third ward, Appleton, brought his total to within 33 votes of Crow's, 1,616 against 1,649 for Crow. The precinct gave Dohr 423 votes against 239 for Crow.

Crow came back strongly as more Appleton precincts and a few from the county reported and began to pile up a margin that reached 1,036 votes with 33 precincts reporting. Crow reported gains steadily except for precincts at Seymour, the town of Freedom, Hortonville, Buchanan and Greenville where Dohr received slight margins. With 33 precincts in Crow led Dohr, 5,114 to 4,078.

Dohr Narrowed

Dohr carried four out of the next seven precincts and narrowed the margin to 882 votes with 41 precincts in. Dohr carried the second precinct of the Fifth ward, the first precinct of the Third ward, the town of Grand Chute and the town of Center. The totals with 41 precincts were 7,133 for Crow and 6,271 for Dohr.

The tide of the battle turned when precincts from Kaukauna, Little Chute and Kimberly reported and Dohr took a lead of 96 votes with 46 precincts reporting. He wiped out the margin by picking up 70 votes in the Third ward, Kaukauna, 112 in the first precinct of the Fourth ward, Appleton, 301 at Kimberly, 422 at Little Chute and 51 in the Fourth ward, Kaukauna. Dohr's total with 46 precincts in was 8,357 votes against 8,261 for Crow.

New York—(AP)—The presidential purge of John J. O'Connor, chairman of the house rules committee who was denied Democratic nomination but adopted by Republicans in the primary, was completed today by the election of James H. Fay to congress from the 16th New York district. Fay, an outspoken exponent of the New Deal, won O'Connor's seat by 24,513 votes to 20,681.

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth Reelected To County Coroner's Post

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Appleton, incumbent coroner, was the overwhelming choice of Outagamie county voters in yesterday's elections and polled 10,381 votes with 44 precincts reporting to defeat Russell Johnson, Shiocton, who polled 3,950 ballots.

Dr. Ellsworth's reelection was never in doubt. His opponent carried only three precincts and tied one of those reporting. The candidates were tied at 146 votes in the town of Freedom and Johnson carried Shiocton, the town of Bovina and the town of Kaukauna.

Dr. Ellsworth garnered a lead of 13 votes in the first precinct to report, Bear Creek, and paced Johnson throughout the race. With five precincts in he led 358 to 255, a margin of 103 votes. As 12 precincts reported, Dr. Ellsworth piled up a margin of 466 ballots with the totals 1,089 against 623 for Johnson.

Gains for Dr. Ellsworth in eight more precincts gave him a margin of 4,000 votes with 30 precincts reporting. The totals at that point were 6,077 against 2,088 for Johnson. Gains in three more precincts gave Ellsworth a total of 7,169 against 2,507 for Johnson. A scattering of precincts from the county, several from Appleton and two from Kaukauna gave Dr. Ellsworth his total of 10,384 votes with 44 precincts in.

LEADS IN MICHIGAN

Former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican, pictured above, early today was leading Governor Frank Murphy by a comfortable margin in Michigan's election, a large proportion of the vote in the industrial areas, where Murphy, the Democratic candidate, is strong, still was unreported.

Outagamie County Gives Wiley Wide Margin Over Foes

Duffy, Ekern Rank in That Order; Chapple Fades Out

Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls attorney who failed at a try for the governor's chair two years ago, got a healthy shove from Outagamie county to help hasten his rush into the office of Wisconsin senator in the 1938 election.

On the Outagamie county arena, as well as throughout the state, the Republican candidate soundly faced his opponents.

F. Ryan Duffy, of Fond du Lac, the incumbent and a New Deal standard bearer, ran second in balloting in the county race, with Herman L. Ekern, Progressive warhorse, finishing third.

John B. Chapple, the conspicuous Ashland editor who campaigned on a Townsend-Republican platform, ran a fading fourth. Fred Bassett Blair, independent Communist, and Joseph Ehrhardt, independent Socialist, were overlooked almost entirely.

When 45 out of the 50 precincts in the county were tallied, the political scoreboard in the senatorial race stood like this:

Wiley 9,234; Duffy 4,482; Ekern 2,701; Chapple 114; Blair 15; Ehrhardt 13.

There Are Exceptions

Wiley, Duffy, and Ekern finished in that order in most of the precincts, of course, although there were some exceptions. In the town of Cicero, for example, Wiley and Ekern ran a dead heat, with 91 apiece, while Duffy received 34.

In the first seven precincts reported from Outagamie county, Wiley tallied 447; Duffy 215; Ekern 156; Chapple 6; Blair and Ehrhardt nothing.

The village of Bear Creek, first to report, proved that it was a criterion of the trend in Outagamie county in the election for United States senator when it gave Wiley a lead of 142 to 82 for Duffy and 13 for Ekern. None of the other three was given a vote.

The Chippewa Falls attorney stretched his lead in Outagamie county still further as the results of voting in the various precincts streamed in.

When 15 had been tallied, 14 of them outside the city and the first precinct in the Fourth ward, the score was: Wiley 1,315; Duffy 672; Ekern 526; Chapple 16; Ehrhardt 6; Blair 0.

Wiley won handily in the county, but he didn't sweep every precinct by any means. For example, the first precinct of the Fourth ward, earliest of the Appleton voting places to report, gave Duffy a vote of 91 to 80 for Wiley and 53 for Ekern. Chapple polled one, while Blair and Ehrhardt went unnoticed.

Chapple didn't qualify as even a mild threat in the county race, as well as in the state. The first two precincts to report, Hortonville and Bear Creek, didn't give him a nod. Fourteen out of the first 42 county precincts to report could furnish nothing opposite his name.

Wiley's support within the city of Appleton was extremely heavy. He polled a towering majority in the second precinct of the First ward, turning in a total of 623, while Duffy had 64, Ekern 59, Chapple just one, Blair and Ehrhardt "goose eggs."

Dionne Quintuplets To Have Operations

Callander, Ontario (Canadian Press) — The Dionne quintuplets will have their tonsils and adenoids removed tomorrow with their own doctors, anxious to retain their confidence, keeping in the background. Their medical guardian, Dr. Allan R. Dafeo, explained the sisters would always associate pain with whoever performs the operations and as both Dr. Alan Brown, child specialist, and himself see the children so often he did not want them "to either fear or dislike us."

The country physician said the actual operations would be performed by "one of the best men in the medical profession."

The operations on the four-and-a-half-year-old sisters will take place in their nursery home.

Fritzen Elected Winnebago County To Assembly From

Brown Easy Winner in Senatorial Race — Niemuth Wins in Oshkosh

Menasha—Carrying all precincts except the city of Menasha which went Democratic, James C. Fritzen, Neenah Republican, was elected assemblyman from the Second district of Winnebago county at the general election Tuesday. Fritzen polled 5,631 votes with William A. Draheim, Neenah, Democrat, second with 3,587 votes. The Progressive candidate, Aaron C. Warren, Neenah, trailed in third place with 1,317 votes.

Sweeping Winnebago county by a tremendous margin, Taylor G. Brown, Oshkosh, won the race for state senator from the nineteenth district, defeating Robert M. Heckner, Menasha, Democrat, and Herbert G. Pitz, blind Oshkosh Progressive nominee. Brown piled up 12,728 votes in Winnebago county to 5,252 for Pitz and 4,138 for Heckner. Nicolas C. Schraa, Oshkosh, Union party candidate, received 242 votes.

Brown also ran ahead in Calumet county, polling 1,856 votes in 12 out of 15 precincts, as compared with 920 for Heckner and 862 for Pitz. Brown's vote in the district was more than the combined vote of his two opponents.

Brown piled up his lead in Oshkosh and in the towns of Winnebago county with Pitz running second. Heckner received a tremendous vote in Menasha, polling 1,452 to 739 for Brown, and 269 for Pitz. Neenah, voting Republican, gave its support to Brown with 1,576 votes but Heckner ran second with 714.

Carroll Oshkosh

With Winnebago county voting Republican, Fritzen carried the city of Oshkosh and all the towns and villages of the county. He also carried five of the six precincts in Neenah. In the second precinct in the First ward Warren collected 273 votes, Fritzen 243, and Draheim 233. Draheim carried all five wards of Menasha, polling 1,389 to 754 for Fritzen and 268 for Warren. Both the towns of Neenah and Menasha voted Republican.

In the city of Neenah, Fritzen received 1,506 votes, Draheim 1,370, and Warren 535.

Leo T. Niemuth, Republican, was reelected assemblyman for the Second district of Winnebago county, receiving more than the combined votes of his two opponents. The city of Oshkosh comprises the Second district. Oshkosh gave Niemuth 7,176 votes to 3,644 for Harold H. Priebe, Progressive, and 1,390 for Howard N. Howe, Democrat. Niemuth carried all except two of the precincts, and they were taken by Priebe.

Neenah Men Fare Badly in Efforts To Win Offices

Republicans Make Clean Sweep in Contests for County Offices

Oshkosh—Three Neenah candidates in the general election Tuesday were defeated in the race for Winnebago county offices and even failed to carry their own city.

In the three way race for clerk of courts, Wyllie J. Rutherford, Neenah Progressive, was second with a total vote of 4,585 trailing Edward C. Abell, Oshkosh Republican, who polled 13,970 votes. William H. Stegeman, Democrat, Oshkosh, drew 3,606.

Martin Potratz Neenah Progressive, was defeated by Dr. G. A. Steele, Oshkosh, Republican incumbent, in a 2-way race for coroner, the former netting 5,401 votes as compared with the latter's 14,059 votes.

George E. Young, Oshkosh, Republican incumbent swamped Richard J. O'Brien, Neenah Democrat, in the campaign for register of deeds. Young got 14,822 votes to O'Brien's 3,916.

In the only other contest on the county ticket, Lewis C. Magnuson, Oshkosh, Republican, incumbent, defeated Franklin D. MacDonald, Oshkosh, Democrat, for district attorney. Magnuson received 13,727 votes to MacDonald's 5,903 votes. The entire county decidedly voted Republican.

The county cast large complimentary votes for the three incumbents who were uncontested. Arthur C. Hedke, Oshkosh, Republican, county clerk, received 15,645, and Earl E. Fuller, Oshkosh, Republican, treasurer, got 15,693, and Paul Neubauer, Oshkosh Republican, sheriff, received 16,097.

Waupaca County Goes Republican By Big Majority

County Republican Ticket Wins — Handrich Loses Assembly Seat

Waupaca county voters returned to office by an overwhelming majority all incumbents on the county slate, and went definitely Republican on the state ticket.

In the contest for sheriff, Duncan R. Campbell, Republican, defeated Earl Cartwright 7,148 to 3,490 in 44 out of 45 precincts, with Raymond B. Wright running a poor third with 418.

Fred R. Fisher, Republican, was elected state senator from the 23rd district with a total of 6,398 votes in 44 precincts of Waupaca county and a lead of 2,103 in 24 out of 35 precincts in Portage county. Jackson, his Progressive opponent, received a total of 3,390 in Waupaca county and 1,930 in 24 Portage county precincts, while Aschenbrenner trailed with 688 votes in Waupaca county and 1,780 votes in the 24 Portage county precincts. This is the first time in a number of years that Waupaca county has elected a Republican senator. Fisher succeeds Herman J. Severson who is retiring in order to succeed Byron B. Park as circuit judge, upon the latter's retirement at the end of the year.

Reid F. Murray was given a majority by his home county, Waupaca, in the race for congressman from the seventh district, leading the Progressive incumbent, Gerald J. Boileau 6,990 to 3,293. Boileau conceded the election to Murray in a telephone message early this morning. Herman H. Behm, also of Waupaca, polled 138 votes on the Townsend-Republican ticket, running behind James T. Cavanaugh, Democrat, who received 400 votes.

Julius Spearbaker defeated the incumbent, Alvin A. Handrich, for the assembly seat by a total of 6,184 to 4,065 with Otto R. Schwan receiving 553. In the county clerk election Leland J. Steiger polled 7,328 votes to defeat Charles H. Cather who received 2,320 and Esther McCarthy trailed with 552.

Leonard J. Stadler, Republican incumbent, piled 8,208 votes to defeat Hans Jensen for county treasurer, who polled 2,331 and Paul E. Roman retained the office of district attorney by a total of 7,087 to 3,644 for Tom A. Browne, Progressive. Dr. John C. Johnson, incumbent coroner, won from Dr. Sam Salan, Progressive, 7,151 to 2,906 and Donald Morrison received 523 votes. Mrs. Alice Larkee was returned to office as register of deeds by a vote of 7,458 to 2,634 for William E. Lipke, and 677 for Nelson D. Demming. Walter E. Hoyord, incumbent surveyor, walked away with 7,110 votes to 843 for Leon P. Pelishek, Democrat.

Heil Rolls Up Lead

Julius P. Heil rolled up a total of 7,240 votes in the gubernatorial race in 44 out of 45 precincts in Waupaca county as against Philip F. LaFollette, 3,618 and Harry W. Bolens' 376. The county consistently voted Republican. Walter S. Goodland polling 6,938 for lieutenant governor, George A. Nelson receiving 2,163 and Max J. Galinski getting 242. Fred R. Zimmerman received 6,422 votes for secretary of state. Theodore Dammann followed with 3,974 and William R. Callahan followed with 508 votes. In the contest for United States senator, F. Ryan Duffy, incumbent, was badly outpointed by both Alexander Wiley and Herman L. Ekern. Wiley receiving 6,727 and Ekern 2,693. John M. Smith led in the race for state treasurer with 6,363 over 3,788 for Solomon Levitan and 443 for Michael J. Cepess, while John E. Martin out-poled his opponents for attorney general with a total of 6,537 to 3,265 for Orland S. Loomis and 673 for James E. Finnegan.

With 10 precincts in, the Republican candidates were leading their nearest opponents, the Progressives, two to one at about 9:30 in the evening. Heil had polled 943 votes to LaFollette's 480, with Bolens trailing with 23 votes, and Wiley was leading Ekern 924 to 429, while Duffy ran a poor third with 90 votes.

In the county state the Republican majority was even more overwhelming. Incumbents were leading their opponents by large figures. Leland J. Steiger polled 1055 votes in the county clerk race to 308 for Cather and 40 for McCarthy; Stadler received 1070 to Hans Jensen's 307, for county treasurer; and Sheriff Campbell got 915 to 461 for Cartwright and 59 for Wright. Dr. John C. Johnson, incumbent coroner was leading Dr. Salan 972 to 375 Ovrom, clerk of circuit court, polled 1093 votes as against 291 for Warnecke, District Attorney Roman led Browne 906 to 493, and Mrs. Larkee, register of deeds, polled 1002 votes to Lipke's 361 and Demming's 35. Hoyord, incumbent surveyor, received 1001 votes against 56 for Pelishek.

Incumbents took a beating in Waupaca county on the state ticket from the governor on down through secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general, and United States senator. The vote was two to one over the Progressives, with the Democrats running far behind.

When 20 precincts had reported, the Republicans had maintained their two to one lead in the state and increased their lead on the county ticket in some cases as high as three and four to one.

At the report on 32 precincts they had continued to pick up votes to maintain their two to one lead. Heil's total being 4,784 to LaFollette's 2,387 and Wiley totaling 4,498 to 1,849 for Ekern. Steiger had left Cather far behind by this time, the former having polled 5,370 while the latter received 1,418. Stadler had piled up a total of 5,468 to Jensen's 1,538, and Campbell had almost exactly doubled Cartwright's votes, the count being 4,699 to 2,347.

Arnold Proposal Control Measure On Advertising

First Definite Plan Which Strikes at Press and Radio, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—For a long time the "brain trust" in the New Deal hereabouts have been trying to think up a way to control the press and the radio and put them at the mercy of political government in the United States, but it remained for Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, to outsmart Rex Tugwell and all the others in the first definite plan which strikes a blow at the press and the radio.

The plan is so direct that it doesn't abridge the freedom of the press clause of the constitution, and yet it makes the late Huey Long, who tried to put a tax on publications of large circulation, look like an amateur. For the supreme court of the United States held the Louisiana law to be discriminatory and as an attempt to hurt the press, but it is doubtful whether the newspapers or radio will have any legal standing in objecting to the Arnold plan. They are indirectly affected this time.

Briefly, the plan is to declare that large companies which have more money than their competitors will be prevented from using their capital resources to advertise for sales against competitors. They can use their advertising money for the promotion of sales for consumption as a whole, Mr. Arnold Avers, but when it comes to advertising a particular product or their own good will or reputation back of a particular trade name, this is considered now by the department of justice to be "fostering monopoly."

Source of Revenue
In other words, political government will seek to say how much advertising money shall be spent by advertisers, and since it is a well known fact that advertising money offsets much of the expense of radio entertainment and news-papers and magazine publications, the new plan has it all over the other plans of the New Dealers by striking directly at the principal source of revenue of many publications and the radio.

Where does the department of justice get the authority to decide who shall be permitted to advertise and how much? Not from any law, it is admitted. But the absence of a specific statute is no hindrance to the Arnold plan. The technique is simple. A large company finds itself the victim of trumped-up charges with respect to the anti-trust law. Mere bigness makes it easy to find some technicality on which to bring a charge. Then the company, unless it wants its officials indicted under the criminal section of the anti-trust laws, with all the disgrace that goes with standing trial, will be offered its choice as between a so-called "consent decree" or a public trial.

Consent Decree
If the consent decree is accepted, then it is not enough, says Mr. Arnold that the defendant shall agree to refrain from doing that which he may be charged with doing. He has to promise more. He has to agree to do something which the Sherman anti-trust law admittedly doesn't cover. But the price of letting him off is his willingness to refrain from doing something that is lawful, but which the department of justice may believe is not in the public interest.

If that something happens to be that the defendant must agree not to use his capital and resources against a smaller competitor, the effect of the consent decree will be to tie his hands against competition by advertising particular products. The whole idea is to penalize big business. For example, is an extract from the official announcement of the department of justice in connection with the auto finance company judgments at South Bend, Ind. It is signed by Mr. Arnold and approved by the attorney general.

May be Precedent
The effect in the present cases may be a most important precedent.

"If Calvin had his way we'd have waited till he knew what the Administration was going to do"

deals in preventing the misuse of advertising power in other fields. Monopoly is fostered when advertising is used to put competitors at a disadvantage for the sole reason that they do not have resources sufficient to expend equally large sums in advertising particular products or the services of particular companies.

The statement goes on to say that, by a variety of methods, "advertising is used to build up public preference for the products of one producer or manufacturer solely because he has the most advertising money and can make the most noise. To meet the monopoly control which this advertising gives, the anti-trust laws are by themselves inadequate." Such a method of advertising has never been held to be violative of the anti-trust laws, and the legality of its use, in the absence of positive fraud, has not been questioned. Nevertheless, the purpose of the anti-trust laws will be furthered if advertising is limited to its proper function of building up consumption and if restrictions are placed against its use for the purpose of giving a monopoly advantage to the competitor with the largest pocketbook.

Waste or Monopoly
"Where advertising stresses the peculiar qualities of common goods under a particular trade name, competitors must either go out of business or spend like large sums in building up their own trade names for the same common commodity. The result is either a wasteful system of distribution on the one hand or monopoly on the other."

So even though there is no legal sanction for the step, the department of justice is going to use its powers of criminal prosecution to obtain indictments and then will demand at the point of a gun, so to speak, that national companies which have made a success shall stop advertising till weak competitors can catch up with them or face prosecutions.

This is New Deal government nowadays and it is incredible that the president could have sanctioned any such program, but it is one of the many things that happen under a 1-man government which is too big for one man to administer. If the government is to undertake to penalize success and equalize competition, it may have to cause the successful concerns to limit also the number of salesmen they can employ and to cause them to refrain from saying to a customer anything which boosts a particular product. That's the logical conclusion which may be derived from the Arnold plan to control competition and business in America.

Gray Hair tells tales

But Canute Water Keeps Your Secret!

If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. In from 1 to 3 applications (depending on shade), it will be completely re-colored... similar to its former natural shade. All in one day, if you wish. After that, a single treatment, only once a month, will keep it that way.

You may then curl, wave or set your hair — or get a permanent — if you like. The color is also proof against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

Canute Water is pure, colorless and crystal-clear, and will leave your hair clean and natural to the touch. Even you, yourself, will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. You will be delighted to see how completely Canute Water solves your problem.

No Skin Test Needed
A noted Scientist tested Canute Water at one of America's outstanding Universities and proved it to be perfectly harmless. It is so safe and pure that it has never injured a single user in 24 years. You don't even need a skin test before using.

Canute Water is the only preparation ever discovered for re-coloring gray hair which has such a long record of safety and the harmlessness of which has been confirmed by scientific evidence.

No other preparation can make this claim
Is it any wonder that we sell more Canute Water than all other hair coloring preparations combined?

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Madison—The 1938 campaigns are over, and today the ballots will tell. For the observer who has tried to watch the state political scene objectively and carefully during the last few months, it is hard to present any observations or conclusions which will not sound baral at today's climax. There is little to be said that hasn't been said.

How even, there are a couple of items which may be interesting to consider on the day when the campaign which has been variously called the bitterest, and the most uninteresting, in recent state history, ends.

First: the absence of a Socialist ballot to carry the "protest" vote. For many years, hardly anyone can doubt, the Socialist column drew many marks which were not drawn by upholders of the Marxian idea. Rather they were penciled by citizens who were dissatisfied at the other offerings placed before them by the major parties. This year that avenue is gone. So where will the votes go, or will they stay at home?

CANDIDATES EXAMINED
By all appearances the greatest popular interest this year is in the contest for governor. And curiously enough, in the opinion of this department, that contest should today have provided a large number of the protestants just mentioned.

For no matter what your political persuasion is, it is granted that all three of the candidates for the state's highest office are not arousing the greatest enthusiasm in all quarters of their political organizations.

Take Phil LaFollette. You don't have to walk around the block in your yard to find a Progressive who is dissatisfied with the governor. And you wouldn't have to search far to find one who would vote against him if a suitable alternative were offered.

LaFollette has changed. No longer is he the flaming champion of the underdog, the crusading son of a fighting father. He has settled into the routine of politics. Three terms in the governor's chair have tamed him, and many complain, have educated him too thoroughly in the ways of the politician. The Progressive party chief no longer preaches against the utility companies, the banks, the big corporations. Rather he is making an uncomfortable number of friends among the class which the LaFollette movement always regarded as an enemy.

His actions stir up resentment among those of his followers who think he has lost the path of true liberalism. His patronage methods, the indecisive radicalism in his new party platform, the famous pension letters, the men he has appointed to office, all of them have accumulated a psychology of dissatisfaction among some of the Progressive liberals which is in strong contrast to the idyllic which he inspired in his organization say four years ago when the new state party was organized.

"JULIUS THE JUST"
At the same time you can find in that same ward a Republican rank and file who will admit with alacrity that Julius P. Heil is not the best man the Republicans could have offered for the choicest political office in the state.

That Republican could find many solid objections to the G. O. P. candidate. First his political background is exceedingly hazy. Beyond contributing to the party's campaign chests, Heil has not figured in state politics. Then has boasted, repeatedly, that it is his firm conviction that the methods which made him a successful big businessman will make of him a good governor. It doesn't take a political scientist to explode that contention.

Heil, too, has given strong evidence that his vanity rather than a desire to serve the people of Wisconsin dictated his candidacy. His political philosophy, as given in his speeches—which is the only standard available to the voter—is largely negative. Certainly it contributes no likely suggestions for the solution of the problems which the governor of Wisconsin must face during the next two years.

HUMOROUS HARRY
That leaves Harry Bolens, the Democratic choice for governor. What does the Democratic voter who thinks independently think of him?

First, he cannot omit the unimpressive manipulations which finally gave him the nomination from a desperate party leadership, the Fox endorsement, the Fox defeat, the Henry nomination, the Henry withdrawal, finally the Bolens acceptance.

Politics requires realistic thinking. So another observation would be that Senator Bolens is 74 years of age, possibly older than any other candidate who ever sought the executive chair in the capitol.

Second is the patent fact that Bolens by instinct and by all his actions in public life is a conservative.

Willard 13 Plate Battery $3.95 And Your Old Battery GIBSON TIRE CO.

live, although he wants the Democrats to believe that he is a firm devotee of liberalism as represented by the Roosevelt New Deal.

Third is the fact that only a miracle can give the Democrats control of Wisconsin, or the governorship, this year.

In consequence, there should be a good many half-hearted votes cast today in all three parties.

NO DECISION
To those thoughtful citizens of Wisconsin who had been led to believe earlier this year that state politics this fall would be returned to an intelligent and intelligible footing, that voters would once more be offered straight alternative choices, the campaign has been a disappointment in another way. For to them the election will decide nothing; almost anyone could have forecast that whoever wins state office will be a minority winner.

Unless the Democrats show even less strength than most observers expected of them, the victor will represent only a minority of the state's electors. The combined vote of the opposition will be greater than that accorded the winning ticket. Thus this year, as in 1934 and 1936 the state will decide to be ruled by minority politicians. It is the only situation of its kind in the land, and by all appearances is destined to continue.

Champions of Two Leagues to Clash In Armistice Tilt

Kaukauna, St. Mary of Menasha, Will Tangle Friday

Kaukauna — It will be a battle of champions Armistice day as St. Mary's High of Menasha, titlists in the Fox Valley Catholic conference for the second straight year, clash with Kaukauna's Northeastern conference winners on the high school field. The game will conclude the season for both teams.

In conference play the Kaws won five games and lost one, making 73 points to their opponents' 39. The Zephyrs went through their conference season without a defeat, scoring 71 points and holding the enemy to a collective 6, scored by St. Norbert High after St. Mary's had a three touchdown margin.

In addition to its conference record St. Mary's tied Appleton, 6 to 6, and walloped Kimberly, 36 to 12. Neenah dealt them its only defeat, squeezing out a 14 to 13 victory. Kaukauna lost a 12 to 6 game to Sheboygan North in a non-conference opening contest.

Resch Is Star

Bill Resch is the star of the invaders with his hard running and passing, and will give Carl Giordana a battle for individual honors. Giordana, only a sophomore, has averaged more than 5 yards a clip this season and has been the bulwark of the Kaws on defense. He made more than half of the tackles against Menasha in the first half last Saturday, returned a punt 60 yards and threw a pass good for the winning touchdown.

With the conference season over several of the Kaws will be very much in the running for all-conference honors. Giordana simply can't miss, and should be a unanimous choice.

Next to Giordana the most valuable Kaw player probably is Co-Captain Bob Niesen at the blocking back position. The best blocker the Kaws have had in years, his presence was essential to the Kaukauna running attack. His spirit turned the tide in several close games, and he personally blocked a punt and ran it over for the touchdown that dethroned Shawano's defense.

Powertful Tackles

At a tackle post big Sherm Powers improved rapidly from came to game and now is undoubtedly of all conference calibre. No harder tackler has been seen this year. Co-Captain Leroy Frank at the other tackle never reached his peak until the last two games, and will be handicapped by his earlier performances.

Leo Wolfe at center has been a surprise. Guelter of Shawano was supposed to be this year's choice, but Wolfe outplayed him and everyone else he opposed.

Council to Act On Sale of Bonds

Confirmation of Purchase By Chicago Firm Is Expected

Kaukauna—A resolution confirming the sale of $82,000 of refunding bonds to White, Phillips and Company of Chicago is slated for approval as the common council meets tomorrow evening at the municipal building. The council adjourned last Tuesday to tomorrow for the express purpose of approving the issue, and although the session is a regular one there is little likelihood of other business coming up.

The Chicago concern bid a premium of $220 on the issue at an interest rate of 2 1/2 per cent to take the flotation away from four other bidders, three of Chicago and one of Madison, after a spirited auction.

The resolution will provide for the issuing of 82 bonds of $1,000 each, dated October 1, 1938. They will mature serially, $10,000 falling due on April 1 of 1942, and 1943; $5,000 on April 1 of from 1944 to 1953; $10,000 on April 1, 1954 and $2,000 on April 1 of 1955.

The money will be used to pay off an $82,000 debt now with the state land commission. As the city was under an interest rate of 4 per cent, savings of at least $14,000 are estimated under the new loan by city officials.

CHAMPIONS—AND MORE

Richly deserved congratulations have been pouring in on Lawrence college football players and their coach for a season that ended last Saturday with undisputed possession of the Midwest conference championship. The story of how an almost irreducible squad performed a miracle has been told and grows sweeter with the re-telling.

Very likely the Lawrence team and Coach Heseltun are not yet aware that their courage and skill have brought Lawrence college something besides a conference championship. We refer to a new spirit that has been manifesting itself ever since the season got under way, and that was culminated yesterday in a student "strike" such as the campus has not seen in years. We heartily approve of the demonstration by Lawrence students, and we hope it marks the beginning of a higher morale that will aid materially in carrying out the developments outlined earlier this year by President barrows. It "takes a heap o' living to make a home," and it takes a heap o' spirit to make any good educational plant really serve its purpose.

Certainly, at any rate, the student outburst yesterday was a far cry from an attempted "victory demonstration" at a large eastern university last week which sputtered out when a majority of the undergraduates shrugged their shoulders and went on to classes, knowing full well that their football team is strictly a business proposition.

GAMBLING LAWS ARE RUSTY

Down at Chicago Armando Dalfino, a gambling operator, was duly arrested for persisting in his unlawful business despite notice and warning.

When it appeared that the prosecutor was in earnest Mr. Dalfino demanded a jury.

Upon the trial two officers swore that they had bet on a horse race with Dalfino and produced their tickets. Further testimony was to the effect that all formalities of the law had been complied with and the prosecutor pointed to the statute which prohibited the transaction.

Here it was that the Patrick Henry in the defense lawyer asserted itself and to the jury he declared:

"The legislature never intended that the gambling law be enforced. The law is discriminatory between individuals. We cannot have one law for the rich, and one for the poor. The working man, the man in overalls, has just as much sporting blood as the rich man. But he cannot afford to go to the track and pay a big admission fee. He must go to his neighborhood bookmaker to make his bet."

To this argument, which resulted in an acquittal of the accused although he didn't even deny the offense, the Chicago Daily News spoke editorially:

"In other words, the forgotten man in overalls, if he wants to contribute his bit toward improving the breed of American horseflesh, on Mr. Skidmore's horse farm, must go to the Johnson-Skidmore apartment and lay it on the line. He must not be discriminated against because he wears overalls, or because his family, as a result of his sporting 'instincts,' may be forced to content themselves with a soup bone for Sunday dinner instead of a tasty mess of spareribs and sauerkraut. He is just as good a man as any season box holder at Arlington, in the eyes of the law, and his right to be a sucker must not be questioned. The right of the Johnson-Skidmore game to fleece him out of the product of his toil must not be abridged. The syndicate must be permitted to rob him with the same impunity with which it robs the rich."

"That is the new Chicago Bill of Rights, as drafted by the crooks and gamblers, and proclaimed by their attorneys:

Article I. There's one born every minute.

Article II. Never give a sucker a break.

Article III. Soak the rich—but don't discriminate against the poor: soak them too."

Before we get down to the Chicago level it would be smart to read over our gambling laws and see whether they are wise or foolish, whether they are enforceable or frivolous, whether we want them or should revise them.

It is impractical not to divide gambling into different classes because there are different classes. Most men from President down like a companionable game of poker with just enough stakes to whet the appetite but not enough to hurt the loser.

Yet, in Wisconsin, this is gambling. Most men are willing to stake a cigar or a dollar upon the outcome of some athletic contest in which the public's interest has become warm.

Yet, in Wisconsin, this is gambling.

Our laws are puritanically strict. And when laws are too strict they react and destroy the very purpose they were written to accomplish.

There isn't anything wrong with men betting while bets remain fun. There is something very much the matter, however, with a law that makes fun of this sort.

And the wrong with the law is not in prohibiting something that cannot be stopped but in encouraging constant and professional lawbreakers to coin men's natural wish for frivolity into organized rackets that are so crooked they would make a loop look straight.

Here, we know, is another one of those subjects upon which it is difficult to obtain legislative action simply because there is no vote appeal to an improvement of this order however critically it may be demanded by the condition of the times.

And yet as we look upon the usually intelligent countenances of the men who run for the legislature in Wisconsin we cannot deny ourselves the hope that they will take over the sensibilization of our gambling laws which are now quite devoid of sense.

SCARED TO DEATH

If John W. Deering who was executed by a Salt Lake City firing squad for murder was not the worst of those called Bad Men he at least was ignorant of his softness. For Deering insisted that he was wicked, so wicked that he wanted to rid the world of his evil presence.

It appeared somewhat ghoulish for the scientists to attach electric wires to his pulse to see just what happened when even a bad man faced death. It looked like one of those experiments that are suggested by curiosity without any chance of learning anything worth while. But it turned out otherwise.

Before marching to the place of execution Mr. Deering's pulse was 72, calm and normal. When he turned and looked upon the guns it shot to 180, a figure that could be counted only by a mechanism. The tough man was melting. The devil in him was running. The bravado with which he had curled his cynical lip at the world had disappeared. Death was about to enter. And Death is still no laughing matter.

The experiment with Mr. Deering might be used advantageously to support the need of trained, armed forces. It shows why great droves of strong men will sometimes fly in a panic. Yet, we dare say, had Mr. Deering been schooled to face death on a great many occasions his pulse would not have run so high, and probably after long training might have remained close to normal, despite the haunting fear. The incident indicates that high commands in training soldiers are obviously right in concealing from them nothing of the horror and brutality of actual conflict. Because only in this manner can their nerves be steered to face the actuality unflinchingly.

And now we probably know in scientific detail why great army commanders always want veterans instead of the quickly trained levies and however high spirited or patriotic the latter may be.

MILLIONS TO PENNIES

An enterprising reporter produces statistics to show that New York City's laundry bill is $60,000,000 a year.

The sum reflects highly commendable zeal in the business of keeping clean.

When subjected to a little analysis, however, the figures offer little indication concerning the state of cleanliness of individual New Yorkers. Figuring the Greater City's population as 6,500,000, and supposing, arbitrarily, that each New Yorker spent equal amounts on his laundry, each would spend $9.23 a year, or 77 cents a month or 19 cents a week.

Nineteen cents is a long way from 60 millions, is it not?

Something of the same ratio results if one takes the time and trouble to apply the "share-the-wealth" theory to the same mathematical analysis as used on New York's laundry bill. The billions that are presumed to be held in the United States are quickly reduced to fractions of hundreds when divided up among the nation's 130,000,000 individuals.

SUSIE'S BIRTHDAY

Susie had a birthday!
All the aunts came.
And her grandmas brought her
Dollies and a game.
Mother's present was a
Table set for tea:
Everything for Susie's Hospitality!

Now with little Susie,
Sunday afternoons.
We sit down to cookies,
Cambric tea and prunes;
Watching our small hostess
Do as ladies do,
Pouring tea demurely
Though she is just two!

There are many pictures
In our gallery.
Hanging in the sunlight
Of fond memory!
But the one we love best
Is a table spread
For a tea, with Susie
Smiling at the head!

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—Britannia Rules the Waves: The "American" theatre, as represented on Broadway, is definitely British today, if you want to make an issue of it. There is a smattering of French influence here and there, and a dash of Russian; and if you try hard enough you can even find some American; but the big things on Awful Avenue this November are from the land of Chamberlain, Churchill and Chutney.

The role of the Great Emancipator in "Abe Lincoln of Illinois," which looks now like the next Pulitzer Prize winner, is played not by a sterling Yankee but by the competent Mr. Raymond Massey of His Majesty's Dominion of Canada.

Maurice Evans, from the British Isles, is the Melancholy Dane in the full-length "Hamlet," written, much to nobody's surprise, by that earlier Englander, Mr. W. Shakespeare; and even were it written by Francis Bacon, it would still be British.

"I Have Been Here Before," another of the November plays, is by the English J. B. Priestley, with the British Wilfrid Lawson giving Yankee actors a sound lesson in how to perform.

"Knights of Song," which came to Broadway from tryouts in Pasadena and St. Louis, is a play about two gentlemen of Merrie England, the Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan, with music and words by them. "Bachelor Born," holding over from last season, is British-written.

"Oscar Wilde," a play by Englishmen about an Englishman, gives theatregoers the best acting of the season in the performance that Robert Morley—an Englishman—gives to the name role.

Even the American actress, Helen Hayes, is playing the part of an English queen in "Victoria Regina," whose author is English; and the 100 per cent American Federal Theatre, supported by the United States government, is producing "H.M.S. Pinafore, or the Lass Who Loved a Sailor," which is as British as Yorkshire pudding.

Of course, if you really must be patriotic in your show-going, there is the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden this week—the horse show, headlined by those sterling American riders—the Royal Canadian Dragoons!

Ain't Education Grand:

Newsboys used to shout: "Poiper, Mister? All about the Moirer! Wuxtree! Poiper!"

That was before newsboys had to go to school and learn the dignity of four and five syllable words.

Emerging from the Lyceum theatre the other night, I saw a newsboy of Our Wonderful New Era approaching. He was neatly clad, with a white collar, new suit and a fresh shave, and he carried the late editions of the morning tabloids in an orderly bundle under his arm.

He was shouting, as newsboys always have shouted, but he was not shouting "Moirer" or "Poiper." In line with the best precepts of present day education, he was appealing to the higher element of penny spenders.

"Some More Extenuating Circumstances!" he cried.

Wood—But Not Holly-wood:

I see by the papers that Cecil B. DeMille is having no luck in his search for a wooden Indian for the new picture he is making. The trouble with Mr. DeMille is, he doesn't look in the right places. The woods are full of wooden Indians.

By no stretch of the imagination can Harrison be catalogued as a wooden Indian expert, but nevertheless he can tell Mr. DeMille where to find the same.

Bill Hardy is one standing austere at the entrance of his "Gay Nineties" cafe on East 54th street. If Mr. DeMille cares to look further, let him hunt up the executors of the estate of the late Chauncey Olcott, who made America Mother Macreth-conscious, was a wooden Indian enthusiast. When he died he had a background full of them out in Michigan some place. The next time you need something, Mr. DeMille, I shall expect to hear from you. Anything, Mr. DeMille, anything. Just ask me.

J-A-I-L—OH!

The unpredictable Douglas Hertz—ex-spy chaser, soldier, author, promoter, polo-player, sportsman, showman, and bon vivant—wants to buy the Tombs. He has bid $185,000 for it. He wants to convert it into a Chamber of Horrors. It is his idea to place wax figures of famous prisoners in the cells they occupied while they were Tombs tenants.

When weird ideas are born, Mr. Hertz's head will cradle them.

In The Beginning—

It develops that Broadway has been THE street of Manhattan since the very first. It was exactly 325 years ago this month that white men built their first habitations on Manhattan island; and the site they chose was what is now 41 Broadway.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1928

With 6,578 ballots cast in the general election up to noon that day, Appleton was doing its part in registering one of the largest votes ever cast in nation.

Robert Ebert was elected service officer of James P. Hawley post of the American Legion at a meeting the previous evening at Neenah. Jack Meyer was elected athletic officer. F. J. Schneller, historian, and Otto Lieber, Philip Reimer and Dan Nielsen, members of the finance committee.

Richard "Red" Smith, who was playing with the New York Yankees professional football team was visiting at Kaukauna with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith. He played the entire game at right halfback for the New York team against the Chicago Bears the previous Sunday.

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Nov. 11, 1913

The Center drainage work was to be completed by Dec. 1. The crew was then blasting a 61 foot ditch through the Judge T. H. Ryan farm and was to finish it in about two weeks. The "Way Down East" company consisted of the original cast, with one exception, which started with the show 14 years previous. The production was to be staged by William Brady at the Appleton theatre that night.

The township board was called into session at 2 o'clock that afternoon for the regular November meeting. One new supervisor was attending the session. He was Fred Peterson of the Second ward who succeeded Louis Bonini, who resigned when he moved from that ward.

Miss Gertrude Schmidt entertained at a thimble party Monday evening in honor of Mrs. Arthur Rossmessl.

South Africa has just purchased 100 air bombers.

The Philippines will establish a National Sugar Board.

Motorcycle races are becoming a craze in South Africa.

Japan is warring on profiteers.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The monument that Secretary Swanson will leave to commemorate his name in the navy will be his effort to inject broad culture into the country's water-borne fighters.

Recently he issued a list of 152 books from which fledgling officers fresh from Annapolis must choose a minimum of six to be read during the coming 18 months. Each officer must submit a 1,000-word report on one book every three months, each from a different group.

If Ensign Jones decides to read Link's "Return to Religion" on his cruise to Bali or Paris he must desert the field of philosophy on his next voyage into learning.

Gotta Mix 'Em Up
He may select Davenport's "Hereditary In Relation to Eugenics" to read on the return from the Shanghai patrol or Swift's "How to Influence Men," both from the zone of psychology.

On a six months' siege of shore duty he can take up Melchior's "Youth in Soviet Russia" or Rie's "How the Other Half Lives," during the first three months. The second three months he may switch from sociology to economics by reading Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold's "The Folklore of Capitalism" or Spahr's "Economic Principles and Problems." He is a sucker if he takes the latter. It comes in two volumes. He might better enjoy "Economics for Everybody" from the Pyramids to the Sit Down Strike.

That will knock over four books and leave him five fields of knowledge from which to pick the remaining two. He can browse his way around the world in foreign policy to take a turn in science by reading Zinsser's "Rats, Lice and History."

(At this point we pause to note that Secretary Swanson's choice is at least comprehensive.)

'Tis Hearty, Me Hearties

Under the head of biography the fingerling officer may read the "Autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini," which we can assure any sea-going man is hearty stuff in spots. That Aryan Italian had a way with gold and debauches.

Under the head of travel, Richard Halliburton is an entry with "The Road to Romance"; in the Fine Arts the officer can have a go at Mumford's "Sticks and Stones: A Study of American Architecture and Civilization."

After coursing through this pond of learning which the navy is expected to absorb, we buttonholed the army to learn what it was doing to cultivate its higher senses. There is nothing in the regulations, but an authoritative source insisted that army men voluntarily read more now by two to one than the civil population and maybe more than the navy.

Sammy Studies, Too

The army library circulation totals 1,450,000 books a year of heavy duty stuff, no Alger books among them. Apportioned among some 185,000 fighting men that averages more than seven books a year. In China station and other outlying posts, the reading capacity hits the total of 17 books a year from the library, not counting books the men and officers dig up on their own.

While the army has no "must" list of cultural reading, sometimes outlying generals take the thing in hand. General Harbord, Pershing's chief of staff in France, once suggested that officers in his command (this was shortly after the war) would enjoy a list of 100 books which he said had helped him to succeed. The rush for the list was something more than enthusiastic.

Harbord retired as a major general and now is chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America, showing that it pays to read a good book.

Marysville, Calif.—When repair work started on the local jail, Sheriff Charles J. McCoy put it up to county officials as to what to do with 24 misdemeanor prisoners. ## SOMERSAULTS, SAGGING AND DEAFNESS

When I say I read a dozen or more somersaults every morning, always keeping personal contact with the floor notwithstanding Webster's definition of somersault, I express the simple faith of a therapeutic nihilist. I'm telling you I believe daily somersaulting is good for what ails most civilized, sedentary folk. I even go into detail about it, in the monograph "Invitation to the Somersaultauqua"—illustrated by brother Andy's gifted son Francis Brady, Geneva artist—and any reader may have a copy on request, if he or she incloses a three-cent-stamped envelope bearing the correct address.

Recently some routine grimaces, lip, mouth, throat, eye, nose, scalp and ear exercises were described here, for persons affected with catarrhal or progressive deafness. Incidentally they improve facial expression. As stated this is the routine.

First contract the muscles about the lips and mouth in a combination smile and whew, and hold that position for several seconds until the muscles feel slightly tired.

Then contract muscles about the nostrils and hold that grimace for several seconds in the same way.

Then contract muscles about the eyes, ditto. Then forehead, cheeks and temples, ditto. Finally contract or try to contract muscles that draw back the ears or wiggle the ears, ditto. While keeping the ear retractor muscles contracted and your ears drawn back or up thereby, try to contract the muscles in your throat to put throat in the position to sound the k when you say kike, in imagination—and hold the "k" position for a few seconds.

Repeat the whole series of facial exercises systematically and no fooling, before your mirror, every night and every morning, in privacy. Such exercise tends to keep the pan from going saggy, improves expression, and in many instances not only retards the progress of deafness but actually improves the hearing to a considerable degree.

I have described the routine as well as I can. If it isn't clear, drop in whenever you're in the neighborhood and I'll show you how to make faces. That is, if you are in earnest about it. Once I told a women's club about the benefits to be derived from somersaults. Many of the women pretended they'd like to try it but they didn't know just how to go about it, and wouldn't I show 'em. I showed 'em. But not a dame, nay! so much as a damsel, could I persuade to try it.

Not unlikely, the first time a sedate individual past forty (physiologically) tries somersaults he or she will make an awful flop but with perseverance one will learn to do a neat roll, forward or backward, even without using the hands at all. It is well to remove nail-pins, corset steels, bustles, and take out your plates and a small accident insurance policy before you begin rolling. If you're extremely brittle.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Treatment for Alcoholism
Please send our doctor, whose name and address is on the envelope inclosed, necessary information so that he may administer the Lambert treatment for alcoholism. Mrs. H. S.

Answer—Dr. Lambert published the full details of the treatment in the Jour A.M.A. Sept. 29, 1909, and Feb. 9, 1910. If files of this periodical are not available, a physician will find a good working abstract of the method in Forchheimer's "Therapeutics of Internal Diseases" (Appletons) Vol. II, p. 593. I have seen the Lambert treatment.

If a man and November 9 is your natal day, your greatest weakness is apt to be a love for detail. Good judgment ought to be the result of most of your actions. You perhaps dislike offering excuses, so may win a reputation for bluntness. You are either mechanically or artistically minded, therefore you should make an excellent engineer, electrician, mine operator, architect, artist, writer, sculptor or actor.

restore absolutely worthless inebriates to sobriety and industry. Any physician can administer this treatment anywhere, provided he has full control of the patient for two or three weeks and the cooperation of all concerned.

Flesh Eating
Please advise regarding the risk involved in eating chicken if the fowl has had a growth in some organ, or meat if the animal has had some disease? R. E. R.

Answer—If the meat is thoroughly cooked, there is no risk in any circumstances. Much beef is from cattle that had tuberculosis. What of it, if the meat is cooked. Rare or raw meat is not so safe.

Your Birthday

"SCORPIO"
If November 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m., until 12 noon; from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m.; from 6 to 8 p. m. and from 10 p. m., until midnight.

Confusion this day, may make it difficult for people of an intellectual type to think clearly. If you have to make your living by your brains, you need not expect the average person to show you a very much consideration due to a failure to appreciate the importance of quiet for anyone engaged in mental activities. Lack of system or the means of getting information, is also liable to be one of this day's greatest handicaps. Be careful that fatigue does not slow down your power of devising or planning, for your mind must be fresh to get the right results. This ought to be an excellent day for buying, selling or work of a publicity nature. Do not allow optimism to cause you to ignore the day's demands on your time, for it will not be the fellow chasing rainbows who will get the pot of gold. Married and engaged couples, and those who have been cogitating up on the advantages that marriage has to offer, might find requests will be granted, whereas demands are liable to be ignored.

If a woman and November 9 is your birthday, you have a will of your own and resent others trying to impose their's on you. You probably can not work well with anybody in any line of business where judgements may clash. The chances are any line of work you engage in will reflect your personality, and its success apparently will be due largely to the quality that you alone can make it reflect. There are capable indications that you are capable of making your home life or business a success. Through a business of your own, painting, singing, writing, selling or work of an educational nature you are liable to attract a great deal of favorable attention and acquire large bank account. The man who wins you, heart and hand is likely to consider himself a very lucky person.

The child born on November 9, generally wins the confidence of its playmates and has a world of influence over them. The future apparently holds plenty of promise for this youngster.

SALE TO AMERICAN LEGION

Editor Post-Crescent—Why was the American Legion Post 441 the only private organization to be given an opportunity to buy the building and lot they were sold by the common council of the city of Kaukauna? And especially for the ridiculous sum of $1 for the building and lot.

When Alderman Alger said the city had its back to the wall and would not be able to spend $100 to $150 to repair only the heating system, he maintained the expenditure would cripple some WPA work, depriving 15 or 20 men from jobs.

Just how long are you able to keep 15 to 20 men employed for $100. The answer is simple enough, not much over one or two days!

Besides, if the city of Kaukauna is one that far financially, I should think they would attempt to sell the property for a reasonable amount, not the miserly $1 to make the legal sale.

ARE AN UNBEATABLE COMBINATION... the Five Year Record of the Wichmann Furniture Company Appliance Department Gives Ample Proof!

BECAUSE the remarkable sales record made by the Appliance Department of the Wichmann Furniture Company has been paralleled by a steady flow of Post-Crescent advertising, this newspaper recently undertook to learn the full story behind Wichmann's rise in the appliance field. To get these facts, we went directly to Eugene Dahl, head of the department. His analysis is of real importance to both the buying public and the entire retail field.

"The appliance department of the Wichmann Furniture Company was organized five years ago. Each succeeding year the buying public has expressed its increasing preference for appliances from Wichmann's.

"The reasons," Mr. Dahl points out, "are simple: first, only top-notch brands of appliances are sold by Wichmann's — every one is a favorite of the buying public; second, a highly trained organization of sales representatives is maintained to demonstrate our products. A third factor is our three-man service department, completely organized with test and maintenance equipment, which is always ready to render prompt and efficient service — at minimum cost — to users of our products. Fourth, our mass displays of merchandise simplify shopping by showing an appliance for every need and a price for every purse.

"Moreover," Mr. Dahl continues, "our buying power and reputation in the appliance industry enables us to offer exceptional values at all times — values that result in bonafide savings to our customers."

(It is significant to note that a great many appliance manufacturers and distributors regard the Wichmann appliance department as the most successful of its kind in the state.)

WICHMANN'S APPLETON APPLIANCE SHOWROOM

WICHMANN'S NEENAH APPLIANCE SHOWROOM

"There are approximately 6,300 homes in Appleton," Mr. Dahl points out, "and during the past five years, the Appliance Department has sold at retail more than 5,000 major appliances — an obviously enviable record. In July of this year, we found it advisable to open a modern and complete appliance store in Neenah to better serve the Twin Cities' trading area. Our sales since that time definitely indicate that the public approves of this move.

"Over and above all is our advertising policy. We try to describe merchandise and values accurately — preferring to understate rather than overstate.

"Our advertising expenditure is based upon a definite percentage of past and anticipated sales, with careful checkups to make sure that a proper balance is being maintained. Over 90% of our advertising appropriation is allotted to newspaper space because time has proved the newspaper to be the best producer of immediate and definitely ascertainable results.

"Each season we set our quota and advertise accordingly, with the reservations just stipulated. We maintain a consistent program that demonstrates how heartily we agree with the time-honored phrase — 'it pays to advertise'."

To Mr. Dahl our thanks for a clear-cut explanation of a vitally important merchandising program!

College Theater Successful In Initial Presentation of Victor Wolfson's 'Excursion'

WHEN CAPTAIN OBADIAH RICH embarked on his final trip to Coney Island on the S. S. Happiness in the Lawrence College Theater production, "Excursion," by Victor Wolfson last night at Lawrence chapel, the audience sailed with him in spirit. It chuckled with him at the idea of finding a secret island on which to start a new life and its spirits fell with his as the pursuing coast guard cutter caught up with the runaway excursion boat and forced it to return.

This is F. Theodore Cloak's first production since his return to Lawrence after a 2-year leave of absence for study at Yale university. It is an ambitious piece for college students, for it demands as much attention to characterization for minor parts as for the leading roles.

Characterization is the axis on which the play turns, and the cast did well, for the most part, with the widely varied roles, giving a cross-section of life as found in a large city. Shop girls worried about keeping their $15-a-week jobs, an harassed mother with her troublesome off-spring, a struggling laundry operator and his worried wife, a champion of the "masses" and a scion of wealth—all met and mingled in this strange story of a man who had a dream of Utopia but was forced to bow to reality.

Outstanding performances were given by Betty Ann Johnson, Mayville, as the book counter clerk embittered by life and seeking an escape; Albert Haak, Wauwatosa, as the captain's brother, an old sea dog who conceives the idea of the runaway excursion; Charles Koerbie, Milwaukee, as Captain Obadiah Rich who refuses to be relegated to carpet slippers and a fireside; Ruth Gray, Chicago, as the blond who knows all the answers; and Muriel Engelland, Blue Island, Ill., and Glen Lockery, Rosholt, as Mama and Papa Fitchel who are constantly having to change their name for business reasons.

In Shop Girl Role
Maureen May, Des Plaines, Ill., was good as Tessie, a rattle-brained shop girl, and Alice Raattama, Nashua, Minn., and Anne Blake-man, Ann Arbor, Mich., were well-cast as Daisy Loschavo, product of an unhappy home life, and her lit-

Kimber-ly and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Mahler, Neenah, and Mr. and Mrs. John Sensenbrenner, Menasha, were among the guests at the wedding Saturday afternoon in Chicago of Miss Honor Merrell and Gordon Loud. The ceremony was performed at 4:30 in the afternoon in the Fourth Presbyterian church, Chi-cago, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Has-tings Merrell, 209 Lake Shore drive, Chicago. The bridegroom is field director of the Negidgo expedition of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago.

Miss Dorothy Pfalen, a student at St. Joseph's academy, Green Bay, was the weekend guest of Miss Ramona Yehr, 1521 N. Drew street.

Maynard A. Joslyn, professor at the University of California, in Berkeley, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Joslyn, 311 E. College avenue. Professor Joslyn is enroute to Washington where he will attend the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the Association of Of-ficial Agricultural Chemists.

Little Women Name Committees to Map Plans for Yule Party

Committees were appointed for a Christmas dance which Little Women's circle of King's Daugh-ters is planning for next month at a meeting of the circle last night at the home of Miss Jeanne Foote, E. Washington street. The place committee is headed by Miss Jean Ruhling and includes Miss Eliza-beth Atcherson; the ticket commit-tee consists of Miss Marv Ellen Schuetter, chairman; and Miss Vir-ginia Grist; the orchestra will be secured by the Misses Monica Jones, Katherine Schuh and Pete Courtney; the advertising commit-tee includes the Misses Betty Heckel, Billie Kolb and Ann Smith; and the decorations committee is composed of the Misses Bertha Smyrnes, chairman; Pete Court-ney, Janet Jones and Nancy Mc-Kee.

Two Appleton Men Finish Second in Contract Tourney

Two Appleton men, David Smith and E. J. Van Vonderen, entered the Milwaukee City Pair Cham-pionship bridge tournament which opened the weekend and finish-ed in second place. The tournament was played Saturday and Sunday at the Pfister hotel, Milwaukee. Last night's winners in the tour-nament conducted weekly at Elks hall by the Appleton Contract Bridge association were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Haldeman, first in the American league with 1431 match points, and Mrs. M. S. Peerenboom and Mrs. E. W. Douglas, first in the National league with 145. Second place in the American league went to Mark Catlin, Sr., and John Nel-ler, who scored 123 match points, and second place in the National to Mrs. Royal L. Rose and H. A. De Baurer, with 139.

The usual family groups to be found on any excursion were por-trayed by David Aldrich, Houghton and Monica Worsley, Racine, as Mr. and Mrs. Winch, and Florence Per-ry, Appleton, and Norbert Hecker, Menasha, as Sally and Bobby Winch, also as Lester Larson, Web-ster, N. D., and Carolyn Kemler, Sycamore, Ill., as Mr. and Mrs. Boomer, and by Peggy Powers, Chi-cago, as Betty Boomer. William Hirst, Wauwatosa, was the eld-erly Stevens whose weakness for "hot dogs" was the object of much disgust on the part of the captain, and Jack Wachter, Milwaukee Charles Van Dell, Fond du Lac, Walter Blinstrub, Chicago, and Wesley Perschbacher, West Bend, were other members of the crew.

Other small roles were filled by Spencer Johnson, Mayville, as Mac Colman, Marian Cooley, Oshkosh as Miss Dowdie; Abby Sutherland, Fond du Lac, and Mary Mueller, Green Bay, as Annabelle and Lily; Howard Lehner, Oconto Falls, as Aikens; Morgan Spangle, Chicago, as the candy boy; Walter Schmidt, Appleton, as Pat Sloan; and Robert Wilson and Jack Brand, Chicago as Woods and Tony.

The two sets used for "Excursion" portraying the deck of the S. S. Happiness and the interior of the captain's cabin were excellent, and the scene changes were rapid. There was no curtain to break the contact between audience and players, a black-out being used to divide the scenes and acts. Espe-cially effective was the lighted view of Coney Island seen through the windows of the captain's cabin which was kept moving slightly to suggest the motion of the boat. Other lighting affects added to the mood of the play.

Sound effects, of which there were many, were well handled and well timed. The whistle blew when the cord was pulled, which doesn't always happen in student produc-tions, the fog horns sounded at sig-nificant intervals and the distant music and noise from Coney Island was convincing.

The play will be repeated at 8:20 this evening at the chapel.

Valley Drama Group Studies 1-Act Plays

Several 1-act plays were read and discussed at the meeting of the Little Theater of the Fox River valley last night in Conway hotel an-nex, with a view to presenting them at future meetings of the group as well as before service clubs and other organizations in and around Appleton this winter. At the next meeting on Dec. 5 some of these plays will be cast and re-hearsals will begin immediately thereafter.

At a recent meeting of the newly appointed board of directors, it was decided to hold meetings of the Little Theater on the first Monday of each month. Membership is open to anyone interested in the theater, but the group is con-centrating on persons beyond high school age.

Candidate Strikes at 'Muddled Thinking'

Chattanooga, Tenn. — (AP) — Gov-ernor Gordon Browning in an ad-dress here struck at "muddled thinking" of today and said adm-inistration of relief, if continued, "will destroy the American people and undermine the American sys-tem of government."

"I think we are doing a lot of muddled thinking today, not only in public affairs, but also in relief administration," he told members of a Bible class at the First Baptist church last night.

"The greater part of our troubles would not have occurred if we had not broken away from our moor-ings. If we are ever to have pros-perity again we must take the peo-ple off relief and let them earn their own living."

HOBBIES IMPORTANT IN PERSONALITY DEVELOPMENT

Hair, complexion and figure are important, but real charm lies in personality, developed by a variety of interests, says Miss Janette Serrec, widely known lecturer and writer on the art of self-improvement, who will conduct the Post-Crescent charm school next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at Cas-tle hall. Practicing what she preaches, Miss Serrec has a long list of hobbies and interests, one of them being pets. She is shown above with one of her canaries, Kilpi, part of a menagerie that includes a number of dogs, rabbits, a horned frog and fish.

SOMETIME when you are won-dering what, or what, to do about something, try doing nothing at all.

Does this surprise you, coming from one who veritably shouls from the houseposts, "DO something about it?"

So far as charm is concerned, if you try too hard the effort will stick through and show. There is nothing more absurd, however con-scientious the gal may be, than to

Kansas Republicans And Democrats Look For 'Landslide' Wins

Topeka, Kans. — (P) — Democratic and Republican party leaders looked on with a skyward gaze today, then predicted "landslide" victories for their respective senatorial and gubernatorial nominees.

Lynn Broderick, Democratic national committeeman, said highways made icy by yesterday's snowstorm would cut the Republican outstate vote and help Senator George McGill and Governor Walter A. Huxman in their bids for reelection.

Republicans, making a strong bid for the rural vote by attacking Secretary Wallace's farm program, hoped the weatherman's "clear and warmer" forecast was correct.

McGill, co-author of the farm act, contended his defeat would be hailed as "the death knell of farm legislation" and criticized Republican Nominee Clyde M. Reed for "continued refusal to state his beliefs on present day issues."

Reed helped draft his party platform plank stating "the present farm program is neither complete nor satisfactory" and assailed McGill as a "rubber stamp" legislator.

Huxman is opposed by Republican Payne Ralner, Independent Jonathan M. Davis, former Democratic governor, and two other candidates.

War Threat Marks 20th Anniversary Of Armistice Day

Lions Club Speakers Liken 1938 Situation to 1918

With America about to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Armistice, a new threat of war is hanging over the entire world, Leo J. Promen, Fond du Lac, former state vice commander of the American Legion and now veterans' service officer of Fond du Lac, told members of the Appleton Lions club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

Promen told his listeners that "Italy and Germany are using Spain as a proving ground for equipment and methods and Japan is doing the same in China."

The speaker said there was a striking similarity between the 1914 lineup of nations and the scene at the present time. In 1914, he said, it was a triple alliance, enfolding Germany, Austria, and Italy, against the triple entente of France, Great Britain, and Russia.

The question in 1914 was "whether the descendants of Slavism or those of Teutonism should rule," Promen said, while today it is communism and fascism coming into conflict with democracy.

Just as Archduke Franz Josef of Austria, Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, and Czar Nicholas of Russia could have prevented the World war, so does the means of avoiding another conflict lie within the power of three men, Hitler, Mussolini, and the emperor of Japan.

People who shout that the surest road to perennial peace for United States is complete disarmament are "in horn communists who take their orders from Moscow," Promen declared. Men who fought in the World war are suspicious of disarmament, the veteran said, because "they don't trust other nations."

Promen remarked that it "does seem silly that nations must resort to wasting tons of gun powder to settle disputes when a few grains of common sense would serve the purpose."

Cloudy, Warmer, Weatherman Says; Snow Hits State

Winter-Like Temperatures in Wisconsin; 29 Here Today

Cloudy tonight and tomorrow, with a slight rise in temperatures Wednesday, is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

It was winter in the city today, with slate gray skies, ice and snow on streets and sidewalks, and the season's first cold snap. At 1:30 this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent registered 29 degrees.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 35 and the lowest 30, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant. During that period, precipitation measured .46 of an inch.

Miami and New Orleans, with 82, and Huron, S. D., with 8, were the hottest and coldest cities in the nation yesterday.

First Snowfall The first general snowfall of the season, accompanied by rapidly tumbling temperatures, was reported in Wisconsin today by the Associated Press.

All sections had snow, with Baraboo experiencing a 1-inch and LaCrosse a 7-inch fall, although there was no trace of it at noon in Milwaukee and other lakeshore points. Northern cities had from two to three inches.

The night's lowest temperature was reported from Park Falls—24 degrees. Milwaukee's minimum was 31.

All roads were open, but those in Vilas, Iron, Price, Oneida, Forest and Florence counties were slushy and icy.

The season's first blizzard struck Lake Superior, sending shipping scurrying to cover. A 38-mile wind whipped the lake.

On Lake Michigan, a coast guard crew from Sibleygan towed the fishing tug Ewig of Port Washington to safety after finding it helpless, due to motor trouble, about 20 miles out.

121-2 Per Cent of Total Tax Levy Extended in 1938

Percentage of Delinquency Is Low, City Treasurer States

Appleton officials and taxpayers had their first experience with the semi-annual payment of taxes this year and owners of 1,083 parcels of real estate of a possible 8,900 parcels took advantage of the extension privilege, according to Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer.

About 121 per cent, $90,337.94, of the total tax levy of more than a million dollars was extended to July 31 with only $3,503.84 remaining delinquent at the end of the extended period.

The resolution permitting extension applied to real estate taxes only and permitted the extension was adopted by the city council late in the tax period, Feb. 17, and because of that many persons who might have taken advantage, did not, Kox said.

Under the resolution the extension of 50 per cent of the real estate tax to July 31 with a flat interest rate of 1 per cent. The state law provides that a rate of interest shall be assessed and determined by the local governing body.

Special Assessments
No part of special assessments may be extended under the ordinance or under the state law. Kox said the reason for this is that special assessments must be collected promptly to meet the special assessment bonds when they fall due. Such bonds are not obligations of the city but of the property directly benefited.

"Probably no community would deny citizens the privilege of paying taxes in two or more installments if all that was involved was to provide a tax collector for a little longer period or to take care of a little additional bookkeeping," the treasurer said.

Kox explained that the law provides that local governments may extend a portion of taxes levied for city purposes for a period not exceeding six months. However, he said, a large portion of the taxes levied in the community are for school purposes and it is only in cities operated under the city school plan that the levy for schools may be considered as a part of city levy. Where schools are operated under the school district plan, the full school levy must be turned over to the county on or before March 22.

Schools Take 73 Per Cent
"Last year in Appleton the state, county and school tax accounted for 73 per cent of the levy so it is apparent that unless a part of the school levy also may be extended, the extension of part of the levy for strictly city purposes will prove of little benefit to the taxpayer," Kox said.

"Students of tax collection and delinquency are agreed that a plan that will permit taxes to be paid in two or more installments will ease the tax burden and stimulate collections and reduce delinquency," he said. "Practically all plans in Wisconsin have been experiments under existing laws and are subject to question because of varying interpretations of the law."

DISPROVE INHERENT SNAKE FEAR

Inherent fear of snakes is just a figment of the imagination and to prove it here are two little girls who never saw a snake before this picture was taken but seem to enjoy playing with the wiggles and certainly have no fear of them. The girls are Gretchen, 21 years, and Joan, 31 years, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gygi, 832 E. College avenue. Gygi, who is a biology instructor at Appleton High school, performed this experiment before his class to prove to some of the more timid that children are not instinctively afraid of snakes. And the picture proves the children were not. One of the girls is holding a Fox snake, 48 inches long and the other has a grass snake about 36 inches long. Both are harmless and cannot bite. Gygi said snakes should be protected because they destroy insects, mice, toads and feed on other destructive rodents. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Clapper Thinks Candidates Should Write Own Speeches

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Somebody who wants to do his country a good turn should start a society to drive the ghost writer out of politics. Ninety per cent of the political speeches which you have listened to in this campaign were not written by the candidates who delivered them but by some press agent, or some anonymous hired hand slaving secretly in the back room.

This practice has existed from the day of George Washington, whose farewell address was ghost-written for him by Alexander Hamilton, and has become almost universal. When you hear a political speaker, you are almost safe in assuming that somebody else wrote his speech for him. This practice goes from Roosevelt down in both parties. It has turned political speaking into a synthetic, artificial, somewhat phony form of ballyhoo.

The public's only means of siding up a candidate is by what he says. Yet most candidates spend their time shaking hands and listening to delegations, and parading, and then just as they mount the speaking platform a secretary shoves up the text of that night's speech which has been ground out by the ghost-writer. That speech, which the candidate may have seen Raymond Clapper for the first time as he rises to read it, becomes the sole means by which the public gets a line on the man who asks to be elected governor, senator, or even president.

Postmaster General Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, doesn't write the speeches he delivers. They are written by Eddie Roddan, who is assistant to Charles Michelson at Democratic national committee headquarters. Republican Chairman John Hamilton's speeches are written by his publicity director, Franklyn Waltman. Both of these ghost writers are former Washington newspapermen. Each maintains a party headquarters speech factory, in which political speeches on any subject are ground out for any political candidate who wants literary help. Once I thought I detected a conflict of policy between two leading party figures but I was promptly assured by the party ghost writer that I could not be correct because he had written both speeches and he knew there was no conflict between them. He had tried to say the same thing in different words, in the two speeches.

Harding and Coolidge Had Some Ghost Writer
Harding and Coolidge had the same White House ghost writer for a time. He was Judson C. Welliver, once a Washington correspondent, and hired by Harding to write speeches. Welliver studied the floundering style and imitated it perfectly. When Harding died, he continued for Coolidge in the same capacity, imitating Coolidge's more abrupt style. He took great delight in editorials which commented on the contrast in literary style between Harding's speeches and those of Coolidge, he having written both.

In the current Ohio senatorial campaign, Robert Taft, the Republican candidate, is a changed man. Once he was an outspoken hard-shell reactionary. Now he calls himself a liberal. Once he was a dull sour-puss who couldn't unbend. Now he is a lively, jolly handshaker, the soul of affability. They tell me in Ohio that the change was wrought by a squad of brain trusters, advisers, ghost writers, physical trainers and what not who took the crown prince of the Taft family in hand and streamlined him. The job was so well done that if he has good luck in the Tuesday election he is ready now to be placed in the show-window as a 1940 model.

The backstage ghosters are powerful fellows. Smart writers can pull the mouthpiece candidates around by the nose. Soon after the 1936 election Republican Chairman Hamilton began saying in his speeches that the Republicans must begin to think about the people "across the railroad tracks." It was a new line for John and inquiry developed that he had a new press agent. The chap was something of a liberal. But he didn't hit it off at Republican headquarters here and eventually left. He is now with Tom Dewey in New

To Get the Best Cough Remedy, Mix It at Home

Real Relief. Big Saving So Easy. No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because it makes such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any drugstore, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiaicol, in concentrated form, well-known for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a cooking bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough remedy, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving you delightful relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membrane, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

York, and Chairman Hamilton's speeches long ago resumed their tone of sturdy conservatism.

If a political candidate can't get up and make a speech of his own, if he has to hire a press agent to write it for him, then why not let the press agent be the candidate? Voters are entitled to know what a candidate thinks and what he knows. If a candidate or a politician can't stand up and talk for 30 minutes or an hour about issues of the day in his own words and with his own thought, then he ought not to fake it by shoving out a speech which some ghost writer ground out for him.

This ghost writing has developed into a considerable political fraud on the electorate. Every politician's speech, like his income-tax return, ought to bear a sworn affidavit stating whether or not the speaker has had the assistance of others in the preparation of the text. We would get worse speeches but genuine ones.

Rockets Prepare For Annual Clash With Jays Friday

Neenah Drill Session Monday

Neenah — Bad weather Monday prevented the Neenah High school grid squad from getting a good start on its final lap in the current grid season, but a workout in preparation for the annual Neenah-Menasha clash at 8:30 Friday night at Menasha was scheduled for this afternoon.

Coach Christoph will send his eleven into the annual classic in full strength and with an extra week of rest. Co-captain Robert Vandewalker, right guard, who has been on the bench since the second game of the season with a broken collar bone will start in his old position, while Lambert, center, who also has been watching the last few games from the sidelines because of injuries will start at the pivot post.

The Rockets didn't have a game last weekend, and most of last week's drills were limited to keeping the gridmen in condition.

Coach George Christoph said today that because of the snow, the grid squad would practice in the gymnasium this afternoon and a scrimmage session would be held on the Menasha gridiron Thursday night.

Game Is a Tossup

Like all the previous games in the long time feud between the Twin City schools, the outcome of Friday night's battle is unpredictable and past records don't mean a thing. Neenah, however, does deserve the credit of being a favorite, however slight, because of previous performances. The Rockets have won four games, lost two and tied one this season, while the Bluejays have won three and lost as many. Menasha sustained a 27 to 7 drubbing from Shawano, while Neenah lost to the Indians, 14 to 0. Neenah, also tied this year's conference champions, Kaukauna, 6 to 6, while Menasha lost a 7 to 0 battle.

As far as the games with New London, the scores were about even. Menasha having the edge with a 15 to 0 victory as compared with Neenah's 13 to 0 triumph. The Bluejays, on the other hand, walloped West DePere, 20 to 7, in their best performance of the season, while Neenah barely eked out a 6 to 0 win. In their other games, the Bluejays defeated Clintonville, 13 to 0 and lost to Oshkosh, 27 to 7, while the Rockets beat Menasha St. Mary, 14 to 13, and lost to Lawrence Frosh, 6 to 0.

The VNA also referred a pre-natal case to the society and it paid the back bill at the hospital and paid for a tonsilectomy.

Menasha Voters Begin To Cast Ballots Early

Menasha — Attracted to the polls by the large number of Neenah and Menasha men on the ballot, Menasha voters began to cast ballots early today. Indications were that the vote would be heavier than at the Sept. 20 primary when only about one-third of the eligible voters cast their ballots.

The polls will be open until 7:30 tonight. All taverns must remain closed until after the election is over, according to Police Chief Alex Slomski. Twelve absentee ballots were cast this morning and a number of people who failed to register for the election appeared at the city office to vote by affidavit.

Heavy Vote Is Expected In Election at Neenah

Neenah — A heavy vote was being recorded, despite the fact that it is an off year, at the five Neenah polls this morning. Bad weather, apparently, didn't keep the voters away from the polls.

City Clerk H. S. Zemlock reported that there were 38 absentee ballots cast at his office.

May Robson—upon whose shoulders the mantle of the beloved Marie Dressler has fallen—is shown above in a heart-warming moment from "Four Daughters." Shortly after finishing the picture she tripped over her dog and broke her leg. She insisted, until the doctor absolutely forbade it, in going on with her next picture, with her limb in a cast. The good news is, that the bones are now knitted, the cast off, and Muzzy May ready for her next role.

BY JIMMIE FIDLER Hollywood — It's amazing how few really colorful personalities there are in this year's bumper crop of capable young actors and actresses. The majority have brains, education, looks and even a high degree of technical skill, but they lack "oomph" — that indescribable magnetism that makes Garbo and Gables. Only Hedy Lamarr, among the girls, seems to have it. And John Garfield is the one male bet who may become a personality.

Looking over the long list of screen debuts, it seems to me that most of them are products of the same mold. They talk alike, walk alike, dress alike and act alike. The same comments can be made about the men. They are run-of-the-mill goods, as standardized as so many cans of beans. And I'm wondering if the fact that so many of them are college-bred doesn't have a lot to do with it. The constant trend in college education is emotional control—repression of this natural reactions that set one person apart from all of his fellows. Highly educated people are poised, sure of themselves and quick-minded, but they are not "natural."

Bows and Rudolph Valentines—were great because they had carried over into adulthood the emotionalism of children. Technically, they couldn't hold a candle to today's actors, but they were able to stir audience emotion by the naturalness of their own emotions. Not one in a hundred had spent a day in college. Most of them came from the back alleys of showdom. But I think Hollywood would give a lot for a few more like them.

It's Twentieth Century — Fox's idea to build Pauline Moore into a Hollywood glamour girl, but after chatting with a magazine scribe who interviewed her the other day, I'm a bit dubious of the studio's success. In his best fan mag style, he asked her what kind of perfume she prefers to all others. "The sweetness of my baby's neck," she replied with hesitation—and after all, how are they going to glamorize a girl like that?

ODD - FORMATION: The Japanese florist, who supplies the Warner Brothers studio is named Kelly. A mural painting in Mickey Rooney's "rumpus room" depicts Clark Gable as a matador. Garbo as a fan dancer and Spencer Tracy as an Arab sheik. Those chairs you see smashed over the hero's handsome head are made of balsa wood—lighter than cork. Andy Devine used to be a real-life-cow-waddy. Biggest collection of valentines in town belongs to Joan Bennett—she's saved them since kindergarten days.

Binnie Barnes started her money-earning career as a 15-year-old milk-maid in England. The annual "take" of Hollywood's fortune tellers is estimated at more than a million. Isa Miranda grants interviews freely—but only at four p. m. The only country in the world which censors pictures on a basis of artistic merit is Latvia—and how C. B. De Mille burned when the Letts banned "The Buccaneers" for lack of it! Michael Whalen was doing household chores for his room and board when Twentieth-Century-Fox gave him his contract.

Hollywood's various casting agencies list a total of 6,000 ex-soldiers, of all nationalities, who are available for extra work. The first motion picture theatre in the United States opened in Denver, Col. orado, in October, 1898. Come to think about it, I've never seen Slim Summerville at a preview. Singing stars' voices are better on-screen than off—sound experts dial out their poorer notes. The ice cream you see actors eating isn't ice cream at all—it's mashed potatoes.

The oddest servant-master relationship I've ever encountered exists between Arthur Treacher and his combination butler-chauffeur, Walter Adams. Mr. Adams is an individual who refuses to be humbled by either Mr. Treacher's stardom or his own dependent position. Characteristic of his entire attitude is his habit of addressing his boss as "Boy Scout." And even more characteristic is the anecdote told me today by Treacher who, fortunately, has a sense of humor. Seems that he (Treacher) was spending a day-off toiling in the garden of his new Encino mansion, now half-finished. Adams called for him at 5 p. m., took one look at his muddy overalls and snorted. "You don't ride in this car like that!" And without another word drove back to the present Treacher abode. And the "Boy Scout" waited a good half hour until Adams returned with his own battered jalopy.

Visiting on the "Honolulu" set, I found Gracie Allen strumming a ukelele—and doing a masterly job of it. "Is it hard to learn?" I asked and she grinned like a Cheshire Cat. "Dead easy," she said. "You just scratch your stomach rhythmically—then insert the uke."

Don't Marry The Man

By Jeanne Bowman

the nurse, "did the MacDonalds visit me, or was that part of my crazy dreams."

The nurse laughed. "They visited you and I thought Kit-Smyth was going to have apoplexy."

Kathleen closed her eyes. What had she said to Donald? Why couldn't she remember? Well, she'd soon learn from his attitude. And what had he said to her? Something, she couldn't remember the words but they were tender.

Balmy ended all conjecture over the fire with a lucid explanation. "I'd invited both Miss Riley and Miss Gregory to visit my cot at any time, the door was always unlocked. Miss Riley, seeing the other lady going down, followed, hoping to interest her in the Gregory cots. Miss Gregory dropped a cigarette on some old papers, neither noticed anything until the flames were high, then Miss Riley beat them out with her hands. A brave lass."

"The Human Element" Kathleen returned to the Gregory house a heroine, and guest of Miss Beatrice Gregory. The Gregorys were leaving the following day but, that evening father and daughter had a satisfying talk.

"It's a big responsibility to head a corporation like ours, my dear," he told her. "You can't run a mine with the cost of taking out ore and smelting and transportation more than the value received. Sometimes you become so involved in trying to find that line of balance in the market, you forget the human element involved. And when you see the end before you, and know that all of these people, not just the miners, are depending upon your wisdom for their livelihood, you... well you're baffled. A mild word for your feelings. I'll admit I didn't know conditions here were as bad as they are. It's useless to correct them now. We'll just have to wait."

Kathleen nodded and felt the responsibility her father had carried had been transferred to her shoulders.

ders. She understood him better now. Just as she was flippant when most deeply hurt, he was gruff. Beatrice, like the porcupine Bridget had accused her of resembling, threw her quills at random in her moments of despair.

It wasn't quills she threw the next day. Kathleen had told them goodby reluctantly and the moment the car was out of sight, saw little Laura MacBride rushing towards the big house, stumbling, falling into the snowdrifts, scrambling up and rushing on.

"Miss Cleo, Miss Cleo," she called, as she reached the veranda. "Looky, looky, it happened just like in the fairy tale. She riz right up out of the mine!"

The child waved an envelope before Kathleen's nose. There was a Christmas card inside, a golden card with a slit and from this protruded a check. Unfolded it read: "To Thomas MacBride, one hundred dollars." The signature was Kathleen Gregory's and after the name, the stamp, The Golden Girl.

"And every man with a family got one and every man who doesn't got a family, he got fifty dollars," cried the little girl, jumping up and down.

Bridget came in and nodded and when Laura had rushed homeward with the precious card, she explained "Beatrice wired New York for the cards and checks. Your mother's secretary supplied your signature. Beatrice had the money needed to cover the checks placed in your account."

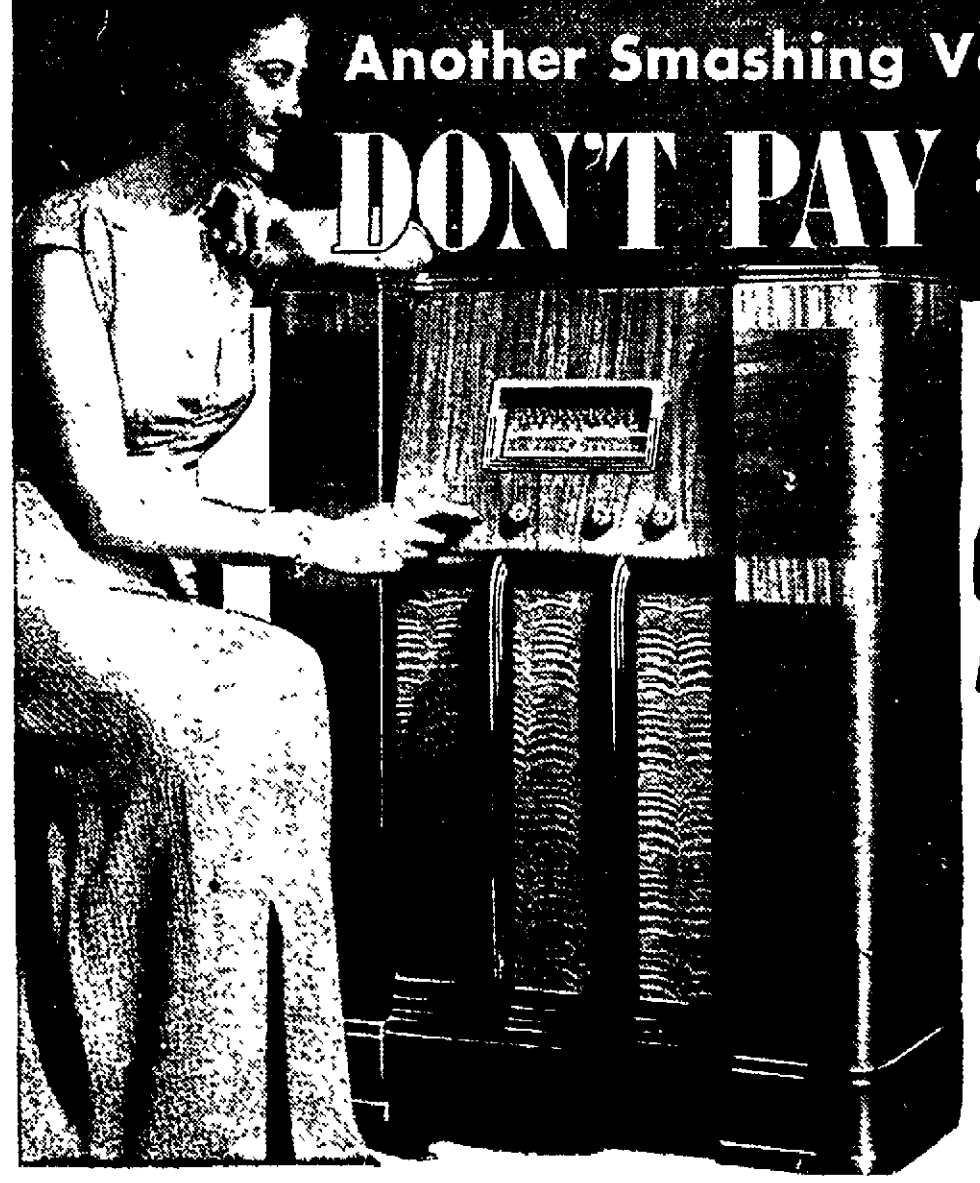

And down at the MacDonald Hotel, Mayne relayed the information to Donald MacDonald. "Sure is a joke on the folk that thought Miss Cleo was the Golden Girl," she exclaimed. "Lucy Macintosh was on the porch and she looked in the window and she said Miss Cleo was more surprised than the Gregory folks who got the checks; besides Miss Cleo could not have signed them if she wanted to; her with her poor blessed hands!"

Lionel Boehm Gets Spot on Mitt Card

Green Bay Boxer Will Replace Oliver Kinney Against Pierce

CHOLES ALSO SIGNED Replaces Ernie Passa-mani and Will Tangle
With Chippy Lutz

THE CARD
Jimmy Coyne, Fond du Lac, versus Henry Barber, Oconto, five rounds at 160 pounds.
Jimmy Pierce, Milwaukee, versus Lionel Boehm, Green Bay, five
rounds at 147 pounds.
Al Robbins, Oshkosh, versus Hoxey Lamers, Little Chute, three rounds at 140 pounds.
Chippy Lutz, Appleton, versus Jimmy Choles, Green Bay, three
rounds at 125 pounds.
Carlton Fuerst, Appleton, versus Eddie Troxel, Oshkosh, three rounds at 145 pounds.
Frankie Elsch, Appleton, versus Army Hermes, Little Chute, three
rounds at 160 pounds.
Ray Wiese, Appleton, versus Leon Toonen, Appleton three rounds at 122 pounds.

LIONEL BOEHM, a whirlwind of gloves and fighting ability, has been given a spot in one of the windup bouts of Oney Johnston post's amateur card slated here Thursday evening at Armory G. He replaces Oliver Kinney of Iron River, Mich., and will tangle with Jimmy Pierce, Milwaukee.

Boehm has fought here several times and is one of the greatest crowd pleasers ever to answer the bell. A broken jaw stopped him for a time but he's been back for a year or more now and has had two bouts this fall. Last spring he dropped a golden gloves decision to Hans Ahl at the Bay.

Boehm replaced Kinney when the latter decided that the record of Jimmy Pierce was too good for him and offered a half dozen excuses for not going through with the bout.

With the withdrawal of Kinney, Ernie Passamani, Iron River, Mich., also was forced to withdraw. The only way he had of getting to Appleton was to make the ride with Kinney. As a result Passamani has been replaced with Jimmy Choles, Green Bay, who is credited with a decision over Passamani. Choles has dropped only three bouts in the last two years. He will fight Chippy Lutz, Appleton.

Matchmaker Leslie Holzer is certain that the two changes will make for a better card. Boehm's ability to put on a show is well known, and in Choles the matchmaker has a better lad than Passa-mani.

The changes make three from the original program but in every instance the Legion appears to have secured a better fighter. Carlton Fuerst went on the card last week against Eddie Troxel, Oshkosh, when Dago Schuler had to withdraw.

Interest in the card is running high because of the great amount of Fox river valley and Appleton talent which will show. There are five boys from Appleton, and two from Little Chute besides the Oshkosh and Green Bay talent.

Viking Cagers Report Today

Five Lettermen Will be Available: First Game
Dec. 8 Here

Lawrence college basketball squad, excepting members of the football team, will report for its first drill this afternoon. Coach A.
C. Denney issued the call for 4 o'- clock and said the workout will be rather light with ball handling and a few exercises to develop wind as the features.

Five lettermen will be available but they are small. None of the outstanding freshmen cagers are back in school except Jack Sellers, Appleton, and he won't be performing until in February.

The lettermen are Ken Buesing and Norm Falcide who worked at the guards, Harry Jackson and Wally Cape who performed at the forwards, and George Bennetts who is back in school after a year's absence. Others who showed last year and who will return are Charles Schuess, Bob Smith, Ed Bayley and John Hastings.

Freshmen cage candidates who are expected to report are Art Schade, Appleton, who will be the tallest man on the squad, Craig Hirst, Joe Morton, who shows promisibilities, Art Kaemmer and Leroy Lubenow.

Lawrence will play its first game on Dec. 8 here with Mission house college the opponent. On Dec. 16, DePauw university of Greencastle, Ind. is making a trip through this section of the state and Denney took on the game. The club is one of the best in the middle west and while it probably will outclass Lawrence, the experience won't hurt the Vikings. The first game after the holidays will be with Carroll.

"EVEN STEPHEN" SERIES
Coral Gables, Fla.—When University of Miami and Bucknell football teams meet here Thanksgiving day, they will be rounding out an "even stephen" series. Each team has a victory, and a third game ended in a tie.

Washington Redskins Best Ground Gainers

New York —(AP)— Although their brightest star is "Pitcher" Sammy Baugh, the Washington Redskins have compiled the best ground-gaining average in the National Pro Football league largely by the time-tested method of lugging the ball overland. In eight games, the Redskins have gained 2,419 yards for an average of 302 yards per game. They have completed only 47 per cent of their passes, however, 81 out of 169 attempted. The New York Giants have the best passing average, 69 completions in 130 attempts or 53 per cent.

O'Brien Named to Lead Wisconsin Against UCLAs

Badgers Will Leave Wednesday Noon for Jaunt
To California

MADISON — Wisconsin's football team deserted the sleet and cold of the practice field last evening for the more California like clime of the field house as Coach Harry Stuhldreher drilled his conference leaders on defense against U.C.L.A. plays. Led by John (Blackie) O'Brien, black-thatched 185 pound guard from Rice Lake, who will captain the team Saturday, the Badgers will entrain for the coast Wednesday noon after a short workout.

O'Brien's pugnacity has sparked the Badger defense all year. He is one of five seniors on the first eleven who have already been honored with acting captain selections; the others are Howie Weiss, Vince Gavre and Roy Bellin, backs, and Lynn Hovland, varsity left guard.

Coach Scouted Cards
The squad came through the Northwestern tilt in good shape; only Ralph Moeller, speedy left wing, and Tony Gradinski, slight,
tained injuries; both suffered hip bruises but are expected to be ready by Saturday.

There was no rest for the regulars in yesterday afternoon's session. A complete review of the UCLAs' offensive tactics was given on each of the first three eleven.
Bill Spaulding, U.C.L.A. coach, scouted the Badgers when they defeated Indiana, two weeks ago. The team was drilled on pass defense.

No changes were noted on the first team although Moeller was kept out of the slight contact work afforded by the dummy scrimmage.
The varsity lined up as follows: Ed
Wegner, LE; Bob Eckel, LT; Lynn Hovland, LG; Jack Murray, C; John O'Brien, RG; Gene Brod-hagen, RT; Al Lorenz, RE; Vince
Gavre, QB; Bill Schmitz, LHB;
Roy Bellin, RHB; and Howie
Weiss, FB.

May Capture Crown
Contrary to belief expressed in some quarters, Stuhldreher intends to go after the title. The opinion has been expressed that Stuhldreher intends to use his reserves against the UCLAs in order to conserve his regulars strength for the clash with Minnesota at Madison, Nov. 19.

Minnesota and Wisconsin at present are tied for the conference leadership; the victor of this game will win at least a share of the Big Ten crown with a possibility that the individual championship will be settled in this tilt if either Michigan or Ohio State lose or tie one of their two remaining games.
Michigan plays Northwestern this Saturday and Ohio State tangles with Illinois. Michigan and Ohio square off against each other a week later.

Second Team Strong
The Badger coach does not intend to let Big Ten prestige suffer at the expense of the UCLAs. He spent a good deal of Monday's practice in work with the reserves. His second team had Phillip and Weigandt at the ends, Dorsch and Tornow at the tackles, Embick and Holloway at the guards and Doyle at center;
the reserve backfield had Fred Gage at quarterback, John Tennant and Claude York at the halfbacks and George Pastvan at full.

Stuhldreher is at yet undecided upon his traveling squad, depending upon the improvement shown in some of the borderline players in the contact drills staged for Tuesday and Wednesday. The squad will not workout en route except for short dashes up and down station platforms.

See Record Crowd
The team will arrive in Los Angeles Friday morning where a workout will be held at the Southern California field. The Badgers will return to Madison immediately after the game, arriving home on Monday, when intensive preparations will begin for the Gopher clash.

The University ticket office expects a sell-out for the Minnesota game. There is a possibility that temporary bleachers will be erected to accommodate an additional 5,000 spectators.

Cubs, Milwaukee May Enter Into Agreement

Chicago —(AP)— The Chicago Cubs, whose chief method of obtaining baseball players has been by cash rather than "farm development," may turn to a working agreement with Milwaukee of the American association, owner P. K. Wrigley said yesterday.

Wrigley said that in the proposed agreement he wanted the Milwaukee club protected so it could realize the best cash price for any players it might pick up and develop.
"Our interest, if it can be arranged, will be exclusively in the players the Cubs send there for development," Wrigley said.

Woodenwares and W Rankin a 513 for the Mills.

Hotel Falk swept the series with the Buick Motors. Arnie Kelly rolled a 531 series for the Hotels and C.
Melcher a 402 for the Buicks.

Bucky Harris, No Longer Boy Manager of Baseball, 42 Today

Marquette Drills

For Michigan State

Milwaukee —(AP)— Refreshed by a week's rest, Coach Paddy Driscoll's Marquette university football squad was ready for some serious work today in preparation for the homecoming game against Michigan State Saturday.

Rain and mud slowed up the Avalanche squad as it got back into uniform yesterday. Driscoll named Ray (Toots) Busler, iron-man right tackle from Watertown, as captain for Saturday's game.

Hint Big 10 and Pacific Coast Champs May Meet

Faculty Committee to Consider Rose Bowl Possibilities

CHICAGO —(AP)— Speculation on the possibility of the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast conference football champions meeting annually in the Rose Bowl game reverberated over the nation's grid fronts again today after an announcement the Big Ten probably would consider the suggestion at its meeting Dec. 2-3 in Chicago.

Prof. O. F. Long of Northwestern, chairman of the Big Ten faculty committee, said no official proposal had been submitted. He added, however, "I would not be surprised if the matter is brought to the attention of the faculty committee at the December meeting. However, I do not believe the committee will alter the present regulation against post-season football games."

Wendell Wilson, athletic director at the University of Illinois, said he believed there was "a possibility" of the two conference representatives meeting, but added it would be up to the faculty committee.

At Los Angeles, Hugh Willett, president of the Pacific coast conference, said such a proposal had neither been made to nor by the conference itself.

Bernie Heseltun Talks To Eagle River Gridders

"Perseverance in Overcoming Obstacles" was the subject of a talk by Coach Bernie Heseltun of Lawrence college at a dinner last night at Eagle River at which Eagle River High school gridgers were honored. Heseltun was accompanied by Line Coach Ade Dillon and by Francis Bradford, a fullback on this year's freshman team and a graduate of Eagle River High school.

BY EDDY GILMORE
Washington —(AP)— Stanley Raymond Harris—the onetime applecheeked boy manager of baseball—was 42 today.

It was 14 years ago that Clark
Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, appointed the black-haired former coal miner manager of his team.

Until that time the local diamond refrain ran:
"Washington—first in war, first in peace and last in the American league."

That chant swiftly subsided when the boy manager led an inspired Washington club to its first American league championship.

Harris became the toast of the capital. He went on to beat the Giants in a seven-game World series and came back the next year to win the pennant again. Washington lost the world's championship to Pittsburgh that year, though, in a seven-game series.

Bucky—for nobody ever called him Stanley or Raymond—signed in 1923 to manager the Detroit Tigers. In 1933 he resigned and went to the Boston Red Sox.

Harris lost out temporarily when Clark Griffith sold his son-in-law Joe Cronin, to the Red Sox as a player-manager. But Griffith signed his boy manager again, and back to Washington came Bucky. He has not won a pennant this time—not yet—but he fooled most of the experts by staying in the first division most of the season.

from Fearless Five keggers. H. Lemke was tops for the losers with a 500 count while M. Mears had 206 and 508 for the winning quint.

Shippers grand slammed Pullovers as E. Lamay hammered a 568 series and J. Bauhs a 202 game. R.
Bergman showed a 206 game and 507 series for the losers.

Three games went to Worsted in a match with Slippery Elms as M.
Doepker rattled a 210 game and 566 series. R. Kirschenroer was high for the losing five with a 485 series.

Chicago Gridders See Possibility of Win Over Pacific

Double Homecoming for Maroons and 'Grand Old Man of Football'

BY ARNOLD DERLITZKI
CHICAGO —(AP)—A double homecoming—for the University of Chicago and for Amos Alonzo Stagg—and the possibility of the Maroons winning a second game this season is stirring the midway this week.

Even the absence of championship atmosphere cannot detract from the setting—the Maroons, taught by the grand old man of football for 41 years, opposing Stagg and his College of the Pacific eleven.

The gridiron opposition is as far as the issue will go and then it will not go as far as the usual football battle which finds opponents parked on opposite sides of the field
Next Saturday, Stagg and his eleven will have a place of honor on the same side of the gridiron as Chicago.

Wildcats Recovering
Meanwhile, in neighboring Evanston, Northwestern was recovering from a terrific letdown in play and title hopes as well. Virtually out of the Big Ten championship race as a result of the Wisconsin defeat, the Wildcats began drilling toward bettering a knock out of their own this week—against Michigan.

Coach Lynn Waldorf indicated it would get plenty of defensive drills this week.

Michigan, its title chances restored with last week's setback to Northwestern and Ohio State immediately got down to hard work yesterday with defensive dummy scrimmage and offensive drills.

Weather Interferes
Ohio State worked on ground plays for its tussle with Illinois.
The Illini, hampered by rain, confined their workout to signal drills Wisconsin, forced inside by sleet and cold, practiced in the field house for its engagement with U. C.
L. A.

A snow storm hit Iowa, so the Hawkeyes listened to a lecture instead of working out for Indiana at Indiana. Coach Bo Mc Millin excused his regulars. Except for a lecture, Minnesota also had its customery Monday holiday as did Purdue which does not play this week.

Churches Plan Basketball Loop

Organization Meeting Is Called for Wednesday Night at the Y

Organization of a church basketball team composed largely of the same churches which competed in softball last summer, will be discussed at a meeting called for Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A.
Churches interested in the proposed loop must be represented Wednesday, it is said, because there will be openings for only eight teams.

Tentative plans are to play games Thursday nights at Armory G. With eight teams there will be four games each evening starting about 6 or 7 o'clock. A small admission fee would be charged to defray

Chaffin Chatter

OTTO KIRK, 518 S. Telulah avenue is going to see Wisconsin and Minnesota clash at Camp Randall, Nov. 19, in a game that may mean the Big Ten championship for the Badgers, because he is the best picker of correct football scores in the Appleton Post-Crescent's circulation area.

With the close of the weekly contests the Sports Department has been running for the last seven weeks, Kirk has picked 17 correct scores, an average of almost three a week. Each week he has picked at least one but the week of Oct. 1 he crashed through with five and on the weekend of Oct. 22 he hit four correctly.

The next most consistent winner was Jerry Lamers of Little Chute who picked ten winners during the period. Two weeks in which he failed to find a single correct score hurt his chances.

Interest in the contest held up very well until last week when, probably because there were comparatively few local teams listed, the returns dropped to about half the regular total. The fact there were no more games in several of the cities, also resulted in loss of interest.

Winners in the week's contest were as follows:

Appleton—Earl Spande, Seymour, who picked Ripon over Carleton, 13 to 7, Syracuse over Colgate, 7 to 0, and the Packers over the Bears, 24 to 17. He also missed on two scores by a point.

Menasha—Stanley Novakofski, 321 Lisbon avenue, Menasha, who picked Ripon over Carleton and missed on two scores by a point which broke a tie.

Kimberly—No winners.

Neenah—Bill Lawson, 248 Fifth street, who picked Syracuse over Colgate, 7 to 0.

New London—Arthur Davy, 820 S. Pearl street, who picked 13-7 for every score but who was fortunate enough to hang it correctly on Lawrence over Beloit, Ripon over Carleton and Knox over Coc, the latter guess being a real feat for the game was an upset.

Little Chute—Norbert Lucassen, who picked Ripon over Carleton and Minnesota over Iowa, and Jerry Lamers, who picked Ripon over Carleton and Monmouth over Cornell.

Kaukauna—Earl O'Connor, route 3, who picked Ripon over Carleton
There will be games in all the cities except New London this week, but the winner there will be given a ticket to the Appleton-Oshkosh game.

And so ends another year's guessing contest. The response has been great and for that we thank everyone who took part. It's been a lot of fun for us and we hope for you and we also hope that next year you'll be back.

Lawrence's Midwest conference championship recalls to mind the fact that away back in 1922, the first year Lawrence was in the Midwest conference, it tied for the title.

Members of that team were Len Stoll, now at Sheboygan Central high school, end; Funk McGlynn, now the famous Stony of the Milwaukee Sentinel, tackle; Walt Hunting, guard; Bill Smith, now at Milwaukee West division, center; Red Smith, now assistant coach of the Green Bay Packers, guard; Liz Blackburn, now at Milwaukee Washington, tackle; Charley Berry, end; Eddie Kotal, now coach at Stevens Point Teachers, quarter; Myrtle Basing, now in Milwaukee, half; Grover, half and Grignon, fullback.

In those days freshmen could play and both Kotal and Red Smith were yearlings. H. D. McChesney was the coach.

The team beat Stevens Point Teachers 12 to 0; Carroll 13 to 0; tied with Beloit, 0-0, in a game in which Kotal's quarterbacking was roundly criticized; beat Cornell, 12 to 10; Northwestern college, 48-0; Ripon 20 to 0; and Hamline, St. Paul, 9 to 0.

lish Lutheran. St. Mary won the

America OUT-OF-DOORS

A FISHERMAN'S THOUGHTS BY BUELL PATTERSON

WHAT does a fisherman think about when he isn't catching fish? He casts until his arm is about broken off. He has rangled a minnow at the end of his line. He has let the minnow swim about on his own. He has jigged that minnow up and down. He has tried using two minnows and has tried a frog. He has tried red plugs and white plugs, spinners, bucktails, feathers and flies, and still nothing has worked. What is he thinking about?

Maybe he is thinking that he is on the wrong shore of the lake. He may be wondering where those confounded fish have gone. Do they take vacations? Are they out for a while? Can a lake be fished out? Why don't the darned things bite? They did last year. Confound this exhilaration, the old timers used to get their limit in jig time. When he was a boy the fish bit.

Probably there is a receding spring over near the shore. The fish are jumping, but that sound turns out to be the plunge of a knife. Well, if there are minnows for the kingfisher to feed on, there must be some fish too. No, doesn't. A cold wind is from the wrong direction. What is that old saying?

Speed Driver Will Teach Road Safety On Speaking Tour

Ab Jenkins Suggests Ways Of Curbing Auto Crash Toll

SALT LAKE CITY, (AP)—The veteran driver who holds more world speed records than any other man has become a disciple of traffic safety.

Utah's Ab Jenkins, whose endurance driving exploits won him the cognomen "Iron Man," has piloted automobiles 2,000,000 miles—without an accident.

Now he's going to teach the American public how to reduce the terrific traffic toll which claims thousands of lives annually.

Jenkins, pioneer speedster on Utah's famed Bonneville Salt Flats, the world's fastest and safest track, turned "traffic teacher" after an early winter blocked a contemplated assault on scores of endurance marks.

Plans Speaking Tour
Jenkins, who plans a driving demonstration and speaking tour through the populous eastern states, says of highway driving:

Be alert.
Be master of your car at all times.
Keep on your own side of the highway.
Don't cut in.
Don't attempt to pass when your vision is obscured.
Keep your head in an emergency.
If you're drinking, keep out of an automobile.
Don't speed in heavy traffic.
Be courteous to other drivers.
Give them a break.
Keep your car mechanically perfect.
Jenkins, whose endurance records range from 175 miles per hour for 50 kilometers to 148 m.p.h. for 48 hours, built a new car this year in the hope of boosting the marks, but rain softened the saline track.

St. John's College Boasts Low-Geared, Powerless Attack

Annapolis, Md., (AP)—A low-geared, no-scoring football machine from St. John's college, boasting one of the most powerful attacks in years, put forth its bid for fame today as 1938's premier goal line protector.

They have challenged the pigskin world to produce another team with their unparalleled record of protecting opponents' goal lines. And nobody in these parts think their challenge will be snatched up.

The St. John's dream team, Coach Valentine (Dutch) Lentz says he dreams things about it nearly every night—has done some great things since the season opened, but it reached new heights in offensiveness against Randolph-Macon college Saturday.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

FOOTWORK PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN GOLF STROKE

FOOT ACTION IN GOLF

Probably the one angle of the golf stroke where the first flight of the ball most nearly resembles that of footwork. Tommy Armour, illustrated at the top of an iron shot in the small figure above, is a firm believer in the effect good footwork has on the actual stroke. Correct action here gives one that balance that is so essential to smooth striking and rhythmic timing. The golfer who can coordinate the movement of his feet to the actual swinging motion has accomplished a great deal toward building up a sound stroke. It is possible to watch the action of the stroke, and determine by this means alone whether the shot has been successful or not. If the feet are in the proper position at each stage of the stroke one will swing properly. For instance at the start of the stroke the left hip and left knee turn toward the ball, which means that the right hip must turn around to accommodate this motion and thus start a correct body turn. It also aids to let the left ankle turn inward during the process of the backstroke in the manner of Jones above. This eases any tension and throws the weight back on the right foot in the upstroke. The downswing is the reverse procedure. Practice along this line during the winter months, confining the actual stroke to slow motion technique, will improve foot action.

Less Than Dozen Major Grid Teams Remain Undefeated and Untied After Host of Upsets

NEW YORK (AP)—Coming up to the middle of November with some of the nation's mightiest football teams just getting up off the ground after having been straight-armed by last Saturday's opponents, this week finds less than a dozen teams of major rank still unbeaten and untied.

With the fall of such notable contenders as Pittsburgh and California, victims of Carnegie Tech and Southern California, respectively, the search for national championship contenders now must include teams that have been tied or beaten once but that kept right on moving.

Without effort to rank them, other than to point out that some obviously don't play the kind of schedules that make champions, the unbeaten, untied outfits are:

Notre Dame Unbeaten
East—Dartmouth and Georgetown; Midwest—Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Iowa State, Western Reserve; South—Tennessee and Duke; Southwest—Texas Christian and Texas Tech; far west—Santa Clara.

Unbeaten but tied are Villanova, Boston college and Utah (tied twice). Losers of one game which still rank as top-flight contenders include Pitt, Holy Cross, Carnegie, Fordham (tied), Cornell; Minnesota, Michigan, Northwestern (tied), Alabama, Vanderbilt, Georgia; Baylor (tied), California and Southern California.

Any effort to pick the coming champion out of this lot would be as futile as making a choice in September. However, this week's program, featuring renewals of some of football's oldest classic rivalries, may help separate the solid grains from the chaff. Some of the high spots are:

Dartmouth, after showing off its lack of reserves in a breather against Dickinson, takes on Cornell. Georgetown, 13-0 winner over Bucknell faces West Virginia, defeated 7-0 by Western Reserve.

Pitt Meets Nebraska
Pitt, soundly beaten, 20-10, by Carnegie, goes west to tackle an old enemy, Nebraska, whose first victory was a 16-7 win over Kansas. Carnegie tackles another Pitts-burgh rival, Duquesne. Unbeaten but tied Boston college and Villanova shouldn't have much trouble against Boston university and Temple, the latter a 33-0 victim of Holy Cross.

Fordham, which eked out a field-goal victory over St. Mary's, meets another intersectional rival, North Carolina. Syracuse, 7-0 winner over its upstate enemy, Colgate, for the first time in 13 years, takes on Duke, undisputed Southern conference leader. Other intersectional tilts send Harvard, 47-13 winner over Chicago, against Virginia, Army against little Chattanooga, and George Washington against Kansas.

The No. 1 Ivy league game, in age and tradition, pits Princeton, which lost 20-18 to Rutgers for the first time since 1909, when the scarlet won America's first intercollegiate game, against Yale, winner over Brown, 20-14. Holy Cross-Brown, Columbia-Navy, Pennsylvania-Penn State and New York U-Colgate are other major pairings.

Badgers Tied For Lead
Middle West—Northwestern couldn't hold the edge that enabled it to beat Minnesota a week ago and took a 20-13 thumping from Wisconsin. Thus the Badgers and Minnesota's Gophers, 26-0 winner over Iowa, share the Big Ten lead with Michigan, Ohio State, Northwestern and Purdue as possible contenders.

Minnesota next takes on unbeaten Notre Dame, which warmed up with a 15-0 victory over Navy. Wisconsin takes the road to play U. C. L. A. while Michigan, 19-13 winner over Penn despite a late Quaker rally, fights it out with Northwestern. Purdue has an open date after whipping Ohio State 12-0. The Buckeyes meet Illinois while Chicago plays host to "Old Man" Stagg and his College of the Pacific team.

Oklahoma, which preserved its unbeaten record by trimming Kansas State, 26-0, faces a higher Big Six hurdle in Missouri, 6-0 winner over Michigan State. Iowa State, co-leader in the conference, plays Kansas State.

Texas Christian Rated Best Eleven In the Country

Pittsburgh Drops to Third After Defeat by Carnegie Tech

NEW YORK (AP)—Versatile Texas Christian football team, pride of Southwestern football, is the nation's first eleven in the fourth Associated Press poll of sports writers. The Irish of Notre Dame are a scant 16 points in second place.

Pittsburgh, leader in three previous polls, fell to third while Carnegie Tech, the Panthers' master Saturday, rose to sixth place as a result of its triumph. The Skibos were tied for twentieth a week ago.

Texas Christian, second last week received 48 votes for first place and a point total of 988. The Irish had 970 points and 41 ballots for first place. In all 117 sports writers, high number for the season, participated.

The leaders: (first place votes bracketed, points scored on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis).

Team	Points
Texas Christian (48)	988
Notre Dame (41)	970
Pittsburgh (14)	790
Tennessee (6)	667
Dartmouth (3)	643
Carnegie Tech	510
Santa Clara (1)	379
Southern California (2)	288
Oklahoma (1)	194

Second ten: Holy Cross 166, Minnesota 162, Fordham 86, California 62, Wisconsin (1) 32, Alabama 31, Northwestern 29, Michigan 18, Villanova 17, Cornell 16.

Others mentioned: Iowa State 9, Vanderbilt 6, Texas Tech 5, Harvard 4, Boston College, Purdue, Tulane 3 each, North Carolina 2, Georgetown and Brown 1 each.

Texas Christian is the only team in the first ten that faces anything like easy opposition this week. The Horned Frogs play Texas deep in a mediocre season, and there appears little chance for an upset.

Notre Dame takes on the first of three formidable foes, Minnesota and Pittsburgh, with Marshall Goldberg on the sidelines, faces Nebraska which should be hot at least once this season.

Minor League Baseball Draws Record Crowds

Durham, N. C. (AP)—Minor league baseball had a perfect "durability" record as well as a new attendance mark during the 1938 season according to the report of President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues.

Thirty-seven minor leagues started the season and all of them finished their schedules without a hitch. All the member clubs already have paid their membership and protection fees for 1939. The total attendance for the 37 leagues was 15,500,000, an increase of 2,000,000, over the 1937 figure.

COMMON SENSE CONSERVATION

By L.H. KINGSTON

GREEN BAY—Candidates for the assembly and state senate are strenuously campaigning for election Nov. 8. Before voting, every hunter and fisherman should be informed as to what attitude each candidate will take on conservation if elected. We want to send conservation minded legislators to Madison next year.

As a service to conservation minded voters, I have contacted the 330 candidates for the legislature, asking each candidate to state his views on the four most vital conservation issues likely to come before him if he is a member of the 1939 legislature.

Following are the four questions I asked each candidate to answer:

1. Are you in favor of continuing our present system of county fish and game committees elected by the people of each county to represent them at a statewide meeting at Madison each summer to recommend regulations for the taking of fish and game?
2. Are you in favor of the recommendation made at nearly all of the county meetings in June and at the meeting of the fish and game committees at Madison in July, that a general resident fishing license law be passed licensing all anglers over 18 years of age for $1.00?
3. Tourists seeking outdoor recreation spend as much as $250,000,000 of cash in Wisconsin each year. The chief benefit of that money goes to gas stations, hotels, sporting goods stores, summer resorts, railroads and many other forms of business. The highway department, collects $3,000,000 gas tax from tourists. None of these enterprises, however, have to contribute one cent to help maintain the outdoors that attracts and sustains this great tourist industry.

Are you in favor of taking $1,000,000 or more of the tax money paid by business into the general state fund and appropriating that amount to the Conservation fund so that business can bear its fair share of the upkeep of our woods and waters?

"No Trespass" signs are becoming so common that it will soon be impossible for the common man to find a place to hunt. Will you be in favor of a "public shooting ground" plan by which suitable areas would be acquired for public use out of hunting license fees?

Some would-be legislators, due to lack of time or interest, failed to answer, however. I received many replies and I give you voters who read this newspaper the statements I received from the Candidates in your electoral districts in hopes that you will be influenced accordingly.

Mark Catlin, Jr., Appleton, Republican candidate for assemblyman from the first district in Outagamie county replies as follows:

"In response to your letter let me say that I am in complete accord with you on questions 1, 2, and 4.

"As to question 3: there is unquestionably much merit in what you say, but I believe that there are other factors influencing the problem than those you have dealt with. I doubt that anyone with a working knowledge of revenues and expenditures of the present state government could or should subscribe to question 3 without more knowledge, more definiteness and more legal detail on all of the various things concerned.

"I don't believe that anyone here in my voting district in Outagamie county doubts that I am interested and always will be interested in the problems and welfare of common sense conservation. Any and all know that I am at all times open to conviction and in sympathy with all well directed efforts along such lines."

William J. Gantler, Kaukauna, Republican candidate for the assembly, second district of Outagamie county, answers "Yes" to all four questions.

BUY NO ANTI-FREEZE

... until you read these facts about DU PONT "ZERONE"

SCIENTIFIC TESTS prove that "ZERONE" would keep water from freezing solid even at 21° below zero. You'll never encounter temperatures like that, so you can be sure "ZERONE" used in accordance with directions will protect your car in the coldest weather you'll ever experience.

The materials from which "ZERONE" is made are so effective you need comparatively little "ZERONE" to achieve protection. That's economy. Properly used, replacements of "ZERONE" are little indeed—and that's economy, too.

Tests prove that the mixture of "ZERONE" and water passes off engine heat better than water alone. That improves engine performance.

"ZERONE" in a clean cooling system prevents formation of rust and corrosion—avoids power losses, helps save fuel and oil. Those are the facts, so your dealer to protect your radiator with "ZERONE" today. It's only $1.00 a gallon. Du Pont "ZERONE" Division, Wilmington, Delaware.

Of all animals, the one most hated is probably the rat. It is hated because it is feared. Here and there on the earth, we may find tigers, lions or poisonous snakes which seem far more dangerous, but rats are present in every country, and there is better reason to fear a rat at home than a lion over in Africa.

There are several kinds of rats, but the two main families are the blacks and the browns. Both of them seem to have spread over the world from central Asia. Wagons, carts, sailing vessels, ocean steamers and railway trains have helped take them from place to place.

Black rats started to spread across Europe about 1,000 years ago. One old record tells of their entering Great Britain by crossing the English Channel aboard the ships of William the Conqueror. A black rat usually is seven or eight inches long, not counting the tail. Brown rats are larger, and swept over Europe at a later time. They are on record in Europe for only about 200 years. Sometimes they are called "Norway rats" but they are because many of them were found in Norway before they appeared in Great Britain. It seems certain they reached Norway after a migration from Asia across Russia.

Wherever they have found black rats, the brown rats have made war on them. Being about two inches longer, and better fighters, the brown rats have destroyed their enemies in most places. In a recent year, black rats had only two strongholds left in Great Britain, and one of the strongholds was an island off the coast.

Any kind of rat may carry fleas, and the fleas may carry disease. The Black plague which killed millions in Europe during the Middle Ages, was spread by rat-carried fleas. In modern times, the bubonic plague is known to have been spread by rats.

When a new house is built, it should be made rat-proof as nearly as possible. Rats can gnaw through wood, but they don't like material used for insulation in most modern homes. It is a good idea to have cement floors in cellars, and to keep cellar windows closed.

If a rat gets into a house, it should find a cold welcome so far as food is concerned. Let all food - including potatoes, fruit, nuts and flour - be placed where rats cannot enter. Let all garbage be put in covered cans.

If rats are not able to obtain enough food, they may turn cannibals. Brown rats may eat brown rats. The human race would be better off if (like the Gingham Dog and the Calico Cat) they all "ate each other up."

Chicago Transit Company Barred From Wisconsin

Commission Revokes Operating Permit for Tax Delinquency

Madison—The public service commission announced today it has revoked the Wisconsin operating permit of the Ever Ready Transit company, of Chicago, for failure to pay $4,306 in delinquent motor transportation taxes.

The Illinois federal court in August denied the plea of the Ever Ready company for an order restraining the commission and the Wisconsin inspection and enforcement bureau from enforcing state laws regulating use of highways by out-of-state truck and bus lines. The company had filed a bankruptcy petition.

A hearing was scheduled for Oct. 3 but no one appeared for the company.

The commission said it has ordered the Best Transport company, of 4715 South Kinnickinnic Ave., Milwaukee, to show cause at a hearing here Nov. 23 why its license to operate as a contract motor carrier of freight should not be revoked.

Charges Listed

Charges listed in the commission order were:

That the company in recent months charged less than the minimum lawful freight rates on shipments from Milwaukee and Green Bay to Oshkosh.

That freight hauls were made for various shippers for which the company has no authority to haul and that shippers' names on freight bills were changed "apparently for the purpose of deceiving the commission as to the true nature of operation."

The Best Transport company holds the first contract motor carrier license issued by the commission under provisions of the motor transportation law enacted in 1933 and revised last year.

The company's record, the commission said, shows eight convictions for violation of various provisions of the law from April 20, 1936 to June 4, 1938.

Future of Country Is Not Staked on New Deal—Pegler

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Bruce Barton, who seems to be squinting down the barrel at the presidency, passed some remarks in a piece in Collier's recently which describe better than any other effort that I have seen the mental attitude of some of the big-name New Dealers and of the New Deal itself.

Mr. Barton perceived in the Washington administration "a distressing growth of that malady that may be termed 'the intolerance of the welder.'" and said that, as a boy in a country parsonage, where the spare room and the table conversation generally were monopolized by some reformer, he observed that "no man can so cheerfully eat of his neighbor's food, make extra cooking and cleaning for his neighbor's wife, use his neighbor's vehicle and force sacrifices on his neighbor's children as the man who is bent on reforming the world."

"I discovered," Mr. Barton wrote, "that nobody can be quite so intolerant, no one can so cheerfully sow such seeds of violent hate, as he who is completely convinced of his own righteousness. Each of these workers feels in his own heart that he has made a human sacrifice to pursue his particular line of human betterment—sure that if he himself had devoted his talent to money-making he would have achieved a fortune. He convinces himself that he is entitled to special thanks from the community, and sometimes attains the highly satisfying conviction that the purity of his motives justifies any means."

Mentions Rest Cure
Of Mr. Harold Ickes

Parts of this quoted matter suggest the figure of Mr. Harold Ickes, who gets $15,000 a year, but when he felt the need of a rest cure put himself away in the Naval hospital at $375 a day for "room, board, attendance and all, undoubtedly in the honest belief that service of such value as his to the country deserves such consideration.

He also comes to mind in connection with Mr. Barton's phrase about the sowing of seeds of violent hate by men who believe that they have made financial sacrifices to pursue each his particular line of human betterment. Mr. Barton himself may have had Mr. Ickes and his rest cure at $375 a day in mind, but that would be unimportant.

More meaty is the challenge to the idea that because the New Deal is composed of consecrated men—if it is—the removal of those men from office and power would be a step toward some dreadful national fate. Such an idea has been put forward lately, possible in deep sincerity, but I just don't think it is true, preferring to believe that if the New Deal were turned out in 1940 and a Republican or a fusionist government were installed, the gains of the New Deal would be consolidated and improved, and business would leap at the chance to employ people. I think it would be possible to cheer Mr. Roosevelt on his way into private life with thanks for a noble effort and much new president with the best wishes of the country.

Some people always hate a president, as those New Dealers who hate Herbert Hoover and hate the very names of Coolidge and Harding will have to admit, but the hatred of the present time has been wiped up by the big names of the administration and the camp followers, not by the Republicans or Tories or economic royalists.

Others Who Would Make Good President

I can't believe that everything is staked on the continuance of the New Deal, and the reelection of President Roosevelt or the election of someone proposed by him. And I do believe that there are several men, not fascists or communists, not bigots or rabble-rousers, any of whom could turn in a good performance as president of the United States.

The New Deal presumes to outlaw as un-Americans almost all those who actively oppose it on any phase, and that obviously can't be so. The old way has been left behind, but there were good men then and there are still good men, intelligent and efficient and as patriotic and devoted to democracy as any New Dealer, who could carry on the government without resort to hatred.

I don't know what sort of businessman it is, who can believe in nazi-fascism. There must be some, of course, just as there are New Dealers who believe in measures of regimentation borrowed from both nazi-fascism and communism, but who think of themselves as pure Democrats. But any businessman or any employee who has listened even an hour to the story of these isms knows that the American system is best.

It wasn't agreed when Mr. Roosevelt was elected and reelected that the New Deal was to be a dead end, and I don't believe it is.

Democrats Lose Ground for First Time in Decade

Beaten in Nearly Dozen States in Tuesday's Election
RULE CONGRESS

New Dealers Continue to Keep Control at Washington

Washington—(AP)—Resurgent Republican strength in the midwest, New England and pivotal Pennsylvania swept the Democratic party out of power in nearly a dozen states today and reversed the national political trend for the first time in a decade.

The Democrats retained control of both branches of congress, but Republicans were cutting sharply into their huge majorities.

After a breath-taking struggle the Democrats retained New York, thus gaining a major prize in yesterday's congressional and gubernatorial elections, but in addition to Pennsylvania they lost heavily in Michigan, Ohio, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Kansas and Massachusetts, and were threatened with losses in Iowa and New Jersey.

The Republicans, on the other hand, lost the Maryland governorship. In California there was a prospect of a Democratic governor for the first time in 40 years. Culbert L. Olson, whom President Roosevelt endorsed as a "liberal" piled up an impressive lead over the Republican incumbent, Frank F. Merriam.

Downey Has Lead
Sheridan Downey, who also bore a presidential blessing, had a substantial lead over his Republican opponent, Philip Bancroft, in the California senatorial race.

In Pennsylvania Arthur H. James, red-haired former coal miner and critic of the Democratic administration of Governor George H. Earle, carried the Republican banner to victory over Charles Alvin Jones, the Democratic nominee for governor.

Earle, who ran for the senate, was defeated by Senator James J. Davis, Republican and Calvin Coolidge's secretary of labor. Many persons considered that the Pennsylvania successes gave the Republicans their most important single state victory. With its large share of electoral votes the state always is an important factor in presidential races.

Democratic Defeats
Among the Democratic senators defeated were McGill of Kansas, co-author of the crop control act; Bulky of Ohio, Harvard classmate of the president; Brown of New Hampshire, and Duffy of Wisconsin, who had the president's endorsement.

Both of the country's foremost minor parties—the Progressives and the Farmer-Laborites—suffered severely under the impact of the Republican drive.

Republican gains erased from house rolls several well known names, though for the most part these Democratic losses were largely among members who had come in with the Roosevelt landslide. Mrs. Nan Honeymann of Oregon, Representative Brooks Fletcher of Ohio, and Representative Haines of Pennsylvania were among the losers.

Another house member who went out was Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, chairman of the house rules committee. He was running as a Republican after having lost the Democratic nomination to James H. Fay, who had been supported by President Roosevelt in his primary drive against conservative Democrats.

Pension Plan Beaten
The apparent defeat of the $30-a-month pension plan in California topped the list of state actions on referendum. In Colorado, however, the voters decided to retain their $45 a month old age pension plan, the most liberal in the nation.

To the day's excitement Kentucky made its well-remembered contribution—a series of gun fights in

Johns Defeats Schneider in G. O. P. Landslide That Elects Many Republican Congressmen

National Party to Proceed, Governor
Says at Madison

Defeat Will Not Mean Interruption, LaFollette Asserts

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Senator F. Ryan Duffy, New Deal Democrat defeated for reelection, felicitated Alexander Wiley, victorious Republican senatorial candidate, as follows in a message today:

"Please accept my heartiest congratulations on your victory. It is a great honor to be privileged to represent this great Badger State in the United States senate. With every good wish, (Signed) F. Ryan Duffy."

Madison—(AP)—Governor LaFollette beaten decisively for reelection by his Republican opponent, Julius P. Heil, predicted spiritedly today that national organization of the National Progressives of America would "definitely and irrevocably" proceed without interruption.

The governor said he and his brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., Lieutenant Governor Herman L. Ekern, and other prominent Progressives would take up the task "personally." The party was launched here April 28.

He described the entire nation as "fertile ground for N.P.A. organization, declaring the new party "would get on the ballots in various states as fast as possible."

The Wisconsin and national election, he asserted, demonstrates that a new party alignment is required. His statement follows:

New Movement Needed
"Throughout the country this election proves more than ever the vital necessity for a new national movement. Both old parties are firmly in the control of reactionaries. A few years practical demonstration will again show the incapacity of reactionaries to meet the problems of our day. Definitely and irrevocably Progressives are in the list to stay until every American has been restored his right to a decent and secure livelihood. The national Progressives of America goes forward today. Around it liberals and progressives throughout the nation will rally. In the meantime this is just another round. Every Progressive will take a cinch in his belt and be ready for the next round."

Ekern sent the following congratulations to his successful Republican opponent, Alexander Wiley of Chippewa Falls:

"Yours is a great opportunity to advance the public good and I extend to you every good wish."

Steffes Relected as

Milwaukee Prosecutor

Milwaukee—(AP)—District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes, who sent Governor Philip F. LaFollette's right hand man to the workhouse for manslaughter last spring, was one of two Progressives winning election to Milwaukee county offices in Tuesday's election.

Steffes, with 106,375 votes, ran far ahead of his ticket, outstripping the governor in the county by nearly 20,000. He swamped his nearest opponent, a Republican, and more than doubled the count of Harry McLogan, Democrat.

Good Weather, Big Bargains For Appleton Day Tomorrow

The prospect of pleasant weather and the certainty of outstanding bargains today pointed towards a highly successful Appleton day in the city tomorrow.

More than 60 merchants of the city are cooperating in this annual fall event, designed to give the shopper a wide variety of high quality merchandise at substantially reduced prices. Merchants are making every effort to offer the best bargains in the history of the fall buying feature.

Stores will open at the regular time, 9 o'clock in the morning, and close at 5:30 in the afternoon. The shoppers who will jam the downtown section tomorrow are advised to visit as many stores as possible. The more stores visited the more bargains are made available.

Following is a list of participating stores:

The Pettibone-Peabody company, A and P Tea company, Oaks Candy, Peet Paint Shop, ABC Food Market, Tews Unique Frocks Shoppe, Leath Furniture company, Campbell's Grace's Apparel Shop, Fox Valley Furniture-Mart, Hecker Shoe company, Montgomery Ward and company, Kimball's, Appleton Army Store, Killoren's, Bohi and Maeser, Gamble Stores, Home Hosiery company, Behnke's, Robinson Dress Shop, The Big Shoe Store, Green's, North Side Dry Goods.

Washington—(AP)—Democratic losses in the house of representatives mounted today as late returns from yesterday's election came in from all sections, but that party's losses in the senate appeared to have been pegged at eight.

On the basis of returns at 11:30 a. m. (C. S. T.), Republicans had made a net gain of 62 seats in the house, picking up 57 of them from the Democrats and 5 from Progressives. There still were 58 house races to be settled by more complete returns.

In the senate, the Democrats had lost eight seats to the Republicans. The Republicans also reelected three of their sitting members. Democrats were leading in Nevada and Iowa and a Republican forged ahead in Indiana in the three races still in doubt.

Joshua I. Johns, Algoma, sailed in on a tide of Republican votes yesterday to win the Eighth district congressional seat, displacing George J. Schneider, Appleton Progressive, who held the post since 1922 except for the years 1932 and 1933.

Johns piled up a total of 32,592 in the nine counties in the district, a margin of 4,120 over Schneider who ran second with 28,472 votes. John Cashman, Denmark, the Democratic candidate, polled 28,138 votes and ran a close third. The figures are based on 270 out of 273 precincts in the district.

Johns was one of eight Republicans who won Wisconsin Congressional seats while the two remaining posts went to Progressives in virtually complete returns, according to the Associated Press.

The retirement of Congressman Schneider is the second in his political career. He served 10 years from 1922 and was defeated in 1932.

Monty Is Victor In Court Action

Clintonville Must Restore
Job as Chief and Pay Back Salary

Waupaca—(AP)—Circuit Judge Byron B. Park today granted a writ of mandamus directing officials of the city of Clintonville to restore 70-year-old J. J. Monty as chief of police there and pay him back salary since last May.

The writ is directed at Mayor A. A. Washburn and City Clerk S. J. Tilleson of Clintonville. Monty, chief for 27 years, contended the city council exceeded its authority in demoting, then suspending and finally discharging him for his refusal to accept demotion and a cut in pay.

Monty has been reporting for duty daily since his discharge. Oswald Goerlinger, who was named as Monty's successor, also has been reporting and has collected the $125 monthly salary that goes with the office.

Senator Nye Defeats

Ex-Governor Langer

Fargo, N. D.—(AP)—Senator Gerald P. Nye (R-N. D.) who defeated Governor William Langer for the Republican senatorial nomination in the primaries, today had repeated the feat in the general election. Langer, who filed as an independent after the primaries, was trailing the senate peace advocate by 17,000 votes as one-third of the precincts were reported.

Britain Drops Partition Plan For Holy Land

Will Call Jews and Arabs
To Conference in London

PUSHES FOR ACTION

Government Ready to Make 'Own Decision'
If Necessary

London—(AP)—The British government announced today abandonment of its proposal to partition Palestine.

Instead, a conference of Jews and Arabs will be summoned in London and an attempt made to work out an amicable settlement. If the conference fails, the government will "take their own decision in the light of their examination of the problem and of the discussions in London and announce the policy which they propose to pursue."

In a statement issued simultaneously with the report of the royal commission headed by Sir John Woodhead, the government announced its conclusion that "political, administrative and financial difficulties in the proposal to create independent Arab and Jewish states inside Palestine are so great that this solution of the problem is impractical."

Can't Set Boundaries
The statement said members of the commission were "unable to recommend boundaries for the proposed areas which will afford reasonable prospect of the eventual establishment of self-supporting Arab and Jewish states."

The commission's report came as 20,000 British soldiers sought to restore peace in the Holy Land where an Arab rebellion against British rule and Jewish immigration to their "homeland" has resulted in 2,458 casualties in the last four months and 2,947 in the previous two years.

The partition of Palestine was recommended July 8, 1937, in a report by a royal commission headed by the late Earl Peel. Neither Jews nor Arabs were satisfied with the solution.

Plans Not Made
The government's statement today said the Jewish agency, world Jewish organization empowered by the mandate to advise with the government, would represent the Jews in the conference which it is proposed to summon shortly before Christmas or early in 1939.

In addition to Palestinian Arabs, there will be delegates from neighboring Arab states. The government reserved the right, however, to "refuse to receive those leaders (in Palestine) whom they regard as responsible for the campaign of assassination and violence."

Any policy settled upon at the conference will be submitted for the approval of parliament and the League of Nations, and may also be referred to the United States government.

Couple Faces Trial in 'Witchcraft' Slaying

Houghton, Mich.—(AP)—Justice John McCarthy bound Wilfred Pichette, 35-year-old laborer and his wife to circuit court today on charges of first degree murder for the "witchcraft" slaying Oct. 22 of Marian Doyle, their 20-year old housekeeper.

At a previous examination, the couple's 7-year-old daughter, Norma, testified her father struck Miss Doyle with a flailion while her mother beat the young woman with a poker, because they believed Miss Doyle was "possessed of the devil."

Republican Landslide Carries Heil, Wiley and Full Ticket to Victory

County and City Go Republican by Huge Majorities

Heil and Wiley Overwhelm Opposition in Yesterday's Balloting Here

Outagamie county and the city of Appleton went Republican in such tremendous fashion yesterday that old-time politicians today were raking their memories in an effort to recall a time when the Grand Old Party achieved such a victory.

When the wreckage was cleared away this morning it was found that but one Democratic office holder survived—and he escaped defeat for the proverbial eyelash. The sole Democratic winner was Raymond P. Dohr, who was reelected district attorney over his Republican opponent, William L. Crow.

Outagamie county contributed 7,764 votes to the 150,000 statewide majority by which Republican Julius P. Heil overwhelmed Progressive Governor Philip F. LaFollette. Heil's total of 12,425 votes was almost three times the 4,661 votes cast for LaFollette.

For perhaps the first time in history, the Republicans carried every precinct in the city of Appleton. Heil garnered 6,248 votes in the city's 18 precincts, more than three times as many as the 1,823 cast for LaFollette. Such an overwhelming Republican victory heretofore was unknown in Appleton.

Few Democrats

The Democratic party, which six short years ago was catapulted into leadership in the county and state, was relegated to such an important third position that election observers scarcely bothered to inquire about Democratic votes. Harry W. Bolens, the Democratic ticket leader, polled only 2,031 votes in the county, and 789 of these were cast in Appleton. In only one precinct, the First of the Third ward, did the Democrats make any showing at all, and in that precinct Bolens ran ahead of LaFollette, but far behind Heil.

The Democrats did considerably better in the United States senator contest, but even there they ran a poor second to Republican Alexander Wiley who carried the county by an almost 2 to 1 margin over

Benson Concedes His Defeat by Stassen in Minnesota Election

St. Paul—(AP)—Governor Elmer A. Benson, the country's only Farmer-Labor chief executive, today conceded victory to Harold E. Stassen, his 31-year-old Republican opponent in the race for governor of Minnesota as additional returns boosted Stassen's lead close to the 100,000-mark.

In his statement extending congratulations to the new governor, Benson asserted that Farmer-Laborites will not stand in the way of the Republican chief executive in his efforts to put into effect the "liberal platform" on which he was elected. Benson termed his defeat a "temporary setback."

With 1,180 of the state's 3,740 precincts tabulated, Governor Benson received 149,114 against 243,526 for Stassen. Thomas Gallagher, Democrat, was third with 24,099.

Two Perish in Crash Of Army Combat Plane

Washington—(AP)—Lieutenant Colonel Leslie MacDill, air corps general staff officer on duty at the War Department, and Private J. G. Gloxner, burned to death in an army combat plane which crashed in a Washington street near Bolling field, army air station.

MacDill, 48, a native of Monmouth, Ill., had been attached to the general staff here since 1935. An inquiry board began an immediate investigation.

Evans Illegally Seated as Judge, Supreme Court Holds

Madison—(AP)—The state supreme court ruled today that David M. Evans was illegally seated as municipal judge of Waukesha county because he violated the corrupt practices act with excessive expenditures in the 1936 election campaign.

The high court voided Evans' election to the office now held by Judge Austin Baird, who was appointed by Governor LaFollette following the conviction of Evans on a perjury charge. No decision was announced today on Evans' appeal on conviction of the charge he gave perjured testimony before a grand jury investigating gambling in Waukesha county following the election on April 6, 1936.

The court also affirmed the conviction of Sheriff Walter A. Lisakowicz, who was sentenced to a six month prison term on a malfeasance charge filed by the grand jury, and simultaneously upheld the convictions of eight tavern-

NEW GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN

Julius P. Heil, 62-year-old Milwaukee manufacturer, making his first bid for political office, was elected governor of Wisconsin Tuesday on the Republican ticket, defeating Governor Philip F. LaFollette. An immigrant boy—he came from Germany—he worked on the farm, in a store, as a drill press operator and street railway conductor. In 1900 he organized the Heil Rail Joint Welding company, which grew into the present Heil company.

Republicans Win All County Jobs but District Attorney, Ray Dohr Squeezes Victory

THE WINNERS
District Attorney—Raymond P. Dohr, Democrat.
Sheriff—John F. Lappen, Republican.
Treasurer—Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican.
Register of Deeds—Stephen M. Peeters, Republican.
Assembly, First District—Mark S. Callin, Jr., Republican.
Assembly, Second District—William J. Gantner, Republican.
Coroner—Dr. Herbert E. Ellsworth, Republican.
Clerk—John E. Hantschel, Republican, (Unopposed).
Clerk of Courts—Sydney M. Shannon, Republican, (Unopposed).
Surveyor—Robert M. Connelly, Democrat, (Unopposed).

Republicans swept into all county offices yesterday except that of district attorney, and the winner of that contest escaped defeat by only an eyelash. Raymond P. Dohr, Democrat, was reelected in a garnish finish in which he overcame a 1,000-vote lead to defeat William L. Crow, Republican, by the narrow margin of 207 votes.

A casualty yesterday was Arthur L. Collar, Democrat, who was defeated for reelection for a third term as register of deeds by Stephen M. Peeters, Republican and a newcomer in county politics. Peeters won a 3-cornered race in which Armin B. Scheurle, an independent

Violence Claims 8 Lives in Kentucky

Louisville, Ky.—(AP)—Kentucky counted eight dead today in election day gun play.

Back in 1933 the toll reached 19 in the November general election. Until yesterday voting days had been far less marred by shootings.

Despite the apparent lack of interest during the campaign, Democrats of the state turned out to give Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley a verdict over John P. Haswell, his Republican opponent.

Along with Senator Barkley eight of the nine congressmen appeared certain of reelection on incomplete unofficial returns.

Harlan county, long known for labor and election disorders, reported four dead National guardsmen watched over the ballot boxes throughout the night with representatives of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Harlan's dead: B. P. Hanshell, 31, deputy sheriff; Odell Sizemore, 35; Willie Wynn, 38, and Sherman Howard, 38, former deputy sheriff.

Albert McIntosh, 42, and Sidney Gabbard, 59, were slain in Owensley county. Clarence Cooper, 30, was killed in Bell county. Robert Parrish, 27, was slain in Todd county. One other person was reported dying and two others shot, not seriously.

Four separate shootings were reported in Harlan county. Six men were jailed for two of the incidents in which none was injured.

Forget Partisanship, Governor-Elect Asks Wisconsin Citizens

Milwaukee—(AP)—Julius P. Heil accepted election as governor of Wisconsin today with a statement appealing to those who took part in the bitter campaign to put aside partisanship and work for the best interests of the state.

"From the bottom of my heart I thank the good people of Wisconsin for their expression of confidence in me," Heil said. "It is a great honor and a great obligation to be elected governor. It is a solemn call to duty."

"Fully mindful of the complex problems to be solved, I shall give all there is in me to the service of all the citizens of this state. I am under obligation to no group. I am free, with the help of the legislature, to carry out every pledge I made to the people."

"The campaign grew bitter, but I bear no ill will toward anyone. Let us heal the wounds of the past. Let us, as fellow citizens and neighbors, put aside partisanship and cooperate to make Wisconsin a better, a happier and more prosperous commonwealth."

Phil's Defeat Seen As Blow to New Third Party

LEAD GROWING

Duffy and Bolens are Third in Wisconsin
Election

Milwaukee—(AP)—Julius P. Heil, Milwaukee industrialist, was elected governor of Wisconsin yesterday in a Republican landslide which buried Governor Philip LaFollette's hopes for a fourth term and routed virtually the entire Progressive state and national ticket.

New Deal Democrats also went down under the avalanche with the defeat of United States Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac by Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican.

On the basis of nearly complete returns from the state's 2,995 precincts, the Republicans captured all of the major state offices now held by Progressives and eight of the ten congressional seats. The same returns indicated large Republican gains in the state legislature, especially in the senate where it seemed likely that the Wisconsin G. O. P. had come back into its own and that the fight for governmental control would be solely between Republicans and Progressives were borne out by the tabulation of the vote.

Lead Near 175,000

Heil was piling up a plurality of more than 180,000 over Governor LaFollette, while State Senator Harry Bolens, Port Washington, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, ran a poor third.

In the senatorial race Wiley's margin over Herman L. Ekern, Madison Progressive, was around 140,000 and Duffy trailed in third place. John B. Chapple, independent candidate, was left far behind.

The vote in 2,903 precincts of 2-

For governor—LaFollette, 337,282; Bolens, 74,605; Heil, 520,975; Smith, 2,772; Schleier, 897.

For United States Senator—Ekern, 239,354; Duffy, 217,607; Wiley, 426,945; Chapple, 5,549; Ehrhardt, 463; Blair, 857.

Governor LaFollette's crushing defeat, coming at a time when he had planned active promotion of the Progressive party on a national scale, was due to a shift of the vote in rural territory that is normally Progressive, and a complete swing of the industrial sections to the Republican column.

Coalition Factor

Counties which handed the governor heavy majorities in the election of 1934 and 1936 switched to Heil in yesterday's election. Evidence that the coalition drive against LaFollette had been effective was to be found in a comparison of the vote for senator and governor.

Bolens received about 100,000 less votes than were cast for Duffy, and Heil ran far ahead of Wiley. Bolens was picked by the Democratic state central committee to run for governor after Robert K. Henry of Jefferson rejected the nomination in favor of Heil.

Tuesday's results marked the steady rise of the Republicans since the tide turned in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, when Duffy was elected to the senate.

New Deal aids, including Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, gave Duffy their personal support but the Republican ticket rolled up substantial majorities even in the Democratic counties.

Judge Refuses to Direct Acquittal Of 3 Spy Suspects

New York—(AP)—Federal Judge John C. Knox today refused to direct a verdict acquitting two men and a woman charged with spying in this country for the German government.

Defense counsel moved for the directed verdict during the trial of Johanna Hofmann, hairdresser on the liner Europa; Otto Hermann Voss, former airplane mechanic, and Erich Glaser, former United States army private in the air service.

Judge Knox answered sharply the defense counsel's contention that Miss Hofmann could not be held accountable for actions in Germany, or on German boats where she is subject to German law and that the government could not act against conspiracies by German agents in Germany.

"I can't understand the theory that the German government could send the Bremen and Europa here laden with spies and we could not act because their government sent them," the court ruled. "We would be in a bad way, indeed, if we couldn't punish anyone who did act on the direct orders of their government."

"The Germans could come in here with their fingers crossed, do anything, and say their government crossed their fingers."

New Majority In House Today, Lawrence States

Could be Mobilized Against Certain Types Of New Deal Policy

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There's a new majority today in the house of representatives which can be mobilized against certain types of New Deal policy.

This is the true significance of the national election just held. For it has been evident during the last six years that certain members of the house and senate, classified for party reasons as Democrats, do not see eye to eye with the New Deal and on vital questions are recorded against the administration.

The majority on such issues as the reorganization bill in the house or the supreme court packing bill in the senate has been narrow. As a result of the election this week, the majority has been considerably increased.

To find out the real majority in the house of representatives against the administration on vital issues involving property rights and human liberties, it is necessary to add the new Republican total to the independent bloc of Democrats in both houses. This group includes about 100 representatives and 22 senators.

Independent Bloc

How is the independent bloc made up? In order to ascertain just who should be included in such a tabulation, "The United States News," published here, looked up the records of all the Democratic members of congress in the last six sessions since the New Deal began and found that in the first two years there were only four senators and fourteen representatives of the Democratic party who voted against the administration with any degree of consistency, but that in the next two years the number had risen to 16 senators and 66 representatives, while in the last two years the number went up to 22 senators and 100 representatives.

Thus, if the Republican membership by the final voting were shown to be a minimum of 125, there could be added 100 Democrats on certain vital issues which would make a total of 225, and that's 7 more votes than necessary to prevent the passage of New Deal legislation.

Anything above 125 merely as-ures even more definitely the existence of a new majority.

During the first two years of the New Deal, the number of votes cast in either the senate or the house against administration measures were few because of the tendency of the people to give the benefit of the doubt to new proposals. But gradually the opposition rose on such issues as renewal of the NRA, the AAA and the reciprocal trade agreements. The utility holding company bill, with its so-called "death sentence," the Guffey Coal act and the Wagner Labor Relations bill all furnished opportunities for sharp differences of opinion in the second two years.

Opposition Grew

Finally, in the last two years, the supreme court issue in the senate and such measures as the wage and hour law, the TVA, and the plan to reorganize the executive departments and agencies developed lines of cleavage so deep that the president's campaign, called the "purge," which he waged in the Democratic primaries in various states, arose out of a feeling that opposition inside the party was growing rather than diminishing and had to be restrained by an appeal to the party voters.

The Republicans, on the other hand, though possessed in the last two years of only 88 votes, have been fairly cohesive, and the additions to their ranks will not only encourage greater opposition to the administration, but will produce a certain amount of timidity among the Democrats in the house and senate who come up for reelection in 1940. In other words, if the politicians think a trend has been established of opposition to Roosevelt policies, they will naturally examine the reasons for it very carefully and develop a more independent course themselves.

Not On Ballot

The administration leaders, on the other hand, will seek to overcome this nervousness by pointing out that Mr. Roosevelt was not on the ballot in 1938, but may be in 1940, and that his personal popularity has not waned.

Most important of all results flowing from the election, however, is the effect on the immediate business situation. Elections always cause uncertainty and hesitation. When they are out of the way, planning for the future and adjustment to the new political line-up takes place very quickly. Business has shown signs of an upturn for several weeks. Whether this has been due to natural causes—recovery from the recession—or to an anticipation by business men of the outcome of this very election is difficult to say.

But there can be no doubt that business men feel a lot better today than they did before the election, and much more certain of an independent congress than they have before. It is not the governments which matter to the business appraisal of an election, but the trend in the house of representatives.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Opposition

At this time when the election speeches have all been delivered and the votes have been counted, I have been remembering some remarks made many years ago by George Santayana. The practice of liberty as we understand it in America presupposes two things, said he: "That all concerned are fundamentally unanimous, and that each has a plastic nature, which he is willing to modify." Translated into the words that we now use, this would mean that a democratic order will work when all concerned are agreed on ultimate objectives, when no sizeable number of voters are revolutionary and irrevocable, and when men are willing to change their minds and modify their actions as a result of debate with their opponents.

Thinking about Mr. Santayana's remark, I read an article by my colleague, Mr. Ernest K. Lindley, in which he printed a list of New Deal measures "that have come through this campaign free of major criticism." It is an impressive list, extending from the Civilian Conservation Corps through the banking laws and the laws administered by the Securities and Exchange Commission to the T. V. A. Mr. Lindley says that these measures came into being in the face of "an hysterical struggle" but that now there is no avowed or important opposition. And then, though he does not say so in so many words, Mr. Lindley leaves the reader with the impression that the opposition has been as ineffective as it has been stupid and reactionary, and that in the working out of the New Deal opposition and criticism have been a nuisance rather than a benefit.

Many Major Measures Of New Deal Accepted

Mr. Lindley is, I think, very much mistaken about the historical facts and in his reasoning from the facts. It is, in the main, true that at the end of six years of excited controversy a great many of the major measures of the New Deal are generally accepted. I think, as he does, that this is a good thing. But it is not true that the measures that are now accepted are the same measures we should have had if there had been no opposition. It has been opposition, both from the outside of the New Deal and from the inside, which has modified the initial proposals and their subsequent administration. It has been in this process of give and take that the measures which are now acceptable to the great majority. The result which Mr. Lindley approves could not have been achieved without the opposition which he scorns.

Had opposition been ineffective in the past six years, there would be no such general agreement on so many principles and measures as there is today. For the measures would have been very different in this very struggle, which Mr. Lindley dismisses as "hysterical." The New Dealers and their opponents have learned from each other, and if they now are able to agree on so many things, it is precisely because they have had to modify their principles and their practice.

Opposition Altered Supreme Court Issue

For a specific example, Mr. Lindley cites the Supreme Court bill, saying: "After all, the president won. The Supreme Court now has a liberal majority and the issue of 1937 is dead." No doubt the issue is dead. But suppose the bill had been passed. Would the issue be dead? Would the American people feel the same way about a "liberalization" of the Court, achieved by destroying its independence and packing it, as they do about a change arrived at without such a subversive procedure? They would not. Had the bill passed because there was no opposition to prevent it, we should almost certainly find ourselves today in the midst of a bitter constitutional struggle.

Opposition Indispensable To Preserve Democracy

The only reason for dwelling on all this is that if we are to preserve democracy, we must understand its principles. And the principle which distinguishes it from all other forms of government is that in a democracy the opposition is not only tolerated as constitutional but must be maintained because it is in fact indispensable.

The democratic system cannot be operated without effective opposition. For in making the great experiment of governing people by consent rather than by coercion, it is not sufficient that the party in power should have a majority. It is just as necessary that it should never outrage the minority. That means that it must listen to the minority and be moved by the criticisms of the minority. That means that its measures must take account of the minority's objections and must remember that the minority may become the majority.

But political human nature being what it is, men dislike opposition and will not listen to it unless the opposition is too strong to be ignored. That is why democracies pay a salary to the leader of the opposition instead of putting him in jail.

The opposition is indispensable. A good statesman always learns more

U. W. Facilities Are Available to State Industries

University President Offers Aid to Solve Various Problems

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—The University of Wisconsin's technical and research facilities and experts are available for assistance in the solution of problems facing Wisconsin industry, according to President C. A. Dykstra of the state school.

Dykstra has invited all industrialists in the state to come to the university for help in their problems, noting that it is "the earnest desire of this administration of the University of Wisconsin to place the facilities of the university even more effectively at the service of the people of the state in every appropriate way."

The state institution has inaugurated a new industrial survey of research possibilities in Wisconsin industry, Dykstra announced, under the direction of Dr. J. B. Friauf, physicist and engineer.

Announce Project

At the same time the university announced the beginning of a project which is designed to prepare the way for the possible development of a new Wisconsin industry in manufacturing tableware and artistic pottery from native clays.

The project is supervised by from his opponents than from his fervent supporters. For his supporters will push him to disaster unless his opponents show him where the dangers are. So if he is wise, he will often pray to be delivered from his friends because they will ruin him. But, though it hurts, he ought also to pray never to be left without opponents. For they keep him on the path of reason and good sense.

National Unity Depends on Balance of Power

The national unity of a free people depends upon a sufficiently even balance of political power to make it impracticable for the administration to be arbitrary and for the opposition to be revolutionary and irreconcilable. Where that balance no longer exists, democracy perishes. For unless all the citizens of a state are forced by circumstances to compromise, unless they feel that no one can wholly dominate it, unless by habit and necessity they have to give and take, freedom cannot be maintained.

Freedom is a way of life for moderate men, not for willful and fanatic men. For the conflicts of irreconcilables lead to a chaotic disorder that only a tyrant can deal with.

Expect Approval For WPA Project

Proposal Would Provide Work for Crew During Winter

Kimberly—A large WPA project is expected to be approved about the first part of December, according to Village President Lloyd Lang, who explained at a village board meeting Monday evening that the proposed project will provide work for the village crew throughout the winter months. The various types of work included are: leveling and seeding terraces, work on streets and sidewalks, intersections, curbs and gutters, driveways, road oiling, storm sewers, manholes, light posts, street signs and others.

The board will meet soon with the street committee in which a specific program will be outlined for numbering the homes and erecting street signs throughout the village early in spring.

The president requested that James Gaffney, street commissioner, demand the workers on WPA show their card stamped in proof they had registered at the unemployment office, as is required once each month.

The board was again authorized to borrow funds to meet the current expenditures for the coming month. The board approved re-roofing the old village hall at a cost of approximately $50. The hall has been given over to the Boy Scout organization. Formerly it had been used to house village property.

Murphy Concedes Defeat in Race at Michigan Polls

Missing Precincts May Reduce Fitzgerald's Margin

Detroit (U)—Frank Murphy, Michigan's New Deal governor, was unseated in Tuesday's election by Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican, who was the state's chief executive in 1935 and 1936.

Returns from 3,109 out of 3,553 precincts gave Fitzgerald 722,826 votes and Murphy 636,622.

Democrats expected that missing precincts in Detroit, which Murphy served as judge and mayor, would reduce Fitzgerald's margin but not enough to change the result.

Governor Murphy, conceding defeat, said in a formal statement: "I fully accept the verdict of democracy. It has been a great privilege to serve the people of Michigan. My faith in the people is unshaken."

He wired Fitzgerald "heartiest congratulations and best wishes for success" and urged him to confer with him soon, adding "I shall be glad to be of all possible assistance to you."

The governor had indicated during the night he expected defeat, and was plainly dejected. However, a telephone call from President Roosevelt cheered the governor before the outcome became plain.

Murphy's First Defeat

It was the first defeat for Murphy in political life. He resigned as governor general of the Philippines to campaign successfully for governor of Michigan in the 1936 presidential year.

Murphy's conciliatory labor policies during the automobile sitdown strikes of 1937 were criticized constantly by Fitzgerald during the campaign. Fitzgerald also advocated repudiation of what he called "the little New Deal in Michigan."

President Roosevelt had endorsed Murphy and indicated he considered the Michigan gubernatorial contest of special significance.

Riding to victory with Fitzgerald were the nine Michigan Republican congressmen. In addition the Republicans won at least one additional seat, William W. Blackley over Andrew J. Transue, Democratic representative from the Sixth (Flint) district. Returns from the other seven districts represented by Democrats were not sufficiently complete to show the probable outcome.

Legislative Control

Incomplete returns indicated Fitzgerald would have working Republican majorities in both houses of the legislature.

In the house, where Democrats now have a 60-40 majority, returns indicated Fitzgerald will have approximately 70 Republicans and 30 Democrats. In the senate, where Democrats now have a 17-15 technical advantage, Republicans may have as many as 20 of the 32 seats.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lehman, Democrat from Ingham county's First district, and who was only woman in the 1937-38 legislature, lost to Fred L. Kirschner, Republican, a Lansing alderman. Miss Ruth Thompson, Republican of Muskegon, a newcomer to state politics, ousted Representative Frank N. Steele, Democrat, in the Muskegon county First district.

Barbour Elected to U. S. Senate Seat in New Jersey Contest

Newark, N. J.—(U)—W. Warren Barbour, Republican and wealthy thread manufacturer, regained a seat in the United States senate today by defeating William H. Ely, who campaigned as a "100 per cent New Dealer."

With 90 districts missing of 3,578 in the state, Barbour led by 98,587. His vote was 784,563 and Ely's 685,976.

Ely, who resigned as state WPA administrator to become the Democratic candidate, had the support of the national administration and of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic state leader.

Hague's organization, facing its first election test since his "civil liberties" court controversy with the CIO, showed it was as strong as ever in Hudson county, rolling up a majority there of 131,021, or about 2,000 more than A. Harry Moore, a native son, received last year in his successful race for governor.

Barbour, who voted for much New Deal legislation as a senator during President Roosevelt's first term but was defeated in the Democratic landslide of 1936, will fill the seat now held by John Milton of Jersey City, Hague's close friend. The term expires in 1940. Milton, appointed by Moore who resigned as senator to become governor, did not seek election.

Robert A. Taft to Get Senate Seat

New Deal Foe Triumphs in Race With Bulkley in Ohio

Columbus, Ohio—(U)—Ohio voters ordered respected Republican Robert A. Taft, caustic foe of the New Deal, to the United States senate today to succeed Senator Robert J. Bulkley, ardent supporter of President Roosevelt.

Taft, slightly bald attorney of studious mien, son of former President William Howard Taft, defeated Bulkley in Tuesday's election after a campaign highlighted by a series of "Lincoln-Douglas" debates.

Partisans read into the Cincinnati victory a demand from Ohio for recognition of Taft as presidential timber in 1940.

He will join Senator Vic Donahey (D) in the senate.

The vote in 7,975 of the state's 8,599 precincts gave Taft 1,130,895 and Bulkley 970,731.

John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for governor, was carried to victory over Charles Sawyer, Democrat, on the crest of the party's Ohio triumph.

In 7,116 precincts, the vote was: Bricker 1,012,708; Sawyer 926,371.

The New Deal was an agreed issue in the spectacular Taft-Bulkley debates, a series the victory produced.

The surge of Republican votes appeared to be giving to the G. O. P. domination of the state's major offices, congressional delegation and legislature.

Every Republican candidate for a major state office appeared almost assured of victory.

region to one of the most popular tourist attractions in the United States was told yesterday by Professor Frederick W. Trezise of Lawrence college before the Appleton Rotary club at noon in the Conway hotel.

Almost unknown 10 years ago, the Smokies, named for the haze that constantly hangs over them, last summer drew more people than any of the other national parks, Professor Trezise said. He showed slides, some of them colored, of scenes in the mountains.

County and City Go Republican by Huge Majorities

The Democratic incumbent. One of the surprises was the relatively poor showing made by Herman L. Ekern the Progressive candidate, who ran a very bad third.

Wiley polled a total of 10,229 votes, Duffy wound up with 5,286, and Ekern finished with 2,058.

The Republicans carried every precinct in the city of Appleton, and Duffy was second in all but two of them.

The Republican victory drive did not stop with the two major candidates, but carried right on through to the minor state offices and legislative positions. Even such oddsmen as Secretary of State Damann and Treasurer Sol Levitan went down under the deluge of Republican votes. Damann, who had carried the county in his vest pocket for many years, was soundly trounced by Republican Fred R. Zimmerman, formerly governor and secretary of state, and Levitan ran 4,000 votes behind Frank L. Smith, Republican candidate for state treasurer, a total stranger to almost all Outagamie county voters. He was a Republican, however, and that was enough for the vast majority of voters.

Loomis Loses

Orland Loomis, Progressive attorney general, fared even worse than his ticket-mates, losing the county by something like 6,400 votes to John F. Martin, his Republican opponent. Walter S. Goodland, endorsed by both Republicans and Coalitionists in the primary for lieutenant governor, walloped George Nelson, the Progressive nominee by about 8,100 votes. Next to Heil he polled the largest Republican vote.

One of the surprises of the election was the exceedingly poor showing made by John B. Chapple in his race for the United States senate. Chapple had received oceans of publicity, had been a candidate for years, and yet he collected only 131 votes in the county, despite his championship of the Townsend cause.

The vote was quite light, even for an off-year election. A total of 19,574 votes were cast for governor, compared with 21,150 in the off-year election of four years ago, and 26,817 in the presidential year of 1936.

The Union party, which polled only 424 votes for its gubernatorial candidate, Frank W. Smith, received the bulk of its support from the Little Chute which cast 123 votes for this candidate. Almost all the remainder of his support came from Kimberly, Kaukauna and Freedom.

Tables giving the detailed vote for all the offices in all the precincts in the county will be found on page 4 of the Post-Crescent today.

Republican Candidates Win To Power by Landslide in Keystone State Balloting

Philadelphia—(U)—Republicans rode a landslide back to power today in Pennsylvania.

Leads of 270,000 to 350,000—greater than their most optimistic party leaders had predicted—elected Republicans as United States senator, governor, lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs.

Democrats lost their majority in the state legislature and were left with only a narrow margin of control in Pennsylvania's 34-man congressional delegation.

Governor George H. Earle, who brought in a "Little New Deal" four years ago, after 40 years of Republican state control, lost by 350,000 votes his fight to win the senate seat held by the silver-haired Republican, James J. Davis.

From out of the hard coal fields, Superior Court Judge Arthur H. James drove his way to the governorship over the Democratic candidate, Charles Alvin Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer, who was pledged to carry on the Earle program.

National Factor

With only scattered precincts unreported the vote was:

For governor—(7,246 of 8,079 election districts) Judge James 1,822,008; Jones, 1,609,601.

For United States Senator—(7,246 of 8,079 election districts) Senator Davis, 1,928,482; Governor Earle, 1,561,892.

That vote and the Republican gains in congress held national significance. The Keystone State has an important New Deal battlefront. Some observers said the outcome indicated how the state's 35 electoral college votes might be cast in the 1940 presidential election.

President Roosevelt, in the closing days of the campaign, wrote a letter commending the Earle administration.

James, red-haired jurist who described himself as a former "break-boy" in the hard coal fields, hailed the vote as "an impetus for the return of two party government in Pennsylvania and the United States."

The Republican victory came largely from the farms and factories. Only the coal counties—bituminous and anthracite alike—stood by the Governor Earle's "Little New Deal."

With half of 34 congressional con-

Tubbs Herd Takes Milk Production Honors for Month

Holstein Cows Show Average of 36.9 Pounds of Butterfat

The Holstein herd of George Tubbs produced an average of 36.9 pounds of butterfat for high honors in the Outagamie County Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 5, in October, according to Melvin Haefelbecker, tester.

The Frank Bacheller herd of Holsteins placed second with an average of 36 pounds of fat. Third was the Guernsey and Holstein herd of Bert Zobel with 34.4 pounds of fat. The Ed Vogel herd of Guernseys was fourth with 33.5 pounds of fat and the Elmer Mueller Guernsey herd fifth with 27.4 pounds of fat.

First in individual production was a cow in the Tubbs herd with 1,668 pounds of milk containing 70 pounds of butterfat. Second place was taken by a Holstein in the Frank Bacheller herd with 2,030 pounds of milk containing 62.9 pounds of fat. Two cows in the Tubbs herd showed 61 pounds of fat for third place. Fourth was a cow in the Ray Newhouse herd. It produced 59.8 pounds of fat.

There are a Variety of Ways In Which Elections are Won

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

New York—How do you win an election? One way is to have a candidate who is irresistible, like Roosevelt, or in his own field, one like Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas. Now there's a vote-getter, one of the few Republicans have had in recent years. To look at Capper you wouldn't think he had anything. But he just goes on being elected to the senate, in good years and in bad ones.

A Republican, Capper was reelected governor of Kansas when Woodrow Wilson carried both Kansas and the nation. He was elected to the senate in 1918, while the war was still on and against Wilson's appeal for the election of Democrats to uphold his hands in the war. And he's gone on being elected ever since. In 1924 he rode in with Coolidge. In 1930 he came back although Republicans were falling all around as by that time the Hoover administration was on the unpopular rocks of the depression. And in 1936, when Roosevelt was taking the country, even beating Landon in Kansas, Republican Senator Capper was reelected again.

It was of Capper that the saying grew up that he kept both ears to the ground at the same time. Capper's speeches and his editorials, which appear in Capper's weekly, are often written over his name by his Washington correspondent, Cliff Stratton. Just the same whatever Capper says or stands for is accepted as a reliable weather vane of farm belt political sentiment. You seldom go wrong following Capper. He makes a poor speech. He is too shy to mix into senate floor debate. He hasn't had any federal patronage since the Democrats came in. The conservative wing in his own party in Kansas has never been enthusiastic about him. But he keeps on rolling along. Get a candidate like that and you can't help but win elections.

There are several such men in Washington. Senator Norris of Nebraska is another case. He never did bother with patronage. Didn't want it. Said it was more trouble than it was worth. It made more enemies than friends. Norris never bothered too much about keeping his ear to the ground in Nebraska. Capper always knows what Kansas will be thinking six months hence. But Norris doesn't care much what Nebraska thinks. It will think whatever he says. Borah is the same way in Idaho. They play politics in their own way, prima donna fashion and get away with it.

Some times elections can be won by speeches, but not very often. Capper and Wenzel Schillhabel, Center, and 19 grandchildren.

because it enables them to round up party workers at rallies and instills pep in the party organization. Among professional politicians, speaking is not regarded as a primary means of changing votes unless the candidate is most exceptional. Ordinarily, then, unless you have the Roosevelt radio voice, you don't win elections simply by making speeches.

Most important of all in winning elections, the politicians think, is organization, particularly election day organization to get the vote out to the polls. The side which can hire the most people with automobiles, paying them five or ten dollars for election day expenses, is most likely to win, if the state or district is at all evenly divided.

Workers Rated by Votes They Deliver

When an exceptionally spectacular personality is a candidate, he draws out the vote by the excitement which he stimulates. When ordinary plug horse candidates are running, politicians have to cart and drag the vote to the polls. Each worker is rated for the number of votes he can deliver at the polls. Watchers are hired and are expected to deliver five to ten votes each in return for the five or ten dollars watchers fee which they are paid. Each county or city or state employee who owes his job to the organization, must deliver his vote, his family's and probably those of half a dozen friends.

Thus the political machine piles up its votes. In some places it is an old custom to count the votes whether they are cast or not. That's another way in which elections have been won by machines in a lot of places.

Thus endeth today's lesson

THEY PUSHED SPENSER OVER

Picks were swung in Westminster Abbey a week ago and the grave of Edmund Spenser was opened after a period of 339 years.

Members of an organization known as the Baconian society finally persuaded the Dean of Westminster to open this tomb in the hope they might discover some evidence to prove that Sir Francis Bacon was in fact the author of Shakespeare's works. Spenser was brought into this controversy without any fault upon his part. He happened to die in 1599 when Shakespeare was in the fullness of life and strength and a tradition has existed since that when Spenser was buried other poets as a gesture of honor tossed some of their original manuscripts and the pens with which they were written into his closing tomb.

So the Baconians argued that if the tomb were opened and an original manuscript of Shakespeare's discovered the handwriting disclosed might be the closing piece of evidence to establish or disprove that in fact it was Bacon who wrote all of Shakespeare's plays.

But the Spenser tomb upset the tradition. Neither parchments nor pens were found within it. And the Baconians may return to their ale and cheese and their eternal arguments to establish that William Shakespeare instead of being the greatest master the English language ever knew was just a ham actor whose name was obligingly loaned to a nobleman who spent his time writing plays but didn't care for any of the other glories of an author.

There have been few controversies within the realm of letters more bitter than that over the authorship of Shakespeare.

And yet this man was dead nearly 200 years before the controversy arose.

Perhaps it was stimulated by the fact that Shakespeare grew as time elapsed and finally his miraculous pen became the envy of all men. When one becomes the envy of others, be he living or dead, there is bound to be a lively contest over him.

After the controversy picked up speed it maintained a dizzy pace worthy of something more worth while. In about a hundred years there have been published 255 separate books printed to uphold one side or the other. And about two-thirds of these have been of American origin, the English being less emotionally upset by the controversy.

One of the greatest Americans who devoted years of his life to the debate was Ignatius Donnelly, a Minnesota politician of 50 years ago, who also ran for vice-president on the Populist ticket and was guilty of several other similar indiscretions.

Basically, however, the denial of Shakespeare's just claim to fame is an assertion of a common human fault, the unwillingness to believe that so much greatness could be found in the endeavors of one whose lineage did not include nobility and presented so little of opportunity. It is put pretty well by one Baconian thus:

"The plays are too great, and out of all proportion to the obscurity which rests upon Shakespeare's life, and to the insignificance of his contemporary fame. They are filled with all kinds of classical illustration, professional information, legal, medical, scientific, to an extent which an obscure play-actor could not possibly compile within the limits of his ragged and scanty education."

Upon this same argument the American people 200 years hence will be asked to disbelieve that Abraham Lincoln wrote the wonderful words, sad, moving and powerful, which we now credit to him, language that is at once a song and a prayer, and that welded the union together after it had been splintered by sledgehammers no end. And yet Lincoln had infinitely fewer educational chances than Shakespeare whose father was a rather well-to-do farmer, owner, as history tells us, of "two houses," a man who would have seemed the very personification of wealth in the Lincoln family.

But scholars are very stubborn people. They consider the decision of this controversy of such great importance to the world some of them would hardly look up from their manuscripts to read of Munich and devote their lives to the discovery of "positive proofs" while like Donnelly they read the writings of both Bacon and Shakespeare and profess to discover secretly hidden ciphers revealing how carefully authorship was concealed back there in 1600 in order to play pranks with the 20th century.

Some of the dead have a great pre-eminence against this useless violation of their tombs. On Shakespeare's grave is the verse, attributed to the playwright himself, that may invite attack more than anything else:

"Good friend, for Jesus' sake forbear
To dig the dust enclosed here;
Blest be the man that spares these stones,
And curst be he that moves my bones."

THE KING IS COMING

In the announcement of the President's invitation to the English king to visit America next summer and the latter's acceptance is contained one of those careful elements of long planning that is found necessary in such visits.

Of course a trip of this kind is not a mere amusement for the monarch. Monarchs find their amusements in the affairs of state which provide much journeying but an equal amount of cementing.

Were the announcement of this trip to be postponed until a few weeks before the King embarked failure of its purpose might ensue because no one can foresee what international problems might present themselves so far in the future and the visit could be destroyed if this country believed that it was primarily concerned with some problem which the two countries were considering at the time it was made.

So the world is advised nine months in advance that the King is coming hither. Thus the friendship between the two nations may not be jeopardized and the purposes of the trip brought to naught by untoward world events.

Of course America will welcome the British king as it should any guest. But the welcome will probably be warmer than usual since this monarch is the representative of as virile and stubborn a race of people as the world knows, people who are presently engaged in a practical struggle for peace.

Britain occupies a hazardous position. Modern inventions have made the protection of travel routes which are her lifeline extremely difficult. Her statesmen look upon America, to use their own expression, as "the most powerful nation in the world." They are not to be criticized in their attempt to keep open with America an avenue through which a lifeline may some day be carried if necessary. They are exceedingly clever at recruiting assistance from others. Their envoys are life trained, persistent and loyal to their flag.

America wishes Britain well as it wishes every nation well. But sometimes our diplomats have been a bit soft and puttyish in the hands of British ambassadors. Their purpose must always be to serve America and American interests. Unfortunately our interests do not always run parallel with Britain's.

ECHO FROM THE POLISH BORDER

The act of a Jewish youth of seventeen in attacking a German embassy secretary at Paris was probably dictated by a mind driven off the course of sanity through suffering.

The Jews know their history too well to expect anything but disaster from assassinations. Murder as a political weapon has almost invariably helped destroy those who used it. The act of this irresponsible youth is already chalked upon the billboards at Berlin as the fruit of "international Jewish conspiracies." Yet the wonder is that the Hitler attack upon this race has not provoked more violent retaliation than an isolated instance here and there involving one whose mind gave way under the strain.

Racial warfare constantly presents certain tortures that even the devil could not improve upon. These relate largely to children, the aged or the physically helpless. When these classes, and particularly children, are singled out for cruel or exasperating mistreatment it requires a will of iron to hold in leash the natural instincts that arise in a parent's bosom.

But attacks are useless. They are even worse than useless. They bring down more fire upon the heads of the innocent already caught in traps from which they are unable to release themselves. They provide fuel for brass-throated agitators to move the minds of those who are not mentally strong into a belief in blood rituals and all the other hateful jargon of the Dark Ages.

The episode also creates a difficulty for France. The youth must be tried in the usual way. That means a jury. A jury will have difficulty in overlooking facts that goaded the young man on. It may return a verdict somewhat inconsistent with the letter of the law. This, if it serves the Nazi interests at the time, may very well result in another outburst against the pulsing form of democracy, not that such an outburst will be taken seriously by democracy but that it may tend to convince the German people that they are well rid of a bad nightmare when they embraced Hitlerism.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Blind—Like a Fox:

Peter Arno, the artist, is, in a quiet way a player of pranks. It wouldn't surprise me at all, for instance, if he telephoned a woman acquaintance, disguised his voice, and said: "These is Count Dmitri Oscaroff of Moscow. My verra good fran, Meester Pietro Arno, asked me to give it you a ring on ze telephone when I arrive in thees beautiful New York." The lady, flattered, would invite him to call. Arno would thereupon attire himself in thick black whiskers and go calling. Boys will be boys.

The other night, deciding to see a movie, he went to the Paramount theatre. Every seat was filled. This annoyed Arno who, with the impatience of genius, was in no mood to stand.

He solved the seating problem promptly. He walked slowly down the aisle with both hands held gently in front of him groping, and with a blank stare in his eyes. He had advanced barely half way toward the front when half a dozen people jumped up to give him their seats. The first to reach him took him gently by the arm and led him carefully to a seat. Arno thanked him, sat down and enjoyed the picture very much.

Another Prankster:

Another famous prankster is Charles McArthur, playwright husband of Helen (Victoria Regina) Hayes. McArthur and his sometimes collaborator, Ben Hecht, have in their day connived in many a gag.

McArthur is an alumnus of a rather exclusive academy—exclusive in that it was a prep school that existed for only a brief 16 years, from 1905 to 1920. That was Wilson Memorial Academy, which recently held the first of what are to be annual reunions. McArthur, working on a scenario in Hollywood, wired regrets.

Wilson Memorial Academy, friends of McArthur will be surprised to learn, was a school founded to train young people for foreign missions.

Blind Genius:

One of the gayest performers in New York is the Englishman, Alec Templeton, pianist and entertainer, who is blind. Appearing at the Rainbow Room, he delights to adjourn, after his performance, to the lounge where he sits happily, chatting with many friends who, passing, stop by his chair. He refuses to make a recluse of himself, even though the light is shut from him forever.

At the piano he is more the comedian than the virtuoso. He makes jolly jokes with his music. He plays the sad and solemn "Lost Chord" of Sir Arthur Sullivan, and then plays it again "as it might have been written if Sir Arthur were using it in one of the Gilbert and Sullivan Operettas."

It is delightful, cultured entertainment. If a blind man can be so clever and so jolly, what are we crabbing about? We ought to be ashamed of ourselves.

Blind—Yet They See:

Blind people are no rarities at the movies, especially at those theatres where stage shows are offered. Nor is blindness a drawback to the enjoyment of baseball games. Even cripples confined to wheel chairs are frequent patrons at places of amusement. Ushers are always solicitous that such patrons receive special attention.

Blind men who beg on the streets are now showing special civic pride. They wear large, round buttons on which is printed in big letters: "Blind." In smaller type are these words: "Visit the World's Fair, 1939."

Wild Life Dept.:

By Mail: "Friends of Lauritz Melchior, the Great Dane of the Metropolitan Opera, are feasting on buffalo meat, the tenor having shot a buffalo while in North Dakota. The buffalo head will be mounted and sent to Melchior's hunting estate in Europe in remembrance of America, the land I have learned to love."

Comment on above: We do not begrudge you a buffalo, Lauritz, but taking a stuffed head back to Europe is like carrying coals to Newcastle.

Peru, Indiana—Salute!

Suavity and sophistication come not from New York's Park Avenue but from Middle America's small towns. Two examples: Clifton Webb, appearing in "You Never Know," was born in Peru, Indiana. Cole Porter, composer of "You Never Know" and regarded as the most sophisticated Broadway songwriter, was born in—Peru, Indiana. (Copyright, 1938)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Nov. 7, 1928
Herbert C. Hoover was elected president of the United States over Governor Alfred E. Smith in a record vote cast in the general election the previous day. Substantial Republican majorities in both the senate and house were feeling in behind the Hoover tide. Walter J. Kohler, a Republican, was the governor-elect of Wisconsin.

Two new officers were to go on the Outagamie county payroll next Jan. 1 as a result of Tuesday's election. They were Frederick W. Giese, elected sheriff over Martin Verhagen by 971 votes, and Stanley Staidl who defeated F. J. Rooney for election as district attorney.

Chairmen of the various committees for the Elks club annual charity show, "Wanted—A Million," were to meet that evening to make final arrangements for the production. Committee heads were J. F. Bannister, talent; Russell Spoon, advertising; Edward F. Mumm, music; W. C. Jacobson, tickets.

23 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Nov. 12, 1915
The Rev. Howard Miller, Appleton, former pastor of the Methodist church at Hortonville, had retired from the ministry and moved from Green Bush, his last parish, to Appleton.

A number of professors and students of Lawrence college combined their energies to clear the football field of snow the previous afternoon so that the team could practice for its last home game of the season against Ripon. Among the professors who joined the shovel brigade were Dr. W. D. Marsh, J. H. Farley, L. B. Rogers, A. A. Trever, R. C. Mullenix, J. S. Garris, R. M. Bagg, W. S. Crafer, J. B. Lymer and W. S. Naylor.

Fire protection was opened to the lower Fourth ward the previous day when the Green company connected the new mains leading to that section of the city. The territory which became supplied with water was Maple Grove street from the Interlake mill to the school house; south on Kernan avenue to Harrison street; north from Maple Grove on Walter avenue to Gunn street.

Rebellious word for Time's persistent raid.

My dog and I can see the sunset turning
The western sky to glory as we jog
Along the path; and all my pain and yearning
Is stilled when I am stropping with my dog.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Anyone hopeful (or fearful) that tipping would be ended by the wage-hour act can abandon the idea. The act doesn't seem to reach into the zone of the tip—gathering help—unless a person spends his time mostly riding on trains or getting on and off them.

The act doesn't apply to employees working for outfits "the greater part of whose selling or servicing is in intrastate commerce." That exempts bell boys in hotels, elevator operators, waiters in cafes and even hat check girls.

At the time we are writing this the case hasn't been decided as to whether messenger boys are in interstate commerce enough to come under the act. But we asked one of Western Union's brightest and best and he said his tips didn't amount to more than a dollar a month. That is a fairly small rate of tipping.

About Porters, Redcaps

The ones who do come under the act are pullman porters, dining car waiters and redcaps in railroad stations. At least the wage-hour administration is working on this basis and seems to have the railroads agreeing to that much. Waiters and pullman porters serving pillows and pork chops between Paducah and Chicago obviously are in interstate commerce.

As to redcaps, they probably never cross a state line unless it runs through the railroad station. Nor do they manufacture stuff for commerce, but the wage-hour administration has found they are a part of the business of getting people and their bags along the channels of trade.

The only matter left in doubt at this point is just how to determine the wages of these people. The railroads and station operators have suggested that if a redcap or waiter collects $11 a week in tips, he is already getting 25 cents an hour for a 44-hour week as prescribed by the act. The wage-hour administration has not (at this point) accepted that idea.

We keep saying "at this point" because the act is being defined so fast the situation may be changed before we can get this thing out of the typewriter.

Knows How to Duck

Someone told Administrator Elmer Andrews that a Washington attorney was promoting himself as "ovasion counsel" to help employees duck the wage-hour act. Andrews quipped back: "Guess we'll have to hire him. We could use him at press conferences."

The measure does seem to reach into queer places, some that congress probably never thought about. Take the case of a watchman at a small West Virginia factory. He wrote in to Andrews to explain how the act cost him his job. He was getting $15 a week and a bed in the factory on condition that he would do the night watching seven nights a week. That meant his pay was far less than 25 cents an hour and for more than 44 hours a week. His boss offered to make his pay "officially" enough to meet the requirements but, privately, he would have to kick back part of it.

Just how that arrangement would have worked out was never determined because a competitor came along and offered to do the watching just for use of the bed.

WHY TAKE THE TEMPERATURE?

The citizen who wishes to know what services are available for his or her care in sickness, what are the problems of institutions that provide such services, and what agencies handle the institutions, which are established to provide good care at economical cost, will find the brochure "You and Your Hospitals" interesting and instructive. The brochure was issued by United Hospital Fund of New York, 370 Lexington Avenue, New York, last month.

The survey that obtained the data for the brochure attempted to estimate the amount of time the nurse can devote to one patient each day in hospital. The survey indicated that if you are in a municipal hospital you will probably receive less of the nurse's time than you will if you are in a voluntary hospital, but on the average you get about three hours of the nurse's time out of each 24 hours you are in hospital. If you are a mother, probably you will get nearly four hours of the nurse's time out of each 24 hours.

The time the nurse gives the individual patient is devoted to bathing, administering medicine, taking temperature, doing dressings, etc. Taking temperatures is a pretty business. Goes well in a farce or a movie. Affords the nurse an excuse for failing to observe or record really significant details of the illness—she is too busy taking temperature and recording it on the impressive chart. I mean "and let a good share of it apply to the doctor studying the temperature chart when he makes his regular visits."

Of course there are conditions in which it may be of some value to know whether the patient has a fever; or knowing the patient has fever, there may occasionally be some value in finding out whether the fever remains steadily so many degrees above normal or whether it shows marked variations. But as a general rule it doesn't matter a dam, a tinker's dam, whether the temperature is 100 or 103. If the doctor can't discern the patient's state without using a thermometer, he is not much of a doctor.

Even if you know better than I do about such things and insist that doctor or nurse must never fail to take the patient's temperature, I hope you will grant me this minor concession, namely, that it is absurd for the mother of a child to use a clinical thermometer as her guide as to what to do in threatened illness. Too many mothers have been equipped with clinical thermometers, which little glass sticks bring many a visit from the doctor where, without the thermometer, the indisposition would have passed presently at no expense to any one.

I repeat, a doctor who knows his business can gauge the patient's condition and needs as well or perhaps better without precise knowledge of the height of the temperature as he can with the aid of the most elaborate temperature chart.

Please send me the monograph on bed-wetting, postcards, N. P. Answer—I'll do my best toward making the country dry if you send a three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address, when you ask for the instructions for correcting bed-wetting habit.

Dry Mouth
What causes my mouth to become so dry at night—I have to wake up two or three times to moisten it. This has come in the last year. I am 62? F. L. S. Answer — Common cause is mouth breathing due to some obstruction of nasal passages. You should have nose and throat examination by physician who treats nose and throat troubles. Use of mouthwash made of equal parts of lemon juice, water and glycerin—a few drops of this to swish around in mouth night and morning, is refreshing.

Shots
Please give your opinion of vitamin B administered hypodermically for nervous trouble. Miss R. L. B. Answer — Synthetic vitamin B (thiamin) may be administered by hypodermic, intramuscular or intravenous injection in certain conditions where the patient cannot take it by mouth. But natural vitamin B complex (all of the entities that grow in the vitamin B) is so easy for most persons to take in the form of tablets, syrup, etc., that it is generally preferable. ### Your Birthday

"SCORPIO" is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.; from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m.; and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m.; from 6:15 to 8:15 p. m.; and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

You must control your temper throughout the day, if you wish to avoid a very embarrassing situation. A little knowledge, most likely, will be sufficient to get you into trouble, should you try to make use of it in a speculative nature. Friendships may be tested, and few of them are likely to stand the test. Mother Nature, in more ways than one, may be responsible for personal plans being changed, and the character of some people becoming well defined. You will have to show that you are enterprising in order to make money this day, for most of the failures will be traceable to a lack of enterprise. Do not be "too set" in your opinion this day because you might have ample reason to change it. You are likely to find the average person very skeptical, so in making any drastic statement it might be well to be able to prove it. Married and engaged couples, and those who are experiencing the thrills of love, will have to avoid being thoughtless in either big or little things this day, especially of a sentimental nature.

If a woman and November 10 is your birthday, you may be too reluctant for your own good, to accept advice. To make the progress you should, if engaged in earning a living, you must use modern methods and keep yourself well posted on current events. Most people born on this date are socially ambitious and frequently make too many sacrifices in trying to gratify their aspirations. You might have a foolish disregard of danger, frequently taking unjustified chances, so as to show your indifference to it. As a journalist, restaurant manager, insurance and real estate broker, model, interior decorator or actress, a fine reputation may get you a lot of favorable publicity and an extremely fine income. Your matrimonial future looks most promising.

The child born on November 10 should be able to memorize with ease. In the field of sports there seems to be a definite place for this youngster. Luxuries and ease may reward the earnest efforts and hard

It's Odd But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

AP Science Editor
Chapel Hill, N. C. — A burning sawdust pile in northern Chatham county, North Carolina, has given birth to a plant previously unknown.

The thing looks like an alga, the scum which forms on still water. Algae are usually green. This one is gray, the color of a mold, and lives on decaying matter in the water.

The discoverers, Dr. W. C. Coker and Leland Shanor of the University of North Carolina, describe the sawdust product to the National Academy of Sciences. It has appeared in two small "runs" that receive the sewage water from the Chatham sawdust plant.

Algae make their food by aid of the green chlorophyll which gives them their color. But this plant, lacking anything green, puts out viscous roots, that branch until they are nearly half an inch long and have exactly the appearance of a vigorous water mold.

With their aid the plant is a ### parasite. The North Carolina scientists report that several parasitic alga-like plants that have nearly lost their green pigment are known. But they say they know of no other plant with the form of algae which feeds strictly on decay.

Pension Proposal Appears Lost at California Polls

Downey and Olson, Democrats, Have Big Leads In Contests

San Francisco—(P)—California Democratic votes swept Sheridan Downey and Gilbert Olson far ahead today in the races for senator and governor, respectively, but apparently tossed aside a scrip pension proposal which Downey vigorously championed.

Mounting returns, including complete figures from San Francisco, increased the leads of both candidates, but the Republican nominees made no concessions of defeat.

Returns from 7,817 of 12,472 precincts in the state gave Downey, who was supported by President Roosevelt, 434,833 votes to 362,027 for Phil Bancroft, Republican nominee who condemned the pension proposal.

The Democratic party appeared headed toward its first gubernatorial victory in 44 years. Returns from 7,951 precincts gave Olson 502,398 and Frank F. Merriam, Republican incumbent, 420,418.

Republicans who had held only six of California's 20 congressional seats captured at least six more. Democrats were victorious in eight. The only Democratic congressman to be defeated, however was John J. McGrath.

Governor Merriam also condemned the pension proposal, on which Olson for the most part kept silent. President Roosevelt himself disapproved of the proposal, under which all unemployed persons over 50 would receive $30 in scrip every Thursday.

Olson, whose election was asked by Thomas Mooney, California's convicted 1916 parade bomber, said he would give the state "a new political, social and industrial era."

Mooney, who has battled nearly half his life for freedom from San Quentin prison, said Olson would give him a pardon if elected, although Olson himself kept silent.

Norwegian Dinner Is Attended by Big Crowd

Leeman—A large crowd attended the Norwegian dinner Sunday at the Lutheran church in Navarino. More than four hundred persons were present. Services were conducted in the morning by the Rev. A. Blom.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ames were dinner guests Sunday at the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Frank Waite, Embarras.

Members of the Parent-Teacher association of the Pleasant Hill school will hold a card party Friday evening at the schoolhouse.

The Rev. E. G. Schilling of Clintonville, who conducted services at the Congregational church Sunday evening, will hold services there again in two weeks.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church will meet for their practice Friday evening at the Henry Sveinick home.

Mrs. Fred Falk returned home last week after spending several days in Chicago. They had been called there by the illness and death of a relative.

Maynard Nelson, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nelson, was able to return to the Oakland school after an absence of several weeks because of injuries received from the explosion of a dynamite cap which he found in an old building near his home. The lad will undergo an operation on one eye in several weeks. It is hoped he will regain the sight which is impaired by the explosion.

Two Men are Fined on Drunkness Charges

Fred Brookhyser, address unknown, and James McHugh, Neenah, pleaded guilty of drunkenness when they appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning and each was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp. The men, who were arrested Monday by city police, indicated they would serve the sentences.

Republicans Win All County Jobs but District Attorney; Ray Dohr Squeezes Victory

candidate ran third. The final vote was: Peeters 9,836, Collar, 7,069, Scheurle, 1,517.

Sheriff John H. Lappen, Republican, was an easy winner over Joseph E. Versteegen of Little Chute, a Democrat and former undersheriff, and Robert O. Smith, Unionist. Lappen garnered a total of 11,258 votes. Versteegen got 6,652 and Smith received 1,114. Besides the term he is now completing as sheriff, Lappen served part of a term on appointment and a full 2-year term upon election.

Overcomes Lead
After the Third ward of Appleton had reported and Crow still held a lead of almost a thousand votes, Dohr was almost willing to concede defeat, but the picture changed rapidly. First Kimberly crashed through with a resounding Dohr majority, then Little Chute followed with 425 more majority and Dohr went into the lead for the first time with a 98-vote margin when Kaukauna's first precinct reported. From then on it was pretty much Dohr and he wound up winner with a total of 9,119 votes while his opponent had 8,912.

Dohr's home precinct, the first of the Third ward, gave him 485 votes against 181 for Crow but this was offset by a 515 to 216 majority for Crow in the second precinct of the First ward. Voters on the town of Onida were on the fence for a choice and gave Dohr 125 votes to 122 for Crow. The third precinct of the Fifth ward, Appleton, gave Crowe 295 votes, while Dohr received 294.

Ziegenhagen Wins
Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican, was returned to the office of county treasurer for her ninth consecutive term when she easily defeated Ray L. Feuerstein, Democrat, by a huge majority. Miss Ziegenhagen took the lead with the first precinct reporting and her margin continued to lengthen as later precincts reported. Her total was 11,065 against 7,123 for Feuerstein, who took only nine out of the possible 50 precincts.

Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Republican, has little trouble defeating Russell

Johnson of Shiocton, Democrat, in the race for the county coroner's office. Dr. Ellsworth was the overwhelming choice of voters almost three to one. His total was 11,882 against 4,877 for Johnson. The race was never in doubt. Johnson took only three precincts and scored ties in two. He carried Shiocton, his home town, the town of Bovina and the town of Kaukauna. Ties were recorded in the town of Freedom and the town of Vandenberg.

Three Score Wins
Three unopposed candidates, John E. Hantschel, Republican county clerk; Sydney M. Shannon, Republican, clerk of courts; and Robert M. Connelly, Democrat, surveyor, were returned to office. Hantschel polled 14,459, Shannon 14,023, and Connelly received 8,868 votes.

William J. Ganter, Republican, Kaukauna, nosed out William M. Rohan, incumbent Democrat, in a 4-way race to represent the Second assembly district in the state legislature while Mark S. Catlin, Jr., Republican, swept to a decisive victory over Gerald Jolin, Stephenville Democrat, and was returned to the assembly to represent the First district.

Assembly Races
It was Ganter's first try for a state office and he scored victories in 19 out of a possible 27 over Rohan. His total was 2,719 votes against 2,526 for Rohan. Anton M. Miller, Progressive, route 1, Kaukauna, ran a close third with 2,016 votes while Arthur Hoolihan, Union candidate of Kaukauna, received 534 votes.

Catlin scored heavily in Appleton precincts and had little trouble in the county to gain reelection by a 2 to 1 margin. Voters gave Catlin 6,780 votes and Jolin polled 3,843. Jolin took only two precincts and tied one out of a possible 23. He scored in the first precinct of the Third ward and in the town of Ellington. In the second precinct of the Fifth ward, Catlin and Jolin were tied with 276 votes each.

Pegler Says Rules Shouldn't Smother Good Fliers in Navy

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—I seem to be at my best when I am writing on matters which I know nothing about, so this one should be pretty good. This one wants to muddle around with the question whether this country is any good in the air at this time or just pretty good in theory or merely taking along, as in 1917, when our orators were going to darken the skies with planes.

Nobody seems to have a provable opinion. Naturally the army and navy will say that they are right up on their stuff but could use some more money. But there are others with a right to respectable opinions who claim that the Germans can do things in the air that we can do only in cartoons and that this business of turning out one, two or six new jobs and claiming that our air forces are as good as these jewelry planes is simply misleading. That does seem like arguing that a chain is as strong as its weakest link, and perhaps the people are being kidded by those nice rotogravure shots of homeopathic orders which cannot be produced in quantity in time to catch up with the next development.

Go ahead and say I have been talking to Al Williams. So, all right. I have been talking to Williams, first about this experience as a ball player with McGraw, which is always good talking with anyone who had the brains to appreciate what McGraw said, and then about the German air strength, which was shown him during the summer. Go ahead and say that Williams was virtually kicked out of the navy for refusing duty when he wouldn't go to sea on a straw boat and learn to say "deck."

For "floor," "bulldozer" for "wall," and all such little affectations because he was a flier by trade and didn't want to be a sailor.

But I happen to remember talking with Fred Britten, then a representative from Chicago and chairman of the naval affairs committee, and his saying that Al was a fresh young mug who needed to learn seafaring and something about the care and feeding of gobs and my asking why a flier should need such knowledge any more than a doctor should require a course in phrenology. That topped him, and he fell back on the argument that a naval flier had to know the navy and an army flier the army, which is the old squabble all over again, because a lot of specialized air men know a lot more about their own stuff than any admiral or high-ranking foot soldier man be expected to, and their initiative and expert knowledge can be curbed and smothered under rank.

Admiral Sims Scored System as a Handicap

Just about here in the reminiscence vein something recalls a forgotten minority report by old Admiral Sims as a member of the board of visitors of the naval academy, in which he pointed out that the navy firmly excludes some of the best young technical men in the country from its commissioned face by its slavish and crippling observance of the ran-and-numbers system dating from graduating day at Annapolis to the age of survey or retirement. To get in line for promotion and pay in the navy an officer must come through the naval academy, which is only a glorified high school with a ripe "rah-

Republicans in Clean Sweep of Winnebago County

10,000 Less Votes Cast Than in 1936 Election

Neenah — Republican candidates on the state, United States senate and Sixth district congressional tickets carried Winnebago county by a landslide in the general election Tuesday.

Because it was an off year election and weather conditions were not conducive to voting, a light vote was cast in the county in comparison to the general election in 1936. Winnebago county voters cast 22,601 ballots yesterday as compared to 31,001 in 1936.

John P. Heil, Milwaukee Republican candidate for governor, swept the county polls, annexing 42 out of the 45 precincts while his nearest opponent, Philip F. LaFollette, Progressive incumbent, won only three precincts. Heil netted a total vote of 13,809 to LaFollette's 6,711. Harry W. Bolens, Democrat, was a poor third, netting 1,918 votes. He failed to carry a precinct.

LaFollette carried only one precinct in the Twin Cities. The Fourth ward in Menasha, while Heil carried the six Neenah precincts and four in Menasha. Frank W. Smith, Oshkosh, Union party candidate who received only 345 votes, failed to carry a ward in his own city. John Schleier, Jr., Independent Socialist Labor party candidate, received only 18 votes.

Town of Poygan Is 1st to File Results In Winnebago County

Menasha — The town of Poygan was the first to report its general election results Tuesday night at the office of A. E. Hedke, Winnebago county clerk.

The town officials phoned their report in 7:29 beating the mark that they set for the primary by one minute. The town of Neenah was second but came in a full hour later.

The last district to report was the second precinct of the First ward of Neenah, coming in shortly after the town of Algoma, about 1:30 this morning. The First ward of Menasha was the first Twin City ward to report but all of the Twin City precincts were among the last 15 to report.

Early reports indicated the trend of the election for the Republicans showed a gain in Poygan and that was typical in other towns.

Incumbents are Returned to Office as Republicans Sweep Winnebago County Election

THE WINNERS

Assembly, Second District, James C. Fritzen, Neenah, Republican.

Assembly, First District, Leo T. Niemuth, Oshkosh, Republican.

State Senator, 18th district, Taylor G. Brown, Oshkosh, Republican.

County Clerk, A. E. Hedke, Oshkosh, Republican.

County Treasurer, Earl E. Fuller, Oshkosh, Republican.

Sheriff, Paul Neubauer, Oshkosh, Republican.

Coroner, Dr. G. A. Steele, Oshkosh, Republican.

Clerk of Circuit Court, Edward C. Abell, Oshkosh, Republican.

District Attorney, Lewis C. Magnusen, Oshkosh, Republican.

Register of Deeds, George B. Young, Oshkosh, Republican.

Neenah — Twin City candidates for office at the general election Tuesday fell before the landslide of Republican votes which swept Winnebago county. The only successful Twin City candidate was James C. Fritzen, Neenah Republican, who won the post of assemblyman from the Second district of Winnebago county. Fritzen will succeed the late Nels Larson in the state legislature.

Fritzen polled 5,631 votes to defeat William A. Draheim, Democrat, and Aaron C. Warren, Progressive, for the position. Draheim polled 3,587 votes and carried all five Menasha wards and the Fifth ward of Neenah. Aaron C. Warren, Progressive, came in third with 1,317 votes and carried only one district, the second precinct of the First ward of Neenah.

Menasha held true to form and favored the Democratic candidate in the assembly election. Draheim received 1,389 to 754 for Fritzen and 286 for Warren. In spite of the number of Twin City candidates the vote in both Neenah and Menasha was tight. In Menasha approximately 50 per cent of the 4,928 registered voters cast their ballots while in Neenah nearly two-thirds of the 4,841 registered marked ballots.

Brown is Senator

Taylor G. Brown, Oshkosh Republican, carried both Winnebago and Calumet counties to win the four-way race for state senator from the Nineteenth district. He defeated Herbert G. Pitz, Oshkosh Progressive; Nicholas C. Schraas, Union party, and Robert M. Heckner, Neenah Democrat, who defeated the incumbent, Pierce Morrissey, in the September primary.

Brown received his greatest support in Winnebago county where he received 12,728 votes, mostly from Oshkosh and the rural towns and villages. Neenah likewise supported Brown, giving him 1,576 votes to 714 for Heckner and 568 for Pitz.

Menasha lent its support to Robert M. Heckner in the state senate race, giving him 1,452 votes to 726 for Brown and 269 for Pitz. The Fourth ward of Menasha gave Heckner 404 votes to 6 for Pitz and 76 for Brown.

Incumbents were swept back into office in the county election, all on the Republican ticket. Arthur E. Hedke, county clerk; Earl E. Fuller, county treasurer, and Paul Neubauer, sheriff, had no opposition at the general election nor at the primary. Neubauer rolled up the highest vote total of the three, garnering 16,097. Fuller was second with 15,693 while Hedke was third with 15,645.

The defeated Neenah candidates included Marvin Potratz, Progressive candidate for Coroner; Wylie J. Rutherford, Progressive candidate for clerk of circuit court; and Richard J. O'Brien, Democratic candidate for register of deeds.

Coroner Re-elected

Dr. George A. Steele, incumbent Oshkosh Republican, defeated Potratz for coroner. Steele carried all except three of the 45 precincts as he received 14,059 votes. Potratz totaled 5,501 votes and won only the Thirteenth and Sixth wards of Oshkosh and the Fourth ward of Neenah.

Edward C. Abell, Oshkosh, former sheriff, was elected clerk of circuit court, defeating William H. Stegeman of Oshkosh and Wylie J. Rutherford of Neenah. Menasha gave Abell 1,122 votes but Stegeman polled 735 Democratic votes. Rutherford defeated 446 votes in Menasha and 816 in Neenah. In Neenah Stegeman received 395 and Abell received 1,848.

Lewis C. Magnusen, district attorney, and George B. Young, register of deeds, also were reelected. Young defeated Richard J. O'Brien, Neenah alderman, 14,922 to 3,916. Although he failed to make much of a showing, O'Brien ran best in Menasha where he gained 1,013 votes to 1,081 for Young. In Neenah Young received quite a decided margin. He received 1,959 to 743 for O'Brien.

Magnusen Wins

Magnusen, the incumbent, defeated another Oshkosh man in the district attorney race. The Republican received 13,724 votes to 5,903 for Franklin McDonald, a Democrat. Menasha swung into the Democratic column in the district attorney race polling 1,060 McDonald votes to 1,052 for Magnusen. Neenah more than made up for that difference, giving Magnusen 2,053 votes to 659 for McDonald.

Leo T. Niemuth, Republican, was reelected assemblyman from the Second district of Winnebago county, receiving more than the combined votes of his two opponents. The city of Oshkosh comprises the second district. Oshkosh gave Niemuth 7,178 votes to 3,644 for Harold H. Priebe, Progressive, and 1,390 for Howard N. Howe, Democrat. Niemuth carried all except two of the precincts which were taken by Priebe in Oshkosh.

Maesch Says Radio Has Placed New Emphasis on Music Study

Neenah — Radio has awakened a consciousness to music that behooves the listener to devote his energies to a study of music in order to be able to perceive everything it offers and to enjoy it to the full, declared La Vahn Maesch, associate professor of music at Lawrence College as he presented the first of a series of lectures on music appreciation at the 2:30 Tuesday afternoon meeting of the Woman's Tuesday club in Neenah library.

Mr. Maesch discussed characteristics of tone and color of instruments in his first lecture. At his next lecture he will discuss melody, line and the social changes influencing music up to Bach. The third lecture will be on Mozart and Beethoven, the romanticism in music, and the last lecture will deal with modern music.

Mrs. H. K. Babcock, member of the club, has loaned an electric phonograph for the illustrations during the lectures.

The three vital factors in music are the composer, the performer and the listeners who have never received any great consideration. Our understanding of music as listeners is in the antiquity stage, the speaker contended. "We should know Brahms and Wagner but we hardly know the tone material of symphony orchestras, he continued."

Discusses Tone

Mr. Maesch discussed the four characteristics of tone which are duration, pitch, intensity and quality; and the four families of tones, string chorus which includes violins, violas, cellos and basses, the woodwinds which include flutes, oboes, clarinets and bassoons, the brass which include French horns, tubas and trumpets and the percussions, which include kettle drums, bass, snare, etc. He presented records which illustrated the characteristics of tone and which presented, individually, the four families.

It was announced by Mrs. E. D. Beals, president of the club, that Dr. Ludwig Freund, Ripon college, would speak Monday evening at a

Vote Bond Issue of $125,000 in Special Menasha Referendum

Menasha — By a vote of 1,562 to 573, Menasha voters Tuesday approved the special refunding bond referendum held in conjunction with the regular election. The vote of the public authorizes the council to issue bonds to retire $125,000 of corporate purpose notes now held against the city.

All five wards of the city expressed their approval of the bond issue. The vote included 267 for and 65 against in the First ward; 376 for and 123 against in the Second ward; 333 for and 135 against in the Third ward; 319 for and 142 against in the Fourth ward and 273 for and 108 against in the Fifth ward.

Amateur Forecaster Predicts Milder Weather in Club Talk

Neenah — Speaking on a timely topic, the weather, Kennan Hutchins, local amateur weather forecaster, explained the phenomenon of Monday's night's storm and predicted milder weather for the rest of the week in a talk at the noon meeting of the Neenah Lions club Tuesday at the Valley Inn.

Explaining his forecast for milder weather, Mr. Hutchins said that there is a low pressure area coming down from Canada which will meet the cold area coming off Lake Michigan and cause a change in the present temperature.

He pointed out that he determined this preceding night when he drew a weather chart using statistics broadcast over short wave radio.

"Sleet resulted Monday night," the Amateur weatherman pointed out, "when warm upper air rolled over the present cold north winds, melting the snow."

Weather Makes Mistakes

Scientific forecasts are not true absolutely, Hutchins told the Lions, but it isn't the mistake of the weatherman, he pointed out. It is the weather which has erred, for according to all signs which are obtained through instruments at the disposal of weathermen, the forecasts should have come true.

"Chance doesn't control the weather," he added, and "it would be a great discovery if the control of the weather could be determined." A weather bureau's forecast may be made erroneous when some thing unusual in the upper air, such as what happened Monday night, occurs. The cause may have started from China or may have been a local condition.

Various methods, none of which have become very practical so far, are used in an effort to determine what is happening in the upper air, such as kites, balloons, airplane soundings and the radio meter graph. The latter, Hutchins said, has possibilities. Balloons with radio and recording instruments are hoisted aloft into the upper air and messages are sent back to earth.

Long range or seasonal forecasting, while still unsuccessful, would save enough to pay off the national debt if it could be made to work, according to the amateur weather forecaster.

Heat Variation

The theory of the variation of the sun's heat which is maintained by noted scientists, is one of the methods being experimented with, Hutchins said. The theorists, he explained, maintain that there is a variation in the intensity of the sun's heat. When the sun's heat is intense, it directly strikes the tropics, causing a rise in temperature which draws in the cold north winds, causing more cold north winds.

Cycles, he pointed out, are other theories being investigated in order to make long range forecasts, such as the 11-year sun spot cycle, glaciers, wheat fields of Europe, 35-year drought period, tree rings and others.

Hollywood — The mortality rate among high-ranking studio workers is turning that "Life-begins-at-forty" theory of Professor Pitkin's into a ghastly laugh-line as far as Hollywood is concerned. Insurance statistics prove that the average life span of filmville's top-notchers is about seven years shorter than that of even the hardiest working laborers.

Fall
The other day the RKO troupe which has been filming Kipling's colossal, "Gunga Din," returned from a two-months' location jaunt — and the Hollywood medical profession began reaping a harvest. George Stevens, the director, went to Palm Springs on doctor's orders to recuperate from a severe case of jitters; Joe August, the cameraman, suffered a full-fledged nervous breakdown; Cary Grant and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. are off to Europe to cure attacks of "nerves"; the unit manager is under a doctor's care for the same ailment and even the two scenarists are taking enforced vacations. Nerve tension played the same havoc with the "Jesse James" company at Twentieth Century-Fox. "Breakdowns" are so common in Ourville that they no longer rate as news.

There is little or no physical strain involved in picture making. In fact, set visitors always come away convinced that movie-workers, with their hour long lolls between scenes and their month-long lay-offs between pictures, all lead the life of Reilly. The strain is entirely on the nerves and I think that most of it can be charged to the intense competition that makes every tomorrow a hazard. People who live with the axe poised constantly over their necks worry themselves into illnesses and, sometimes, into early graves.

Stopped in at United Artists to watch the filming of wind-up scenes for "Trade Winds."

Fredric March was kidding one of the many Japanese lads working in the picture. "Your men and women both wear kimono," he pointed out, "how can you tell which sex is which when you dress alike?" The self-possessed Japanese smiled slyly. "I could ask the same question," he countered. "How do you tell the Hollywood boys and girls apart when both sexes wear short hair and long pants?" "That's easy," said the quick-witted Mr. March. "The girls are the ones who carry pocketbooks!"

I'd like to know the real life story of the little, very-aristocratic old lady who sells gardenias outside the Boulevard Raspail. Secret ambition: to take Garbo for a roller-coaster ride.

The surest way to make Irene Dunne dislike you is to refer to her as "the perfect lady"—it must be a complex. Look alikes: Howard Hughes and Burgess Meredith. There's something about Lionel Stander that always reminds me of Lon Chaney in his makeup for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Nominated for the town's shyest genius: Irving Berlin. David Niven, who loses Merle Oberon to Gary Cooper in "The Cowboy and the Lady," thinks that's just as it should be.

Wonder if there's any connection between Sidney Toler's passion for chop suey and his success in landing that Charlie Chan role? Bad enough that tough-guy Jimmy Cagney never misses a symphony concert or a grand opera performance, but Wally Beery's flair for composing sentimental verse is too much! ## Firemen are Summoned Two Times at Menasha

Half of Eligible Voters Go to Polls at Menasha

Menasha — Slightly more than 50 per cent of the eligible voters of Menasha cast their ballots at the general election Tuesday, according to Walter J. Dougherty, city clerk. Ballots were cast by 2,589 persons out of the 4,926 who were registered to vote.

The Second ward had the largest vote with 598 ballots out of 1,099 being cast. The Fourth ward cast 579 votes out of 1,166 and the Third ward had 569 out of 990 for the best percentage. In the First ward 387 votes of 735 eligible were cast while in the Fifth there were 456 votes out of a possible 936.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL

Neenah — Walter Demerath, 128 Irene street, Neenah, is being treated at Theda Clark hospital for an infected finger.

Miss Ethel Pearson, 424 Washington avenue, and Miss Alvira Meier, 1013 Harrison street, spent Sunday in Green Bay attending a sub-district rally of the Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal churches.

Irene Castle, the "ever-colorful" lady who, back yonder in 1914, set America's dance fads, believes in publishing her ideas in a novel manner. Today, on the RKO lot, where she is acting as technical adviser for the new Astaire-Rogers picture, "The Castles," I saw her prancing about with her three dogs. Over each one's back was draped a gaudy sign reading, "Help us girls. Be sure to vote 'NO' on Proposition Number Two!" Irene is America's premier dog-lover and "No. 2" on the California ballot, proposes the enactment of anti-vivisection laws.

I like Bert Lahr's favorite story about the lunatic who was trying to drive tacks into the wall of his padded cell by holding the heads against the wall and pounding on the points. At last he threw down his hammer in disgust. "They've got me in here for being nuts," he growled to his cell-mate, "but lookit these tacks, with the heads on the wrong end." "You are nuts," snapped his team-mate. "Them tacks were made for the opposite wall!" (Copyright, 1938)

Large Off-Year Ballot

Neenah — While the vote in the general election Tuesday for the county at large was comparatively small, Neenah cast an exceptionally large vote for an off year election. 68 per cent of the registered voters having cast their ballots yesterday. There were 3,297 votes recorded.

The vote according to wards are as follows: First precinct, First ward 597. Second precinct, First ward 558. Second ward 638. Third ward 428. Fourth ward 383 and Fifth ward 697.

Control of Personality Is Help in World of Business, Charm School Teacher Says

BUSINESS women and the high school and college graduates who hope to enter the business world might do well to realize that personality as an asset in business success is a thing many women either neglect or misunderstand, according to Janette Serrec, well-known authority on the art of self-improvement, who will present four lectures next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at Castle hall under the auspices of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

"There is no place in the business world," Miss Serrec says, "for the woman who makes femininity an issue."

Realizing that charm means personal effectiveness, complete realization in her person of poise, creative imagination, absence of self-consciousness and efficiency, as well as personal attractiveness, the wise business woman adds these to her specific knowledge of typing, salesmanship or teaching.

In these days, Miss Serrec says, the woman who has special ability in a specific line has only half a chance to succeed. She must learn to present her abilities in an attractive package.

Miss Serrec's entertaining and instructive charm school sessions which drew capacity crowds last year, will cover almost every phase of self-improvement, from weight reduction to overcoming timidity and from clothes to personality development.

Bell discussed the topic, "Ups and Downs of the Rural Church," and told of methods being used for maintaining the missions. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. F. J. Foreman and Miss Elizabeth Wood. Twenty-five members were present.

Opinions of American youth on current problems, notably, racial questions, war, jobs and government, were discussed by the Rev. James C. Flint, student pastor of Congregational students at the University of Wisconsin, at a joint meeting of Pilgrim Fellowship and P. E. E. club of First Congregational church last night. About 20 members attended.

OUTSIDE INTERESTS HELP DEVELOP CHARM

Such feminine frivolities as jeweled eyelashes and green mesh cocktail stockings may lift a woman's spirits when they need lifting, but it is an intelligent interest in the life around her that makes her a gay and charming person to know, contends Janette Serrec, whose second annual Post-Crescent charm school begins its 4-day session next Monday night at Castle hall. The mother of a 13-year old Star Scout, she is interested in Boy Scout activities as she is in practically everything else and visited a troop during a recent engagement in another city, when this picture was taken.

Choose to Be Charming

BY JANETTE SERREC

Copyright, 1938, by Janette Serrec

(This is the sixth of a series of articles by Miss Serrec, who will conduct the second annual Post-Crescent Charm school Nov. 14, 15, 16 and 17 at Castle hall.)

It seems a far cry from charm to arithmetic, but if you understand what charm really is, they are very much alike.

Does it sound strange to speak of charm as if it were something like the multiplication table? If so, it's because we are accustomed to thinking of charm as a filmy far-away thing that we catch by fortunate chance, like stars in a poet's net, or fail to catch, we don't know why.

Charm arithmetic is pretty simple. Add this, subtract that, multiply something else, and there you are.

Anybody can learn to subtract timidity, excess pounds, poor complexion, awkwardness.

Anybody can learn to multiply wit, poise, radiance, distinction of appearance.

Anything that is needed to make the problem come out charmingly can actually be added. Anything that simply must be subtracted in order to make the answer to charm can be subtracted.

Some things, of course cannot be subtracted, like the shape of your nose. But you can learn to add to a knowledge of makeup and hairdo that will make button or beak a saucy or a classic asset. You can't subtract three inches from your height if you grow that much too tall, but you can add inches will seem just what you need for statuesque grace.

It's remarkable what the working of some simple little sum will do for many people. Subtracting the giggling has started many an ugly duckling well toward swanhood.

Some inner sums are quick and magical in results. Multiply good will and thoughtfulness, faith and laughter. Your nose won't matter, or being tall or short. You'll live happily ever after, beloved and beautiful, whether you can make two and two equal to four or not.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or over-eat, your stomach works out too much food. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel poor, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-lax for indigestion to make the wrong stomach build habits, takes distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 2½¢ package proves it. Ask for Bell-lax for indigestion.

History of Mass Is Lecture Topic

The history of the mass was told by the Rev. Gerard Hesse, O. M. Cap., in a lecture last evening at Monte Alverno Retreat House sponsored by Campion Mothers club. White Father Gerard explained the various parts of the mass, the Rev. Father Paul and Francis Rechner dramatized them at the altar. About 90 persons attended the lecture.

Father Gerard explained the nature of sacrifice, the ritualistic sacrifice of the Jewish law and the Christian sacrifice. The first mass, he said, was the last supper of Jesus Christ around which human ingenuity and human art had built the structure of the ritual. He gave a detailed description of the mass of the apostles called "Discipline of the Secret," of the early Christian days, and the evolution of various Christian rites and the ritualistic dogma of the church. He told of the gradual predominance of the use of the Roman rites and gave a description of the mass of the Roman Basilica of the third and fourth centuries from which the modern ritual is derived.

A reception followed with Mrs. Joseph J. Plank and Mrs. John Balliet pouring. The committee in charge included Mrs. Charles Baldwin, Mrs. Walter Zwicker and Miss Marie Sherman.

In the afternoon the club had a luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Baldwin, 707 S. State street.

A buffet meal, when well planned, is a delightful way to entertain. But do have places for the guests to sit down and eat in comfort. Arrange tables about the room; balancing a plate on the knee is all out of date.

The Oney Johnston post of the American Legion will observe Armistice day services with traditional morning ceremonies at the corner of N. Oneida street and College avenue and with a banquet and dance that evening in the clubhouse.

Color guards from the legion post, Harvey Pierre post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and SOTAL will mass at the Elks club at 11 o'clock Friday morning and march to the city's principal square. The legion will exhibit a new float for the ceremonies, a replica of the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Members of the legion firing squad and color guard will be Louis Micheln, Oscar Loeper, Sheldon Baetz, Harry Cunningham, Leo Heller, Arthur Brash, Raymond Voigt, Lawrence Spielbauer, Arthur Ziegler, and Rudolph Rehfeldt. Ben Schmek will be the sailor on the float and A. A. Arens the corps. The SOTAL Drum and Bugle corps will drill.

Armin Scheurle is chairman for the Armistice day banquet and dance which will start at 6:30 at the clubhouse. After the meal, legions will be called upon to recount their experiences on Armistice day in 1918.

A 20-minute period of entertainment will follow the talks and then the veterans and their wives will dance and play cards. Co-chairmen from the auxiliary for the event are Mrs. C. O. Baetz and Mrs. F. R. Gehrke.

A plane is scheduled to land at the Outagamie county airport at 10:15 Friday morning to pick up legion and SOTAL membership cards from throughout the county and carry them to department headquarters at Milwaukee.

C. O. Baetz, county commander, Mrs. C. O. Baetz, Oney Johnston post auxiliary president, and Paul Wilke, post commander, will be among the legion officials present to meet the plane and deliver the membership cards to the pilot.

Sunshine Starts Melting Snow Today; 40-Degree Reading

Cloudy tonight and tomorrow with rising temperatures, and rain or snow Friday is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau.

Appleton's semi-winter weather smoothed out today. Bright sunshine warmed the crisp air, sending the thermometer to 40 about at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and the seasons first snowfall began to melt rapidly.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 34 and the lowest 26, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

Los Angeles, with 80, and Chicago, with 22, were the hottest and coldest places respectively in the nation yesterday.

AMONG COUNTY WINNERS IN TUESDAY'S ELECTION

Shown above are some of the winners of county offices in the general election yesterday which was marked by a heavy Republican vote and a close race that returned Raymond P. Dohr, in the upper left, Democrat, to the office of district attorney. Dohr showed a surprise finish to win over William Crow, Republican, after trailing as most of the precincts checked in. Shown at the top center is Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican who was elected for her ninth successive term in an easy win over Ray L. Feuerstein, Democrat. Though unopposed, John E. Hantschel, upper right, Republican, was given a heavy vote for reelection as county clerk. John Lappen, Republican sheriff, lower left, was returned to office with a wide margin of votes over his opponents, Joseph W. Versagen, Democrat, and Robert O. Smith, Unionite. Stephen M. Peters, lower center, Democrat, came out on top in a 3-cornered race for register of deeds in which the incumbent, Arthur L. Collar, Democrat, and Armin Scheurle, Independent, were defeated. Another of the unopposed candidates returned to office is Sydney Shannon, lower right, Republican clerk of courts, who polled good totals throughout the county.

which a total of eight persons were killed—four of them in "bloody Harlan" county. The national guard was summoned and vote-counting stopped there. This was the state's bloodiest election since 1933, when 18 persons were slain.

While some Republican victories were not unexpected by Democratic leaders, the latter studied the returns with extraordinary care today, both for their effect on the conduct of congress during the next two years and on the presidential campaign of 1940.

Governor's Fight
Republican strategists had put particular emphasis on winning governorships, hoping thereby to build up state organizations preparatory to 1940. Democrats had been equally zealous in trying to protect the Republican territory they had taken over since 1928.

The elections of that year, which put Herbert Hoover in the White House, were the last until yesterday in which the Republican party had gained strength.

President Roosevelt went to bed at 1 a. m., without commenting on the returns, which he received with his family at Hyde Park, N. Y.

New York, with its huge block of electoral votes and its national personalities, furnished one of the most exciting races—that between Governor Governor Herbert H. Lehman (D) and Young Thomas E. Dewey (R), nemesis of Manhattan racketeers.

Dewey's Hopes Dimmed
Lehman's victory, after four hours of see-sawing returns, dampened Dewey's prospects as a Republican presidential hopeful in 1940. Many of Dewey's friends, however, said he was by no means out of that battle.

At the same time it brightened the 1940 chances of other Republican winners of major senate seats and governorships.

Among these were Robert A. Taft, son of the former president, who was elected senator in Ohio, and Leverett Saltonstall, who defeated James Curley (D) for governor of Massachusetts.

Besides Massachusetts, the Democrats lost two other New England governorships. In Connecticut, a sizable Socialist vote helped defeat the scholarly Governor Wilbur L. Cross, who will be succeeded by Raymond Baldwin. William H. Vanderbilt (R), descendant of the famous commodore, unseated Governor Robert E. Quinn in Rhode Island.

Wagner Re-elected
Senator Robert F. Wagner (D-N. Y.), author of much of the New Deal social and labor legislation, was re-elected, as was his running mate, Representative James M. Mead, who sought the seat of the late Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Mr. Roosevelt had endorsed them, but another presidential favorite, red-haired Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, conceded to his Republican opponent, Frank D. Fitzgerald, who campaigned on a platform to end "industrial strife."

Criticism of Murphy's labor policies inspired President Roosevelt's spirited defense of the governor after a witness before the Dies anti-American committee had accused Murphy of "treason."

In New Jersey former Senator Warren Barbour (R) was staging a comeback, leading William H. Ely (D) in nearly complete returns.

Lucas Far Ahead
Democratic ranks apparently held firm in Illinois where Representative Scott W. Lucas, who campaigned as a Roosevelt supporter with an independent mind, had a commanding lead over Richard J. Lyons (R), a New Deal critic.

The south remained true to its Democratic traditions, and there the party elected six governors and eight senators, among them Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, senate majority leader. Two other congressional leaders, House Speaker William B. Bankhead of Alabama and Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas, were returned.

Most Democratic candidates in the Rocky mountain states were successful but further west the rule did not hold true uniformly. In Oregon, Charles A. Sprague (R) was elected governor over Henry L. Hess, who had won the Democratic primary with New Deal support.

Mrs. Minnie Smith, 1421 N. Clark street, was admitted into St. Elizabeth hospital as a patient on Sunday.

Madison—(AP)—A path between Tenderfoot and Plum lakes on land in northern Wisconsin owned by the University of Notre Dame was closed to general public use today in a ruling by the state supreme court which affected the flow of traffic on thousands of trails connecting lakes and rivers throughout the state.

The court ordered dismissal of the complaint of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lundberg. Vilas county resort owners, who charged that obstructions placed in the path by order of the university officials violated a provision of the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 declaring "the navigable waters leading into the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence, and the carrying places between the same, shall be common highways and forever free as well to the inhabitants of said territory."

Bullet Wound Fatal
To German Diplomat
Paris—(AP)—Ernst vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy, died today from gunshot wounds inflicted in the embassy Monday by a 17-year-old Polish Jew.

In spite of four blood transfusions made under direction of Adolf Hitler's personal physicians, sent from Germany by the fuhrer, the 32-year-old vom Rath succumbed in the Paris hospital to which he was taken after the shooting. His parents arrived just before he died.

His assailant, Herschel Grynszpan, is held by the Paris police. He said he shot vom Rath to avenge Polish Jews recently expelled from Germany.

Republicans Gain Working Majority In Both Chambers

No Woman Legislator at Next Session for First Time in Years

Milwaukee—(AP)—The new Republican administration will have a working majority in both houses of the legislature when it takes office next January.

As veterans of many legislative session met defeat in yesterday's election, the G. O. P. captured 54 of the assembly seats and fell but one seat short of an actual majority in the senate.

By electing 10 new senators, the Republicans brought their total in the senior chamber to 16. In view of the fact five Democrats will sit in the 1939 senate, veteran observers foresaw a continuance of the Republican-Democratic coalition which harassed the Progressives in the last session.

In the assembly the Progressives wound up with 31 seats, 15 less than in 1937, and the Democrats elected 15, as compared with their 35 last session.

Have Majority
The new senate lineup, including four Progressives, the 10 Republicans and three Democrats elected yesterday, will be: Republicans 16, Progressives 12, Democrats 5.

For the first time in years, there will be no woman legislator at the next session. Mrs. Mary Kryszak (D) was defeated in fifth Milwaukee district.

Speakers Paul Alfonsi (P), Pence, was re-elected to the assembly, and Senator Philip Nelson, Maple, principal Progressive floor leader in 1937 although he previously had been a Republican, was re-elected as a Progressive.

Both the Progressives' financial chairmen were defeated—Assemblyman Ernest Hoesly, New Glarus, and Senator E. Merwin Rowlands, Cambria.

Veterans Defeated
Colorful veterans whose bids for reelection were rejected by the voters included Assemblymen Arthur Hitt (P), six-time representative of Buffalo and Pepin counties; Felix Kremer, (P), Phillips; Byrde Vaughan (P), Wisconsin Rapids; H. S. Halvorsen (P), Westby, and Edward Rakow (D), Burlington.

Senators who were defeated were Roland Kannenberg of Wausau, Earl Leverich of Sparta, Frank Panzer of Oakfield and George Engbreton, South Wayne, Progressives; and Joseph Clancy of Racine, Chester Dempsey of Hartland and Harold Schoenecker, Milwaukee, Democrats.

ago, reported a strong Republican vote which helped swell the leads Wiley and Heil amassed in the rural areas and the populous Republican counties.

Secretary of State Theodore Dammann, a veteran Progressive who has held office for more than ten years, was lighting a losing battle for reelection with Fred Zimmerman, (R), whom he succeeded in 1927 when Zimmerman was elected governor. The Republican candidate was leading by about 22,000 votes in 2,414 precincts.

Approximately the same number of precincts showed good margins for Walter S. Goodland, in the race for lieutenant governor, and John Smith, Shell Lake, candidates for state treasurer. Goodland and Smith, both anti-LaFollette coalitionists, were nominated in the primary on the Democratic and Republican tickets and chose to run on the latter.

Progressive Treasurer Solomon Levitan, who made a comeback in 1936, was trailing about 40,000 votes behind Smith.

John Martin, coalition candidate for attorney general on the Republican ticket, apparently had defeated the Progressive incumbent, O. S. Loomis, with a majority of about 89,000 but with 542 precincts missing.

For the other state offices 2,885 precincts of 2,995 for lieutenant governor: Nelson, 296,542; Galasinski, 103,115; Goodland, 451,749; for secretary of state: Dammann, 372,660; Callahan, 118,372; Zimmerman, 399,357; 2,884 precincts of 2,995 for state treasurer: Levitan, 349,229; Copeland, 112,077; Smith, 410,153; for attorney general: Loomis, 300,817; Finnegan, 142,035; Martin, 412,009.

Hospital Project Rejected at Polls At Clintonville

Proposal Defeated in Each Of Five Wards Of City

Clintonville—In a special referendum at the general election Tuesday, citizens of Clintonville voted against the erection of a municipal hospital by a vote of 867 to 562. The project was defeated in each of the five wards of the city. The cost of the hospital was estimated at approximately $50,000 and if approved, would be erected as a PWA project. The cost of the hospital was to be financed by a federal grant of 45 per cent and the remainder by a bond issue.

The vote by wards was: First—yes, 139; No, 221. Second—yes, 73; No, 89; Third—yes, 91; No, 162; Fourth, yes, 138; No, 227; Fifth—yes, 121; No, 168.

Citizens of this city also voted against the erection of a $300,000 grade school building program in a special school election held on Oct. 29.

Armistice day, now a legal holiday, will be observed in this city Friday morning, Nov. 11. A parade headed by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will march to the armory where a program will begin at 11:15. The speaker will be the Rev. Ralph Holiday of New London, past state chaplain of the American Legion. Stores and other places of business will be closed from 11 o'clock in the morning to one o'clock in the afternoon. Books and the post office windows will remain closed throughout the day and there will be no mail deliveries because of the legal holiday. By an act of the seventy-fifth congress May 13, 1938, Armistice day has been declared a legal holiday.

"Post Road," a stage production, will play at the Clintonville armory on Friday evening, Nov. 11, under the sponsorship of the American Legion. There are 33 persons in the company, 25 of whom are in the cast. The company carries a truck load of its own scenery. Proceeds earned from the play will be used for the benefit of the drum and bugle corps, which was recently organized here under the guidance of the American Legion post.

Due to the inclement weather Monday, the "market day" crowd was not as large as usual. The next market day will be held on Tuesday, Dec. 6, at the Clintonville armory.

In observance of "book week," the Junior Woman's club heard a report on a new fiction book, "This is Me Kathie," by Julia Venet, at the meeting Monday evening at the Finney library. The book was reviewed by Miss Esther Regli, city librarian. A talk on well-known magazines was given by Miss Louise Kant and assembly singing concluded the program. A straw vote was taken on the office of governor and on the hospital referendum. Julius Heil won the vote for governor by a large majority and the club voted in favor of erecting a municipal hospital. The meeting closed with the serving of a lunch by Mrs. Kenneth Spearbraker, Miss Dorothy Spearbraker, Mrs. John Buehrens, and Mrs. Clement Bohr.

Decision Affirmed on Claim Against Town

Milwaukee county's claim of $910.13 against the town of Grand Chute for relief aid given to Lawrence Wing was approved by the state supreme court today at Madison. Milwaukee county held that Wing had established legal settlement in Grand Chute while the town contended that legal settlement had been established in Milwaukee county. The case was taken before the industrial commission which found for Milwaukee county. The case was then taken in circuit court of Dane county and the decision was affirmed. The town appealed to the supreme court.

QUESTIONS

Question 19: Only North-South vulnerable. The bidding proceeds: South West North East 1spade 2diamonds Double Pass ?

You are South and hold: Q10842 AKJ53 A Q3 What call do you make now?

Answer: Three hearts. When void of doubled suit, and especially with vulnerability conditions as they are, you should not dream of letting the double stand. Your 5-5-3 distribution makes game appear extremely probable, and there may be a slam in hearts. A mere two heart bid would not announce your true strength and might lead partner to feel you were merely "running" from the double. (Thirty-two points demerit for passing; 22 points demerit for 2 hearts; 36 points demerit for 2 no-trump; 44 points demerit for any other bid.)

Question 20: Both sides vulnerable, the bidding has proceeded: West North East South Pass Pass Pass 1heart 2clubs Pass 2diamonds Pass Pass 2spades Pass ?

You are South and hold: AK9 A Q843 K52 J7 What call do you make now?

Answer: Pass. You have a good hand, but must allow for comparative weakness in North's hand. He passed originally and passed again over West's two club bid. His delayed spade bid thus guaranteed nothing but a fair spade suit, possibly J 10 x x x, and very little outside. (Twenty-two points demerit for any other bid; 28 points demerit for any other bid.)

Double Pass Pass Pass

It required considerable courage for North to stand the three no-trump bid, especially when doubled, but he felt that to bid four spades would simply be making a bad matter worse.

West had a very difficult choice of opening leads and finally selected his fourth best club. Dummy's ten won and the spade king was laid down. West held off and a low spade was led to the jack. West won and, after a long huddle, made the bold play of laying down the king of hearts. Declarer naturally feared that winning with the heart ace would permit East later to gain the lead with a heart honor, hence held up. The heart jack was continued and was also permitted to hold. The third heart was taken when the ace and the spade suit then was run off. Declarer discarded two diamonds and a club on the three low spades, leaving himself with the A-Q of diamonds and the club king. West had more trouble in discarding. He finally had to blank his club ace in order to hold the K 10 of diamonds. If he had blanked the diamond king declarer easily could have read the situation and cashed two diamond tricks. Now the club jack was led and West took his ace, but had to return a diamond from the K 10 to declarer's major tenace, and the nine trick contract became a lay-down.

"We thought our attitude sane and commendable. Yet my interests were centered completely on David to the exclusion of sororities, clubs, personal friends and even my family. I had no time for them. "Then, three days before our wedding, a plane dropped out of the sky and David was killed on his return from an important business appointment. That was a year ago last September. "For months I crept about like a shadow—completely alone, because I refused to let people inside my shell where I grieved silently.

Happiness Regained
"But being essentially a sensitive girl and realizing what your advice would be, I gradually extroverted myself. I joined a camera club, an archery club, I rode horseback in the brisk autumn air, and deliberately started making friends by means of your COMPLEMENTS CLUB. "Don't think it was easy, though, for I followed your psychological advice only because I knew it was good for me. At the beginning it was bitter as gall. I didn't want to meet people. I didn't want to smile or pay compliments. "I simply wanted to be alone and cry. But I forced myself along through the first few months. And now I am a reasonably well adjusted ambivert. "Perhaps there is still happiness ahead. At least, I have reached the place where I can have a date and enjoy myself fairly well with a congenial partner."

Formula For Happiness
Nobody has a corner on misery and dejection. Regardless of how blue you may feel, remember that thousands of others in your city or state feel just as blue, and sometimes even much worse than you.

But disregard your emotions and listen to your brain. It will tell you that you can work yourself out of your dejection if you will follow the psychological prescription, bitter though it seems at first.

Go out among people. Smile though your heart is breaking. Shoulder your social and financial duties. "The show must go on," is the motto of the stage. Laugh, Clown, Laugh.

Just keep on keeping on, and soon you'll pull out of the stormy waters and be on peaceful seas again. But you cannot drift there! Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my RATING SCALE FOR EXTROVERSION. It is a good chart for stormy waters.

Parent Must Hit Happy Medium While Dealing With Children

BY DOROTHY DIX

In a recent magazine article a father tells how he tried to prepare his daughter for life by treating her with almost inhuman cruelty. He urges other parents to use this same harsh method in bringing up their children so that they may be hardened to meet whatever misfortunes may befall them.

DOROTHY DIX

ly while other youngsters licked their ice-cream cones. She was always the shabbiest and most poorly dressed of any little girl in school.

The father's excuse for thus willfully depriving his daughter of everything that makes childhood sweet and beautiful was that he was "fitting her for life." Life is not so padded for any of us after we leave the nursery and there is no one to kiss our bruises and make them well or provide us with lollipops and pink hair ribbons. His idea is that the child who has never known anything but brutality will not mind being kicked about when it is grown. That those who have never known love and tenderness and beauty and softness will be so callous that they will not crave them.

But in this theory he goes against all the laws of God and nature. For if the Great Creator of the universe put ugliness and hardness into the world, He also put gentleness and beauty. If He sends the rain, He sends also the glorious sunshine. Also He put into the heart of man that which makes him desire most the things that have been withheld from him. No man is so hungry for love as the one who has been starved for affection. No one so avid for pleasures as the one who has been denied them in youth. Any father befools himself who thinks that he can take away a girl's desire for good times and pretty things by never permitting her to have them.

Moreover, in all sober truth, it is doubtful if there is anything that life can ever give us afterward that can compensate us for an unlabeled and lonely and unhappy childhood.

When we are men and women we have the strength to stand alone. We have acquired a philosophy that is an armor against the slings and arrows of fate. But when we are little children we are so helpless, so dependent upon our parents for every good and every happiness that can come to us, if we never know the softness of a mother's breast and the comforting shelter of a father's arms, we are poor indeed, no matter how many times we are millionaires.

To harden a child deliberately and to stamp out all of the gentler emotions in it; to make it incapable of pity because no sympathy has been shown it; to dry up the springs of tenderness in it because it has known no tenderness, is to do it not only a cruel spiritual but also a practical wrong. Because it is still true that love makes the world go round; that the men and women who are most human, most considerate of others, most responsive to their fellow creatures are not only the happiest but the most successful in life. Nobody loves a hard-boiled stoic, nor wants to do business with him or push his fortune.

Of course, it is not to be denied that many people unfit their children for life by being too indulgent to them. There are mothers and fathers whose devotion to their children makes them blind to their faults, so they do not correct them. There are mothers and fathers who are so weak that they can deny their children nothing and who pamper and indulge them in even the things that they know will be the youngsters' undoing. There are fathers and mothers who are so possessive that they never let their children grow up, or learn to stand alone.

But between the overfond parent and the Spartan parent there is a medium in dealing with children where they have both love and authority, tenderness and duty, and indulgences and restrictions. Unfortunately, only too few fathers and mothers hit this happy medium. For parenthood seems to be one of the things that is most difficult to do in moderation.

School Age Children Should Be Careful About Cleanliness

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children of school age ought to be especially careful about washing their hands, brushing their hair and teeth. School is a place of many meetings. Child meets children, germs meet more germs. Soap and water and plenty of them after every session should be used with right good will if the children are to keep well.

Of course they know this. Everybody has told them about it. Everybody has said, "Look at those hands! Why don't you wash them? I've told you about that a thousand times. Go this minute and wash yourself, and while you're about it do your hair. And don't slight your teeth, either."

Why don't they attend to this without constant prodding? Because they are the sons and daughters of their parents. Who likes to keep washing and brushing and wiping the basin out clean? In the morning routine habit, forced by public opinion, carries us through the morning toilet, but when, during the day, another doing is needed the bathroom is miles away, those stairs break one's back, the water isn't warm enough, and anyway, we'll wait until just before bedtime. And we have been at it for a lifetime. We're just naturally Unfussy.

Children are natural, too, and they are deeply interested in so many things—meals, play, the coming circus, their turn at the bat—that washing hands and brushing teeth have to be shoved in between with a sturdy force behind them. There are ways of lightening the burden of supervision. Suggestion is a great help. If instead of having to go upstairs to the bathroom, there was a close-by and handy place in the garage, on the back porch, on the first floor right by the door, it would help. And it would save the family bathroom, too.

I know they ought to know enough to go to the bathroom and wash and brush, but I know too, that they won't. It is going to take a lot of teaching before this cleanliness habit takes hold, and in the meantime we have to push it along so as to prevent some of the illness that threatens school children. Make the washing and brushing as easy and convenient as possible, and get the job done.

Schools are lacking in this essential part of equipment. Washrooms are provided for the teachers always, but for the children, rarely. They go to recess, play madly for twenty minutes to half an hour, fall on the playground floor, or the yards; go to the toilet; lay hands on each other and roll together on the earth, and at the signal, go back to class.

The teachers are put to it to get clean work from them. How can a child work on a sheet of white paper with hands that are grimy? Writing is not easy for the younger ones. Their hands perspire; they become muddy, are wiped on hair or pants or apron, and the results are something that would shock the hygienists. Yet the school must guard its children's health, and the teacher must present clean work to the supervisor.

There is plenty of water in the world, and some soap. Paper towels are not prohibitive. The greatest cost is in building the rooms and manning them. Measured against the children's present discomfort and the threat to their health, isn't it very small?

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Maureen O'Sullivan has gone through the chest of family heirlooms in an effort to find smart lapel ornaments for her tailored suits, and has emerged with some of unusual distinction. Maureen has taken several odd earrings, belonging to her grandmother, and has had them remodeled to fit the buttonholes of her suit lapels. An old fashioned watch-fob became another of real antique beauty.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Inspired by the World's Fair architecture are these two striking hairdos modeled by HELENE DERNELLE and DEAN MYLES, celebrated Rockettes of Radio City Music Hall. The ornamental model of the Trylon and Perisphere emphasizes the new upward trend and the sparkle of the rhinestone coronet of the Trylon and Perisphere in miniature is in keeping with the more daring of ornaments.

Literally, the sky is the limit in hair ornamentation this year! Hairdressers are so delighted with the popularity of the upswep coiffure that they are having themselves a time, creating the most daring and spectacular dramatizations of m'lady's crest!

Not content with massive and bulky jewels as hair ornaments—feathers, flowers and gilded species of bugs—they have determined to bring attention to your head through glittering sequins of many hues, colored nets to match your gowns, circus snoods and the most ostentatious of ornaments. So one may pin any oddity upon one's head and wear it proudly in Dame Fashion's name—from grandfather's weighty watchfob and chain to the Trylon and Perisphere, symbols of the World's Fair!

Yes, even architecture has provided the inspirations for the latest in upswep coiffures! Emile of New York selected two lovely Radio City Music Hall Rockettes as his models, and used the World's Fair symbols in miniature to place new emphasis on height in hair fashions.

Around these modeled ornaments he fashioned two elegant coiffures which indicate that hair is going up, up, up—and it will not be long before we will take great-grandmother's wired frames from the attic and dust them off for our own use!

Styles Indicate Permanence Of Fashion
For the first time in years milliners and dress designers have built their hats and costumes around a hairdressing trend. Your head, my dear, leads the style parade!

You Can Train Your Hair
There are all sorts of aids at your command to help you train your tresses to the new trend, and to keep them put after a setting. Bobby pins, barrettes, combs and eye-entrancing ornaments.

For rebellious locks there is wax, or a transparent lacquer, to make them behave. Once the hair has been coaxed to grow "up" you will have little difficulty.

And what fun it is to truly dress up your hair. It makes any party just that much more thrilling and successful!

Do Your Guests Smoke?
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper for the hostess to set her dining table with cigarettes and ash trays? Provided the answer is yes, then is it necessary?

Answer: Some hostesses do set their tables with ash trays, lighters or matches, and cigarettes; others do not. In no case is it necessary—unless the hostess (or host) intends to smoke at the table herself.

Good Sense Chooses the Day
Dear Mrs. Post: Is an event ever celebrated, properly, at a date other than the one on which the day actually falls? My parents' fiftieth wedding anniversary falls on a day that some members of our family will have to be away, and as this is a "family time," my parents would like best of all to have all their children with them, but it is wrong to send invitations to such a celebration for an evening that is several weeks before or after the real wedding date?

Answer: This is too much a question of your parents' personal feelings even to consider any other answer. If you wanted to keep the date straight, it might be best to give both the date of the celebration and the date of the anniversary in the invitation. Celebrations are often belated but it would seem very curious, I think, to celebrate an event that has not yet occurred.

Butler or Houseman?
Dear Mrs. Post: Does a butler ever wear a tuxedo? The only clothes for evening that you mention in your book for the butler are tails except in the house that has a man who is really more of a houseman than butler. This man you dress in either a white coat or a plain dark suit.

Answer: In a not too formal house a butler may very properly wear a tuxedo if the coat has lapels of dull silk instead of satin. He wears a black waistcoat, starched, him back and walked on. Her mother wouldn't let a girl be first to cross the threshold on the New Year. She had to come up and get Donald out of bed so he could carry the good luck into the house.

The MacDonalds left early, they were driving to Carstedt at dawn and from there would entrain. Bridget escorted them to the porch while Kathleen sat fighting the tears of defeat. Donald hadn't even said goodbye.

"I..." She looked up. He was standing in front of her, glowering down. "I just wanted to say I hope you'll have a merry Christmas." The words came out like the snap of a whip.

"The same to you and many of them," Kathleen snapped back. And where was Bridget? Did the crazy girl want to catch cold standing out there on the porch with that Donald? Mrs. MacDonald's voice had sounded from the street long ago.

Bridget came in her eyes like the northern stars on a frosty night. Kathleen had to speak twice before she was heard, then Bridget was contrite.

"Donald says Norman is coming back to spend the rest of the winter with him," she purred.

"That," flashed Kathleen, "is just ducky!" Bridget's arms went around Kathleen. "Oh I'm selfish, dear, I keep forgetting what pain you are in. Come, let me undress you and tuck you in. Then two little white tablets and a few hours of rest."

Kathleen rested her head on the supporting arms. She couldn't hate Bridget if she wanted to, and oh, how she wanted to.

The very thought of Christmas was heart-sickening to Kathleen.

Chapter 23
Holiday Time
The MacDonalds came in that evening. Kathleen sat quietly, wondering at the fresh pain throbbing in her hands. And on the opposite side of the room, Donald MacDonald sat, unconsciously staring at the bandaged hands, mute evidence of the girl's bravery, his face dark with rebellion.

"I'd wanted to take you home with me for the holidays," Mrs. MacDonald told the girls, "but the doctor says no. Well, the boys will return for Hugenau!"

"Hug me, what?" asked Bridget. "Oh, you Irish don't celebrate New Year's Eve as the Scotch do. I'd advise you to prepare for company immediately after the stroke of midnight. You'll want your first guest to be a man, and after that a man and a girl, one dark, one fair. Have fuel on your veranda for the first man to carry in and you'll have good luck the rest of the year."

"But suppose the first visitor is a girl?" queried Bridget.

"Ask Maureen what happens. Poor child nearly stayed out all night last year. She lives in the last cottage down the hill you know. She'd worked late at the hotel. One of the men drove her home, but he couldn't get near the cot so she sent

Why hadn't she made the excuse that she wanted to go to Chicago, then flown on to New York? But she couldn't travel. The day would be lonely, dreary.

It wasn't Bridget that was ready for the carol singers who gathered beneath the windows on Christmas Eve. They tramped into the house shaking powdery snow from their shoulders and tramped out again.

Shower Of Gifts
Blindfolded, Kathleen was led to her room and there found a wide, deep studio couch, a gift from Miss Beatrice Gregory. She slept upon it that night, lay watching the hearth coals flare gold and purple, and wondered what Christmas Eve would be like in Los Angeles. If Mrs. MacDonald and Norman would have a crowd of those girls Mayme had mentioned, making a fool of him.

Morning came, and with it such a shower of gifts Kathleen was astounded. Donald MacDonald sent not one gift but a box of them; thoughtfully chosen gifts. Six of the latest novels and an adjustable stand to hold them and attached to this an automatic page turner.

Strangely precious to Kathleen was the personal gift, a pocket powder box bearing a card on which was written "To use next summer so I won't have to look at the freckles." Inside the box cover was inscribed, "To Spit-fire from the yapping Malamute."

Surely there was nothing tender in the term "Spit-fire," yet it struck some dim, sympathetic chord of memory.

Then came the miners with their gifts, enough potted plants to fill the broad Gregory house windows, hand carved beekends and boxes, dainty pieces of fancy work Kathleen treasured most a queer looking square, awkwardly embroidered.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach, you get constipated, your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks punk.

A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes three weeks, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get that two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. "Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else."

Renew Rivalry Started Back in 1894; Terrors Won Last Year

Wednesday's Game
Green Bay West at East.
Friday's Games
Oshkosh at Appleton.
Sheboygan Central at Fond du Lac.

APPLETON and Oshkosh High school football teams, battling to keep from falling to next to the last place in the conference race, will clash here at 2:15 Friday afternoon, in the final game of the Fox River Valley conference. Both teams have won two games and dropped three.

This year's game—on Armistice day—will mark the start of what will be an annual affair. In recent years Appleton has met Kaukauna on Armistice day but because the Terrors usually won and the game failed to draw as well as it might, the schools failed to renew relations this fall and Appleton decided to take on Oshkosh.

The rivalry between the two schools is one of the oldest stories in football history. They first clashed back about 1894 with Oshkosh winning by an overwhelming score. As a matter of fact it wasn't until several years later that Appleton managed to break into the win column.

Last year the teams played at Oshkosh before a record crowd and that's one reason Appleton picked the Indians as an Armistice day opponent. The game was at Oshkosh and Appleton won by an 8 to 7 count through the personal efforts of Chuck Sample. And as Sample will be playing his final game Friday, followers of the Terrors look toward another big afternoon for the husky back.

Conference statistics indicate the Indians haven't much of an offense but have a better defense than Appleton. They have scored only 22 points this fall but have held opponents to 42.

EAST VS. WEST TONIGHT
Green Bay — Packed with punch, power and potentialities greater than any in recent seasons, the 33rd annual East-West High school football game will be played at City stadium tonight before what may be the largest crowd in the history of the series.
The team which emerges with the greater number of points will be the undisputed champion of the Fox River Valley conference for 1938. If the game ends in a tie, both Green Bay teams will share the crown, but deadlocks in the East-West series have been harder to find than triple plays in World series. In fact, the total is exactly the same—one.
In addition to seeking their fourth straight Valley championship, the East high Red Devils are gunning for their 29th consecutive gridiron triumph. Not since the middle of the 1935 season has an East eleven tasted defeat, and Coach Tom Hearden's boys won that they will not be upset.

Baker Quintet to Show Thursday

Meets Hilbert in First Game; Locals Boast of Veteran Squad

The recently organized Elm Tree Bakery basketball team, known as the Fox River Paper company last year, will show Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. against Hilbert.
The Bakers have some of the best talent in the city again this year. Louis Grishaber, veteran guard, is well known in cage circles for his all around work. Orville Wosger will occupy the other guard and has shown great improvement in the last couple years. The forwards will be manned by Karl Lilke and Eddie Verbrück, a couple of eagle eyes for the hoop. Karlion Krick is working the pivot position and has been a factor in scoring.
Others who will see action with the Bakers are Albert Gaffney, a veteran performer, Eddie Krause, forward and Mark Catlin, a center.
Hilbert boasts a couple strong guards in Fox and Behnke while Elbert, Schroeder and Bennett work the forwards. Thees and Baldock are the centers.
The Bakers expect to turn back Hilbert and then go on to a state basketball title. They expect most of their opposition will come from the Kimberly A. A. team which won the title last season.

Fox Valley Conference Convenes Here Nov. 17

Appleton High school will be host to coaches and principals from the seven other schools in the Fox River Valley conference Thursday, Nov. 17. Oshkosh, East and West Green Bay, Sheboygan Central and North, Fond du Lac, Manitowoc and Appleton High schools are members.

On the calendar of new business are arrangements for next year's football schedule, the selection of football officials, and plans for track and minor sports competition, according to Werner Witte, athletic manager.
The visitors will come to Appleton in the morning and will be guests of the high school for the day. About 30 delegates are expected.

Milwaukee—Eleven guys named Jackson apparently make up the Marquette university football team this fall. After Gil Thomsen, 203-pound sophomore end, started to call everyone else on the squad, "Jackson," the habit was picked up by most of the others.

PLAYS TACKLE FOR APPLETON HIGH
Here's Ray Brash, a junior tackle on the Appleton High school football team, who will be playing his final game this year here Friday afternoon when the highs meet Oshkosh. The game will be observed as the feature of the Terrors' annual homecoming celebration. (Post-Crescent Photo)

George Marshall Doesn't Want to Buy Brooklyn Nine

BY SID FEDER
NEW YORK — (AP) — Don't let anybody kid you about the report (not carried here) that George Marshall, the pro football boss, is thinking of buying from the Brooklyn baseball Dodgers. . . . The big washing and ironing man from Washington wires that he's not only not interested, but thinks it's about time folks stopped getting cheap publicity at the expense of the daffiness boys. . . . And now there's the whisper that Minnesota Bernie Bierman is getting offers from a couple of coast colleges. . . . Sounds screwy to this corner. . . . The hosses are pouring into Santa Anita, which means winter is on the way.

Canadian Veteran Is Leading Pro Golfers

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. — (AP) — A 127-pound Canadian veteran was in the lead of a field of 80, including Sammy Snead, the home pro, as the second round of the $3,000 72-hole White Sulphur open golf tournament got under way today.
Julius Huol, of Quebec, fired a four under par 66 in the opening round, getting two birdies on each nine, to pace the field, with Bob Campbell, Evansville, Ind., finishing one stroke behind.
Snead and Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., took 69 strokes while battling a gale on the final nine which tumbled the temperature from 80 degrees to 51 within an hour. Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., also got a 68.
Other scores included Billy Burke of Cleveland, Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del., and Ky Laffoon, Chicago, with 69's.

Wolves Prepare For Wildcats Who Seek More Speed

Badgers, Iowa and Minnesota are Hampered by Cold and Snow

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO — (AP) — Michigan's football fortunes once again are rocketing toward the heights — powered by remarkable team spirit, ball carrying backs with whirlwind speed and blockers who like to "knock 'em into the nickel seats."
In 1933 Michigan won its last Big Ten football title. In the following four seasons the Wolverines won only five conference tilts while losing 17. H. O. (Fritz) Crisler came from Princeton to take up where Harry Kipke left off, and there was a general feeling that Fritz would require at least two years to get anywhere with the reconstruction of the Wolverine game.
Yet this week finds Michigan heading toward the most important game of the waning Big Ten schedule — (4) game with Northwestern. Victory over Northwestern would make Michigan a strong favorite for at least a slice of the Big Ten title, and victory for the Wolverines over Ohio State a week from Saturday might find them sole holders of the crown.

Speed to Burn
Michigan has tremendous speed, and probably will have it for some seasons to come. Tom Harmon, Paul Kromer and Norm Furucker, most publicized of the backs, are better than "10 second men." Add this speed to the blocking ability of Harmon, 200-pound Forest Evashevski and Ed Phillips and the answer is a "now 'em down" rushing attack which has supplanted the old "punt, pass and prayer" system.

The Wolverines almost lost the services of Fred Janke, their captain and tackle, as they perfected their defense against Northwestern plays yesterday. Janke injured his ankle, but Trainer Roberts said he did not believe it was serious.
At Northwestern, Coach Lynn Waldorf inserted three sophomores into the backfield in an effort to speed up the Wildcat offense and said two of them might start against Michigan. Francis Purtell of Milwaukee was at fullback. Paul Soper of Muskegon, Mich., and Erwin Madsen of Chicago alternated at left half.

Speed also was Bernie Bierman's demand as Minnesota prepared for Notre Dame. Freezing temperatures prevailed and the Gophers utilized both gridiron and the field house for one of their hardest workouts of the year.
Snow Hampers Badgers
Snow and ice hampered practice at Wisconsin and Iowa where the former drilled for U. C. L. A. and Iowa for its conference finale with Indiana. Quarterback Jimmy Sexton and end Stu Whitehead led a snappy passing display at Ohio State. At Illinois, the Buckeyes' foe of the week, Coach Bob Zuppke continued to juggle his lineup.
Indiana worked on blocking and then had a "playback" of movies of its 3 to 0 triumph over Iowa last year—the last game the Hoosiers won.

Chicago, whose principal scoring threat has been the forward pass, turned to a long session at running the ball. Purdue, with two weeks to go before it returns to action, polished its passing attack for the Indiana game Nov. 19.
Notre Dame worked in sleet and snow at building a line defense against Minnesota power drives.

Hockey Association Meeting Is Called

Arkansas Has Lost 5 of Last 13 Games in Last Minute of Play

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK. — (AP) — In 158 telescoped seconds—less than three minutes—Coach Fred Thomsen and his Arkansas Razorbacks have lived a life-time of football tragedy.
Five of Arkansas' last 13 games have been lost in the last minute of play and Coach Thomsen's red throat is turning grey.
This amazing jinx started in November, 1937. A Baylor punt struck Arkansas' safety man, bounded away and was recovered by Baylor with only 43 seconds to play. Bullet Bill Patterson chuckled a 23-yard touchdown pass. Final score: Baylor 20, Arkansas 14.
Next came the Rice game of '37—the one that cost Arkansas a Southwest conference title. With only 33 seconds remaining, Arkansas led, 20-19. Big Ernie Lain threw a 35-yard touchdown pass to Ollie Cordill. Final score: Rice 26, Arkansas 20.
1938 Streak Starts
Then the 1938 streak started. Sophomore Robert Nelson, Baylor center, booted a field goal on the final play of the game. Final score: Baylor 9, Arkansas 6.
Came the Texas Aggie game. Arkansas led, 7-6, with four seconds remaining and the Aggies on the Arkansas four. The Aggie line—runner John Kimbrough, was spilled for a five-yard loss—but the officials ruled Arkansas was offside. The Aggies moved to the one-yard line on the penalty, sent Kimbrough smashing over on the final play. Final score: Texas Aggies 13, Arkansas 7.
The jinx reached the incredible stage last week. Only 50 seconds remained with Rice in possession on the Arkansas 26. Fullback Jake Schuchle tried a field goal but the play was nullified because a Rice substitute had arrived just before the snap of the ball. Schuchle tried again, the holder fumbled and Schuchle pumped a 36-yard field goal. Final score: Rice 3, Arkansas 0.
And next week, Arkansas plays Southern Methodist which Saturday beat Texas A. and M. with a 45-yard field goal in the final 30 seconds.

Badgers Leave For UCLA Tilt

Stuhldreher Reprimands Several Players for Laxity in Drills

MADISON — Wisconsin's football team worked out in the snow and cold yesterday afternoon with thoughts of balmy breezes and a warming sun which they expect to find in faraway California where the Badgers will seek to prove the supremacy of the Big Ten when they square off against U.C.L.A. in the Coliseum at Los Angeles this Saturday.

The Badgers will be at full strength for the test in which they hope to keep their explosive attack, which has carried Wisconsin's Cardinal to the top of the Western conference standings, in working order for the final game of the season against Minnesota here Nov. 19.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher has selected 35 players, including 12 sophomores, 10 juniors and 13 seniors, as his traveling squad. Practice will be staged at Camp Randall Wednesday noon before the boys' arrival in Los Angeles Friday morning. The players will return to Madison immediately after the game, arriving in Madison on Monday in time to put in some intensive work for the Gopher clash.

Only Tony Gradinski, varsity left half alternate; Ralph Moeller, varsity left end, and Ed Hartman, reserve quarterback, are not in port. The other players, including the team's leading scorer, Ed Hartman, who has a pulled knee muscle, are expected to be ready for Saturday, however.

Defense again was stressed in Tuesday's practice with each of the first three teams taking a look at U.C.L.A.'s baffling offense. Coach Bill Spaulding employs a spread offense with passes being gunned from every position on the field. The Cards bottled up all the yearling efforts with apparent ease and Coach Stuhldreher expressed the wish that his varsity does as well on Saturday.

No Hard Contact

Stuhldreher reprimanded some of his players for laxity in yesterday's drill although the bulk of the boys realized that the game to the coast will be no picnic. The same close harmony between players and coaches has characterized this season's play again as proven as the boys settled down for one of the best practices of the year.

No hard contact work was meted out although the dummy tackling practice and defensive work against the freshmen attained the proportion of scrimmage without helmets.

The Badgers have not drilled on offense this week except for a short signal drill at the start of today's practice. Stuhldreher is satisfied with the running game which ousted three touchdowns over Northwestern's goal line.

He fears the Uclan aerial attack, however, and frequently had the freshmen walk through their assignments on pass plays to enable the varsity backs to diagnose and pick up their potential receivers.

Changes were noted at the first team ends. Gordy Gile, Shorewood, replaced Bob Weirand, Oshkosh, at right end in place of Al Lorenz, Chicago, sophomore. Moeller and Lorenz, however, are expected to draw the starting assignments Saturday.

Plans Meetings

A complete review of offensive assignments is on tap for Wednesday's short workout. The squad will not work out en route although Coach Stuhldreher will hold frequent meetings with his players to discuss Saturday's tilt.

Pro Teams Have Completed More Passes Than Last Year's Total

NEW YORK — With 15 games remaining to be played, teams in the National Professional Football league have already completed 28 more forward passes than were completed all last season according to team statistics announced today. The 10 clubs completed 622 passes thus far this season compared with 594 in 1937.

The New York Giants continue to lead in passing and for the second successive week has improved its efficiency. The Giants have now completed 6 out of 130 tosses for 53 per cent efficiency. The Chicago Cardinals have completed 99 passes, the most in the league.

Masterson Almost Had Halas Believing Him

Chicago — Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears, irked at poor tackling by Bear backs last Sunday against the Green Bay Packers, bellowed at quarterback Bernie Masterson: "Bernie, you haven't made a tackle all season!"

"I did so coach," retorted Bernie. "I made one in the Pittsburgh game."

Halas became so angry at the laugh which followed Masterson's remark that he got out the movies of the Pittsburgh game and ran them over—to discover Masterson had not played that contest.

Woman's Club Hears Talk on African Trip

Chilton — The regular meeting of the Woman's club was held at the city hall Monday afternoon, the hostesses being Miss Belle Brodick and Mrs. Ida Boll. Mrs. H. F. Arps and Mrs. Edward Landgraf reported on the state convention held at Racine in October, and Mrs. Arps sang two songs, accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Reinbold.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Abbie McGovern of Milwaukee, who spoke on her travels in Africa last winter. The trip was made on a freighter, and after leaving New York on Jan. 1, the first stop was at Cape Town, the trip taking just four weeks. Southern Africa is very up to date, with beautiful buildings and parks, she said. Cape Town is considered by some to be the most beautiful city in the world, and is about half the size of Milwaukee, with about 150,000 whites, these latter being Dutch and English, the speaker asserted.

Leaving Cape Town, the boat cruised the eastern coast of Africa, going as far north as Mombasa. On the return trip the boat stopped at Trinidad for a cargo, arriving in New York in April. Mrs. McGovern showed articles which she had purchased in Africa, in brass, ivory and silk.

At the next meeting of the club, on Nov. 21, the speaker will be Mrs. M. C. Dubbe of Winneconne, president of the Sixth district, W.F.W.C., whose topic will be "If Parents Were Experts." The New Holstein Junior club will be the guests at the meeting.

G. M. Morrissey and Dr. J. E. Reinbold were at New Holstein Tuesday evening, where the former was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Lions club.

Mrs. Tena Bell was hostess to the Tuesday club Tuesday afternoon.

Anton Miller, Progressive nominee, was third with 106, and Arthur Hoolihan, Union candidate, had 36.

Heil for governor, 254 to 204; George A. Nelson edged out Walter S. Goodland, 217 to 190; for lieutenant-governor, Theodore Dammann beat Fred R. Zimmerman for secretary of state, 262 to 154, and Solomon Levitan topped John M. Smith, 254 to 152, for state treasurer. Heil and the Republican slate were the choices in other wards.

Men Love Girls With PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will love you to pieces and parties. BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations a woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

By Jeanne Bowman

posed father told Balmly who "—
"Darling," interposed Bridget, "for a girl with as bright a head as yours, you're woefully dumb. Balmly has known your identity from the moment he met you. Old Angus probably showed him every photograph ever taken of you, and he'd have watched the rotogravures with intense interest."

"But why didn't he tell me?" cried Kathleen.
"My dear, he was waiting for you to show your trust in him. Then too, he'd be the kind to let you work out your problem without interference."

"Bridget," Kathleen leaned forward in alarm, "do you think everyone knows?"
"Gaily came Bridget's laugh. "No, dear, at least I'm confident Kit-Smyth has no idea. Perhaps a few of the older Gregory family suspect, but like Balmly they'd never speak to anyone, nor to you until you took the first step."

"And the MacDonalds?"
Bridget sobered. "I think they know."
"Perhaps I'd better come out in the open—"

"No, don't do that. They'd rather not have you admit your identity. As it is, they can associate with you without their people questioning them."

Kathleen's smile was bitter. She understood, she thought. As long as she was Cleo Riley, Bridget could associate daily with Donald. Well, so be it. She'd need to associate daily with him if she were to promote her new plan.

Kathleen fingered the old shirt, then began chuckling. "What a fight that must have been! Oh I wish I'd known him, he might have given me a few pointers."

"Or you given a few to him," countered Bridget, and fled, leaving Kathleen to wonder what had caused the fight.

Balmly wouldn't tell, she was sure, until she had admitted her identity, and perhaps Balmly, like the MacDonalds, preferred she continue as Cleo Riley.

She looked up at the photograph of the dark-eyed woman. "I'll bet you were mixed up in this some place," she accused, and then she looked down at her hands. Would they ever be normal again? If not? Kathleen sat in passionate rebellion, then lifted her eyes to a mirrored reflection. There, that was the resemblance she had noted before. Her eyes, so totally unlike any other Gregory's, were like the eyes of the woman in the photograph.

She reread Balmly's note. Now what had he meant by that, "the better way, patch the two halves together and keep the shirt in the family—" First, she'd have to find the other half. This was what Old Angus' note had suggested, then, why had Balmly called it "the better way?"

VISIT TO OUR

to view the new Overcoats will be a very pleasing and informative experience.

It will be pleasing because the fabrics are so velvety and fleecy, the colorings are decidedly new and out of the ordinary — the newer shades of green — the richer shades of blue and the warm browns will bring forth exclamations of approval.

It will please you, too, to note the smart styling of this season's Overcoats — the semi-Bals and Tab-collar, slash pocket Bals will bring loads of compliments to their wearers.

Your visit will be informative because the splendid values of this season's Overcoats seem unbelievable. Never have so finely tailored and smartly styled Overcoats been shown at such nominal prices.

Be sure to include in your Appleton Day plans a short visit to our store to see these admiration winning overcoats. It will be a pleasure to show them.

THE NEBBES

Watch Your Step

By SOL HESS

HERE WE HAVE ROY HATS APPLYING FOR A JOB AS BELLBOY AT NEBB'S HOTEL. HE IS AS FAITHFUL AS A TRAITOR AND AS HONEST AS A HOLD-UP MAN.

MR. NEBB, I WAS JUST WONDERING IF YOU COULD USE A BELLBOY? I NEED WORK—THERE'S MY REFERENCES.

YES, I COULD USE AN EXTRA BOY. THESE REFERENCES READ FINE.

WELL, THERE ISN'T MUCH A BELLBOY HAS TO DO OTHER THAN BE WILLING, POLITE AND HONEST. I HAVE ALL THOSE QUALIFICATIONS—I WISH YOU'D GIVE ME A CHANCE TO PROVE IT.

HOW DID YOU EVER HAPPEN TO COME DOWN HERE FOR A JOB? HOW DID YOU FIND OUT ABOUT THIS PLACE?

MR. NEBB, YOU'D BE SURPRISED HOW WELL YOU AND THIS PLACE ARE KNOWN. I HEARD A COUPLE DISCUSSING YOUR PLACE TALKING ABOUT THE HOMEY ATMOSPHERE, THE WONDERFUL MEALS AND THE MARVELOUS HEALTH WATER, SO I THOUGHT I'D LIKE TO BE A SMALL PART OF SUCH AN INSTITUTION.

YOU GO TO THE BELL CAPTAIN AND TELL HIM TO ASSIGN YOU YOUR QUARTERS AND GIVE YOU A UNIFORM.

By WESTOVER

MISS TILLIE JONES

I STILL CAN'T BELIEVE I ACTUALLY HEARD TILLIE TELL ME THAT WE SHOULD'NT SEE EACH OTHER.

OHMYGOSH, I WONDER IF MAC REALLY UNDERSTOOD WHAT I MEANT?

OH, MAC, WHEN I SAID WE SHOULD'NT SEE EACH OTHER FOR AWHILE, I MEANT ONLY SOCIALLY, NOT IN A BUSINESS WAY.

UH HUH.

WELL, THIS CERTAINLY KNOCKS THE BOTTOM OUT OF EVERYTHING FOR ME.

THE LONE RANGER

Where There's Life There's Hope

By ED KRESSY

HIM YOUR FRIEND! HIM NOT WANT INDIANS KILLED!

I CAN GIVE YOUR BROTHERS WHO HAVE JUST BEEN TAKEN TO THE CAVE!

THEY NOT BELIEVE YOU, FRIEND! YOU MUST GO!

WAIT! YOUR BROTHERS WHO HAVE GONE TO THE EVIL SPIRIT ARE STILL ALIVE! WE CAN SAVE THEM!

THAT NOT TRUE! EVIL SPIRIT KILLS THEM!

QUIET! LET HIM SPEAK.

I TELL YOU I WILL BRING THEM BACK ALIVE! BUT YOU MUST HELP ME!

HOW WE HELP?

WE NOT GO NEAR EVIL SPIRIT!

That Maternal Instinct

By CHIC YOUNG

EVERYBODY DISLIKES DEMONS, I HAVEN'T A FRIEND IN THE WORLD.

DON'T TALK THAT WAY, BILL.

WHY NOT?

WHEN I WAS A SMALL DEMON MAMA WARNED ME.

SHE KNEW THE WORST.

"BILL," SHE SAID, "YOU'LL NEVER BE ANYTHING EXCEPT A DEMON."

AM I BORING YOU, OLIVE?

GEE, MOM IS NICE. SHE'S A SWEET DEMON.

I'M SURE SHE IS.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

The Lizard Family

The lizard family is a big one. There are about 2,500 kinds of lizards!

From time to time, you probably have seen small lizards which do no harm to people. They live chiefly on insects and worms.

Of all the world's lizards, only two kinds are poisonous. They are the Gila monster and the horrid heloderm.

A frilled lizard "ready for the enemy."

The Gila monster was named after the Gila river in Arizona. It is a rather stout animal, and often grows to a length of two feet. It lives in southwestern parts of the United States, chiefly in very dry sections of Arizona and New Mexico.

The "horrid heloderm" is found in Mexico. It is a relative of the Gila monster, and is about equally as poisonous.

Far larger lizards are to be found on certain islands of the Pacific. There are big members of the family on the Galapagos islands, but they are not the only one of giant size.

The largest of all lizards are the "dragons of Komodo." These animals were discovered in recent times on Komodo and two other small islands of the East Indies.

The dragons of Komodo sometimes grow to a length of from 10 to 12 feet. They are bulky and powerful, and have sharp teeth.

A monitor lizard of the Nile valley is noted for its habit of eating the eggs of crocodiles.

In West Africa, another large monitor lizard is noted for its bulldog bite. When it bites, it hangs on minute after minute. It has been watched while it kept its grip for half an hour. Usually, however, it fights by whipping its tail back and forth.

That West African lizard has another strange habit. When it is frightened by some enemy, it rolls over on its back and puts one of its hind feet in its mouth. Then it lies still until the enemy goes away.

Australia has the frilled lizard, which is just about as strange. It can get up and run on its hind legs!

The frilled lizard was so named because of a collar, or frill, around its neck. Most of the time the frill is folded, but it is raised as a result of anger or fright. If the animal is chased, it may rise on its hind legs and run to the nearest tree. Then it will either climb the tree, or turn around and wait with its frill raised and its mouth wide open.

Riddles, games and puzzles will be found in the "Funmaker" leaflet. If you would like a copy send a 3c stamped, return envelope to me in care of this newspaper.
